DUTCH CRADLE READY FOR BABY

BIRTH OF HEIR TO THRONE OF HOLLAND

EXPECTED TO TAKE PLACE THIS WEEK.

THE PEOPLE ARE HAPPY.

The Hague, April 10.—The birth of an heir to the Dutch throne of Holland is confidently expected the coming week, and if all goes well the outburst of popular enthusiasm will be such as has seldom been witnessed among the placid Dutch. There has been no royal birth in the Netherlands since that of Queen Wilhelmina herself, twenty-seven years ago. Thrice before, since the marriage of "Little Wilhelmina," as the Hollanders affectionately call the Queen, have the hopes of the country been raised only to be dashed.

The constant fear of the Dutch has been that the House of Orange would die out with a childless sovereign and that Holland would pass under the rule of a German Prince and would thereby probably became a German vassal State. This partly accounts for the extraordinary eagerness with which the event is awaited in every town and village in the Netherlands.

Demonstrations on a gigantic scale have been arranged, and processions, concerts and fetes will be held over the country. The school children have been given a week's holiday and general amnesty will be proclaimed for certain classes of prisoners.

Guns already are in position on the parade ground here for the firing of a salute on the announcement of the birth. One hundred and one rounds will be fired for the birth of a prince and fifty-one for a princess. Heralds, accompanied by trumpeters in costumes of the Sixteenth century, will proclaim the advent of a prince or princess of Orange in all quarters of the city.

The health of the Queen has been excellent. Dr. Kouwer, an eminent gynecologist, in addition to the Queen's regular physicians, is in constant attendance. The Queen's apartments are situated at the back of the palace, overlooking a quiet old-world garden. A suite of six rooms has been prepared for the infant by the Queen herself, and in these have been installed some ancient cradles of the House of Nassau, of wonderful workmanship. All, however, have been discarded in favor of a homely wooden Dutch cradle, which will be used ordinarily, while on State occasions the baby will occupy a beautiful cradle made at The Hague School of Lacework, where two-score of women instructors and pupils worked many months in producing the lace for this cradle. Two rooms are literally filled with costly presents which have been sent for the royal baby from every city and hamlet in the Netherlands.

BUTTON MAKERS' STRIKE IN FRANCE GROWS SERIOUS.

Agitators From Paris Harangue Mob At Meru and Soldiers Are Rushed To the Scene.

Meru, France, April 10.—The strike of the button-makers of Meru has entered upon a critical phase. All the departmental authorities are hurrying in here, and re-enforcements of cavalry and gendarmes are coming by every train. Many arrests have been made, but further trouble is expected.

Agitators who came down from Paris harangued the mob, after which the strikers stormed and wrecked four button factories and practically destroyed the residences of their employers.

The trouble arises from a reduction of 30 per cent. in wages made by the employers' organization, owing to the competition of Japan, where mother-of-pearl is very cheap, made it impossible to continue the old wage scale. The employers say they will close their establishments rather than go back to the old rate.

British North Borneo has 120 miles of railway in operation and 800 miles of telegraph and telephone lines.

ELKS LODGE INDICTED FOR SELLING LIQUOR.

TO REMOVE INSANE INDIAN TO ASYLUM.

Cincinnati, April 10.—United States District Attorney McPherson was informed to-day that an agent of the Insane Asylum for Indians, located in Canton, S. D., will arrive in Cincinnati next Monday to take to Canton Bicody, the Navajo Indian chief, who is held in jail here for running amuck and stabbing three persons in the Union Central station recently.

STILL APART.

ANTHRACITE MINERS AND OPERATORS UNABLE TO AGREE.

District Boards Hold All-day Session and Have Nothing To Say.

Philadelphia, April 10.—Despite many conferences held in this city this week, terminating to-day, conditions with regard to wages in the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania remain unchanged to-night, both the operators and the representatives of the mine workers remaining firm in their decision not to come to an agreement at this time. During the conferences between the miners and the operators, which began on Wednesday and ended yesterday, the operators refused to recognize the United Mine Workers, but offered to renew the wage agreement which expired on March 31. This the miners rejected, and they proposed a counter proposition which the operators refused to entertain.

The three district boards of the anthracite mine workers held practically an all-day session to-day, discussing the situation, and adjourned finally without giving out an official statement. It is known, however, that a policy committee was appointed and that some of the mine workers entertain the hope that an amicable agreement with the operators will yet be reached.

During the afternoon President Lewis, of the mine workers, gave out a statement regarding his views of the situation. Mr. Lewis left for his home in Bridgeport, O., to-night, while the other miners' representatives who will not remain in this city until to-morrow will spend Easter Sunday at Atlantic City.

Although it has been known that the miners will not inaugurate a strike because of the disagreement the attitude of the operators as to whether they will permit them to work without an agreement is not known. The operators, it is said, will meet in New York on Monday, when the mining question will be discussed. It is said the question of refusing the 50 cents a ton reduction on April delivery of anthracite coal will also be discussed. The Reading company has instructed its agents not to book any sales for coal pending further instructions. This move, it is said, was taken because it was thought that dealers apprehensive of trouble at the mines would overstock themselves at the reduced figures during April.

Foreigners Quit Mines.

Shamokin, Pa., April 10.—A number of foreign miners, fearing an anthracite coal lockout or strike in the near future, removed their picks and drills from the collieries to-day. They will go to Europe and British Columbia until the hard coal labor troubles are settled.

Colliery Suspends.

Hazelton, Pa., April 10.—The Hazelbrook colliery of J. S. Wents & Co. suspended to-day for an indefinite period. The reason for the suspension could not be learned. Among some of the miners it is feared that the discontinuance of work is in line with the reported policy of the producing interests to close their collieries on account of the failure of the mine workers and the coal road presidents to reach an agreement.

TRAIN HITS AUTOMOBILE KILLING W. L. HARDISON.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 10.—W. L. Hardison, vice president of the Columbia Oil Producing Company of this city, formerly principal owner of the Los Angeles Herald, was instantly killed at Rocoa, a Southern Pacific siding, to-day when the motor car which he was driving collided with a light engine. The collision occurred at a crossing where the view was obscured by the roadside. He was about 60 years of age.

IN MEMORIAM.

In Memory of Mrs. Lucy Thixton, Who Died December 22, 1908.

I think of the sheaves of golden grain
The reaper gathered when severed life's chain;
I think of the mother, weep for her child;
I dwell on the thought that her life was "worth while."

I think of the deeds, by kindness wrought;
I think of the sunshine always brought;
I think of sweet words, so kindly spoken
In time of need when sad hearts were broken.

Of her faithful work in the Master's cause;
Of her patience in suffering, in whate'er would befall;
Ever joyful in triumph, fervent in love,
A spirit benting the mansions above.

When the Saviour placed on her beautiful brow
Her bright, jeweled crown so worthily fair,
The white-winged angels must have gathered around
To catch her sweet triumph, to echo "Well done."

O! hallowed memory, such treasures to hold;
O'erflowing with love, that the Saviour unfolds
Of her whom on earth gave blessings so sweet;
On that bright, shining shore some day we shall meet.

Oh, why speak of death? There is no death;
'Tis but gladdened souls, going home to be blest,
Leaving sorrow and strife, to anchor above
In that beautiful city where all is love.
MRS. W. O. F.

In Loving Remembrance of Our Beloved Daughter, Etta May Shackelford, Who Died April 9, 1906.

Oh, it was hard that April day
To see our Dear Etta pass away;
The angels hovering about her room
At noon whispered, Etta, come.
Then on the wings of heavenly love
They bore her to her home above.
Her loving heart is now at rest;
God took her home when He thought best.
When we are done with toil and care
We will meet our Dear Etta there.
FROM HER LOVING PARENTS AND BROTHERS.

In Memory of Our Dear Sister, Elizabeth Schulten, Who Departed This Life April 5, 1908.

Softly the stars are gleaming
Upon a quiet grave,
Where sleepeth without dreaming
The one we loved, but could not save.

Sweet and peaceful be thy rest,
Forget you we can never;
God called you; He alone knows best;
His will be done forever.
THE BEREAVED FAMILY.

In Loving Remembrance of Our Dear Father, John Franzmann, Sr., Who Departed This Life April 11, 1897.

Dear father, twelve years ago to-day
This sad, unhappy day,
We laid thy form away to rest
Within its tomb of clay;
Your soul put on its pure white wings
And sought the other shore,
Where now it dwells with God in peace
And love forever more.
SONS AND DAUGHTERS.

In Loving Remembrance of Our Dear Mother, Marie B. Sanders, Who Entered Into Rest April 11, 1908.

You are not forgotten, mother, dear,
Nor ever will you be;
For as long as life or memory lasts
We will always remember thee.

KNOCK-OUT FOR PROHIBITION LAW

ALABAMA COURT SAYS LIQUOR CAN BE STORED IN ANY INHABITED BUILDING.

Mobile, Ala., April 10.—One of the strongest sections of the State prohibitory law was declared unconstitutional to-day by Justice Mayfield at Montgomery. The section knocked out prohibited the storing or possession of liquor in any building or apartment which was inhabited. Judge Mayfield declared that the statute was in conflict with the Federal bill of rights which held that every man's home is his castle.

He further declared that the search warrants issued to seize liquor were illegal and that warrants could be issued only after evidence had been discovered and not on a chance of securing evidence.

Under this ruling the hotel and case men whose places were raided a few days ago by prohibition detectives with search warrants, have brought suit to set aside the seizures and will sue the men who instigated the raids.

Whisky, wines, cordials and various kinds of liquors to the value of about $10,000 seized here on Thursday by the Sheriff on warrants sworn out by members of the Law and Order League were released today, the owners giving the necessary bond.

EAGLES IN BLACK FACE AT MACAULEY'S TO-DAY.

Old-Time Minstrels With Artists Recruited From the Louisville Aerie.

In an old-time minstrel, with horseshoe first part, with tambos and bones and the austere Interlocutor, local Aerie, No. 332, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will shine at Macauley's Theater this afternoon and to-night. Jacob Schilling, a local boy who served on the professional stage, has had charge of the rehearsals during the past three months.

In the opening part songs, buck and wing dancing, coon shouting and real jokes without burrs will fill an hour of time.

Among the vocalists, said to be particularly good, is John Staib, a Louisville boy, who will sing "Lonesome," a late New York success.

Dave Gregory, Max Farb, "Happy" John Beck, Gus Bauman and Frank Weidhaus are to be the "end men." Each

TAFT ACTS ON WHISKY CASE

Executive Order Referring the Controversy.

Solicitor General Ordered To Take Testimony.

To Report On Question As To What Is Genuine.

CANNON AT WHITE HOUSE.

Washington, April 10.—[Special.]—The Secretary of State has promulgated the following executive order:

"A number of distillers and importers of spirits and whisky, represented by Lawrence Maxwell, Esq., the Hon. Joseph H. Choate, Alfred Lucking, Warwick M. Hough, and the Hon. W. W. Armstrong, having appealed to the President for a hearing with respect to the order issued by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, known as Order No. 723, pursuant to the rules and regulations for the enforcement of the food and drugs act and food and inspection decision No. 65, promulgated and made by the Secretary of Agriculture under date of May 14, 1908, claiming that the provisions of said order are in violation of the terms of the said act in that they require to be branded as imitations or compounds, or otherwise, whiskies which have well-settled names in the trade and which it was not the intention of Congress by the said food and drug act to require to be described by any other designation; and certain distillers of whisky having appeared by Edmund W. Taylor and the Hon. John G. Carlisle. After consideration the matter is hereby referred to the Hon. Loyd W. Bowers, Solicitor General of the United States, to take testimony and report to the President his opinion upon the following points, namely:

"First—What was the article called whisky as known (1) to the manufacturers, (2) to the trade, and (3) to the consumers, and prior to the date of the passage of the pure food law?

"Second—What did the term whisky include?

"Third—Was there included in the term whisky any maximum or minimum of congeneric substances as necessary in order that distilled spirits should be properly designated whisky?

"Fourth—Was there any abuse in the application of the term whisky to articles not properly falling within the definition of that term, and prior to the passage of the pure food law, which it was the intention of Congress to correct by the provisions of that act?

"Fifth—Is the term whisky as a drug applicable to a different product than whisky as a beverage? If so, in what particulars?

"The Solicitor General will from time to time determine the extent and character of the hearing and will report with his opinion the evidence taken by him pursuant hereto.

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

Show Their Nerve.

Speaker Cannon, Chairman Payne and several other House Republicans had the effrontery to show their faces at the White House this morning for the purpose of receiving congratulations from the President on the Payne tariff bill. The President has said nothing about the bill and it is not positively known what he thinks about it, but inasmuch as the measure is unsatisfactory to every member of Congress, Republican as well as Democrat, it is fair to assume that the President feels the same way about it. He did, however, congratulate the Speaker and his satellites upon the passage of the measure and they echoed a fervent amen.

The President would probably not have gone this far except for the reason that with everyone else he is heartily glad that the measure is now in competent hands for the real making of a bill.

* * *

Position of Democrats.

"I have been battling for thirty years for Democratic tariff principles and I would not surrender one jot at this late day. The Republican party has fastened this pernicious method of taxation on the country and if it must continue I am only pleading that there be no discrimination against the South."

Senator Robert L. Taylor, of Tennessee, stated the above to-day when asked about the attitude of the Senate minority in the forthcoming tariff fight. The Tennessee Senator's views are in accord with those of nearly the entire Democratic membership in the upper branch of Congress.

"When the Republican party," added the Senator, "places a high tariff on manufactured articles and allows the raw material to come in free it is simply taking the cream from the South for the enrichment of other sections of the country and giving us no benefit whatever. We of the South have borne more than our share of the blessings. It will be the aim of the Democrats to equalize the duties and stand firmly against sectionalism in the tariff bill."

Whirlwind Campaign For Education To Be Waged.

THE ENTIRE LAYOUT OF STATE WILL BE TAKEN IN.

MANY NOTABLES TO ATTEND GROCERS' CONVENTION.

GOV. WILLSON GIVES PARDONS

Frankfort, Ky., April 10.—[Special.]—The second whirlwind campaign for education in Kentucky will be launched June 27 and last through July 3. State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. G. Crabbe announced to-day that plans are being made for the most vigorous assault upon the entrenched ramparts of ignorance in the Commonwealth that has ever been made since Kentucky was admitted to the Union. The sum of $5,000 is to be spent during the week of the campaign, and not a penny will come out of the pockets of the taxpayers, it being furnished by the Southern Educational Board and by individuals who are interested in the work of bringing Kentucky to the front in its educational work.

Plans for the great campaign which is to be urged are as yet in the formative stage. Supt. Crabbe says that there will be fifty-five Kentucky speakers and five from other States, while on the list of workers there will be 119, or one from each county in the State. Not only will the speaking be done by workers in the educational ranks, but leaders in other walks of life, legal, professional and statesmen have consented to take part in the big movement.

Each of the sixty main speakers will cover two counties, while there will be a special educational rallying day for each county, when the subject of better education for the coming generation will be hammered home morning, noon and night. The people will be invited to come, bring their dinners in baskets and stay all day; then the work will be carried into the rural communities and nothing overlooked that will bring this important matter straight to the people.

Splendid results were accomplished in the first campaign of this kind, which was waged last fall. The campaign cost about $1,500, and that will not be a starter compared to the whirlwind campaign which will sweep over the State in the second effort.

Superintendent Crabbe says that the coming campaign will be inaugurated on Sunday, with a pulpit campaign, each minister of the gospel being asked to call the attention of the people to whom he talks to the great work which is being undertaken.

Retail Grocers To Meet.

Many notable men of the country have been invited to come to Frankfort to attend the State convention of the Retail Grocers' Association, which will begin here the first week in May. President Taft will be invited and invitations also will be sent to Dr. W. H. Wiley, Government food expert; Gov. Marshall, of Indiana, and Gov. Harmon, of Ohio. It is confidently expected that Dr. Wiley will be present, as he is a great friend of Col. E. H. Taylor, Jr., and probably will visit Col. Taylor. It is thought to be doubtful about President Taft coming, but some of the other notables will be here.

Forty-one booths have been sold in the exposition and food manufacturers will be well represented here with displays of their goods. Much interest is also shown in the meeting and a large attendance is expected. Elaborate entertainment will be provided for the visiting delegates and they will be given a boat ride up the Kentucky River, for one thing. There will also be a big banquet, at which Gov. Willson will be the toastmaster. The address of welcome will also be delivered by Gov. Willson. Frankfort grocers are doing everything in their power to make the meeting here one of the most successful ever held, and the prospects are that they will succeed.

Martin Sayman Pardoned.

Gov. Willson to-day granted a pardon for the rest of his term to Martin Sayman, an Ohio youth, who was convicted with a bunch of his associates of housebreaking at Mt. Sterling. He was sentenced to serve seven years in the penitentiary and has served thirty months of that time. Sayman didn't go into the house with his associates, but remained out and helped to convict them at the trial. The Governor says that under the circumstances he has served enough for the crime, but if he ever returns to Kentucky the pardon is void. The Governor also writes on the papers:

"I do not much hope that he will come to good—he is a bad youth and of evil ways and associates. His prison record is proof of this. The pardon is granted because I think he has served sufficiently under the circumstances, and that he may return to his mother in Cincinnati."

The Governor restored to the rights of citizenship Henry Cooper, of Boyd county, who served two years for grand larceny, and Ezra Ashcraft, of Estill, who was in the penitentiary four years for forgery. Both have proved themselves good citizens since their release.

Two Counties Reduced.

Two counties were passed on finally by the Board of Equalization this afternoon. Meade county, which was given a tentative raise of 5 per cent. on lands and personality, was reduced, the raise being only 5 per cent. Hancock county was raised 10 per cent. on lands and personality on the tentative assessment, but this was reduced to a raise of only 2 per cent. after representatives from that county had been heard by the board.

Pardon For Samuel Allen.

Gov. Willson this afternoon pardoned Samuel Allen, sent to the penitentiary from Floyd county for three years for malicious shooting. Allen killed John D. Begley in a general fight in Floyd county. Begley lived a year and eight days and the man who killed him therefore could not be tried for murder. During his trial, on a charge of malicious shooting, a man was killed in the courtroom, and this may have had effect on the jury. Allen's time is nearly out.

INDICTMENT AGAINST HASKELL IS QUASHED

JUDGE HOLDS GRAND JURY WAS ILLEGALLY CONSTITUTED.

PROSECUTOR WILL AGAIN SUBMIT LAND FRAUD CASES.

DECIDES ON TECHNICAL POINT.

Tulsa, Okla., April 10.—Gov. Charles N. Haskell, Oklahoma's first chief executive, and the six other prominent Oklahomans indicted by the Federal grand jury charged with fraud in Muskogee town lots, will not have to stand trial. The motion of the defendants to quash the indictments was upheld here to-day by Judge John A. Marshall, of Utah, in the United States Circuit Court.

The court in its decision, which was very lengthy, quashed the indictments on the ground that they were returned by a grand jury composed of twenty-three men under the Federal law, instead of by a jury of sixteen, as provided for by the Arkansas law, which was held to be in force in old Indian Territory by Federal enactment at the time when the alleged frauds were committed.

Sylvester Rush, special Assistant Attorney General, who prepared the cases for the Government, stated after the opinion was handed down that he would present the matter to the grand jury now in session.

The indictments against the defendants numbered thirteen, and they were returned at Muskogee after a lengthy grand jury investigation conducted by Mr. Rush. Witnesses were brought from Ohio, Michigan and other Eastern States.

The indictments charged conspiracy to defraud the Federal Government and the Creek Indian Nation in connection with the scheduling of Muskogee town lots in 1902.

Mr. Rush declared that Judge Marshall's opinion overturning the indictments was purely a decision on a technical point, and that it did not affect the standing of the Government's allegations. These charges, he said, would be pushed unrelentingly and without delay.

Following the decision of Judge Marshall quashing the indictments, the Government counsel wired the opinion to the Attorney General at Washington. No reply was received to-day, therefore it is stated the prosecution will not present the matter to the grand jury again before next Monday.

Leonard, president of the Kentucky Hotel Association, have been mailed to hotelkeepers throughout the State notifying them of a meeting of the association to be held at the Galt House April 15 and 16. The letter announces that the courtesies of the Southern Electrical Exposition have been extended to all who attend the meeting.

The purpose of the general invitation is to increase the membership of the association. The attraction of the exposition is believed to be a drawing card.

ELKS TO HAVE SOCIAL SESSION MONDAY NIGHT.

Wachtel, Walter Stone, Frank Eckert, Walter Goepper, Ed Baer, Charles Durr, Dr. Carl Johnson, Prof. Theodore Graf and William Kruse. A pleasing programme has been arranged for the occasion, which will include a short debate on "Women's Suffrage" between Smith T. Bailey, in the affirmative, and Laban Theips, in the negative. Prof. Theodore Graf, who has recently returned home from abroad, will play piano selections. Miss Mary Chenoweth, with Miss Beulah Taylor as accompanist, will be heard in several selections, including "May Morning," by Denza, and several selections from "The Three Twins." Fred Schymanski will impersonate "A German Senator" and Granville R. Barton will be heard in Scotch dialect. At the conclusion of the programme refreshments will be served, followed by dancing. The following have been invited to act as patronesses in assisting the reception committee: Mesdames Robert W. Brown, J. C. Schildt, M. J. Murphy, E. Wachtel, George L. Martin, J. E. Marrett, W. O. TAKE Kodol FOR Indigestion AND All Stomach Troubles

All are the result of undigested food remaining in the stomach and putting the whole system out of order—as it surely will. Kodol digests the food the way it does, because it contains all the digestive elements. If it contained only one or two of them (such as pepsin, etc.,) it could not be of so much help to the stomach as it is. And there is no question but that Kodol digests all food—anywhere, at any time. When it will digest every particle of all kinds of food, in a glass test-tube, it should have no difficulty in digesting food in your stomach. The next time you have indigestion or dyspepsia, sour stomach, pain in pit of the stomach, belchings, headaches, etc., will be an excellent time to prove, to your entire satisfaction, that Kodol will do just what is claimed for it.

Our Guarantee. Get a dollar bottle of Kodol. If you are not benefited—the druggist will at once return your money. Don't hesitate: any druggist will sell you Kodol on these terms. The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the 50c bottle. Kodol is prepared in the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

ERNEST BALL

Passes Away From Paralysis At Hot Springs, Ark.

KNOWN AS HANDLER OF FANCY SADDLE HORSES.

FREEZE AND FROST IN BLUEGRASS INJURES FRUITS.

AGED MAN INJURED BY FALL.

Lexington, Ky., April 10.—[Special.]—Ernest Ball, of Woodford county, the youngest member of the firm of Ball Brothers, died at the Hotel Rockefeller, Hot Springs, Ark., at 4 o'clock this morning after a long illness of paralysis. Mr. Ball was about 40 years old and was a member of one of the most prominent families in Central Kentucky. He was a son of the late D. M. Ball, who was one of the wealthiest and best-known citizens of Woodford county, and who, by the ties of blood and marriage, was connected with many of the most prominent people of the Bluegrass region.

In his early manhood Ernest Ball, with his brothers, D. M. Ball, Jr., and Howard Ball, formed the partnership of Ball Brothers, who for twenty years have been among the most successful breeders, trainers and exhibitors of saddle and show horses of Kentucky. Ernest Ball was an accomplished rider and driver, usually exhibiting the horses he trained in the show rings, and was in this way personally known to thousands of people, in addition to the numerous social friends in every large city of the union. He had handled and exhibited the show horses belonging to Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston millionaire, among them being Gypsy Queen and Queen Dorothy.

Mr. Ball was never married and is survived by his mother, his sisters, Mrs. D. L. Moore, of Harrodsburg; Mrs. Worth Harris, of Versailles; Mrs. Charlton Alexander, of Paris, and his brothers, John Dudley Ball and Howard Ball, of Woodford county. His brothers and sisters were at Mr. Ball's bedside when death came and will bring the body from Hot Springs to Woodford county, reaching Versailles Sunday evening, whence it will be taken to "Maple Hill," the country home of the family, four miles from Versailles on the Nicholasville pike for burial.

Falls From Street Car.

An aged man, believed to be John Gallagher, a resident of Burgin, Mercer county, fell from a street car about 11 o'clock this morning at the corner of Seventh and Limestone streets and has since been unconscious from the injuries received. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was found to be severely bruised about the head and face, severely cut on his forehead, his skull slightly fractured and his right hand badly crushed. Although his injuries are very serious it is not thought they will prove fatal.

The man is apparently about 65 or 70 years old and was well dressed. There were no papers or other means of identification in his pockets except a return ticket to Burgin, but investigation indicates that his name is John Gallagher and that his home is at Burgin. He was a passenger on the car and indicated that he wanted to get off at the corner of Seventh and Limestone streets, but as the car approached the corner he stepped off before it came to a stop, says the conductor.

Will Protest Against Increase.

County Judge Frank Bullock, at the head of the County Board of Equalization, and a delegation of other business men and county officials will go to Frankfort next Tuesday to appear before the State Board of Equalization to protest against the proposed increase of 20 per cent. on Fayette county's assessment.

The County Board of Equalization, which will accompany Judge Bullock, is composed of Mike Bowerman, Walter Boone, J. W. Clark, J. E. Phelps, C. E. Norman, J. G. Lyle, Rodes Estill and Leon Smith. Among the others who will go with the party are Col. R. A. Thornton, C. N. Manning, Deputy County Clerk Foust Foushee, Assessor David Reed and probably other local capitalists and business men.

Frost Damages Fruits.

The heavy frost and slight freeze of last night, following that of the night before, did some damage to such fruit as pears, plums and peaches, though the injury is not considered serious in this section. While a heavy fruit crop is predicted for this summer, the apples, it is said, will probably be an exception. The reason given for a comparative shortage in the apple crop is that during the months of August and September last fall the weather was so dry that the sap in the apple trees ran to such a low ebb as not to have the full vigor to throw out the bloom this spring that is necessary to produce a full crop. In a number of instances in this vicinity apple trees have shown no disposition to bloom at all or have put out a very weak, scattered bloom.

Magistrate W. B. Skinner this morning made out a claim for $115 to be paid to C. F. Estill for the loss of twenty-two sheep and five wounded ones. The sheep were killed by vicious dogs during the week. Claims will also be made out for Reuben Clark, J. S. Barnes, F. A. Christian and C. Asbury, who have also lost a number of sheep. A number of worthless dogs have been killed during the week by farmers in order to protect the sheep industry of the Bluegrass section.

WILL MOVE PLANTS HERE TO COMPLY WITH LAW.

Now that the contracts for the laying of $136,000 worth of asphalt streets have been approved by the General Council and Mayor Grinstead, and the firms to whom the work was awarded have been notified of this action, the Board of Public Works expects this branch of street improvement to be under way by June 1, at the latest. Part of the asphalt streets will be original construction and part reconstruction. The two firms which received the greater portion of the contracts have no asphalt plants in Louisville.

These two firms are the the McGovern Company, of Chicago, and the Marion Construction Company, of Indianapolis. It will be necessary for these companies to erect plants before they can begin laying streets. C. C. Stoll, of the Board of Public Works, said that these firms have movable plants, which will be shipped to Louisville at once and erected within a month's time.

"If these two companies," said Mr. Stoll, "see that they are to get a part of the work from time to time they will in all probability take steps to make their plants permanent before the end of the summer. There will be no difficulty in their getting down to work within a month and a half, as they have movable plants, which they will ship here and erect. The American Standard Asphalt Company, which got a small part of the contracts, already has a plant in Louisville, and may begin work before the end of the month. The Borbour Asphalt Company, which also has a few contracts, has a plant located here. The fact that the McGovern Company and the Marion Construction Company have to erect plants will not delay the work materially, as it is not well to start the work of laying asphalt streets before the summer is well-advanced and the season of showers is over. Rain injures asphalt streets in the making."

TAFT'S TERM TO HELP THE SOUTH

Declares Secretary of War Dickinson In Chicago.

Speaks At Banquet of the Southern Club.

Predicts Great Development In Next Four Years.

ROBERT LINCOLN TALKS.

Chicago, April 10.—Secretary of War Dickinson was the guest of honor and principal speaker at the banquet to-night of the Southern Club, held in the Auditorium Annex. As befitting the occasion, Mr. Dickinson's remarks touched principally on the relations of the Administration toward the South, he declaring that he was impressed with the belief that great good would come to that section from the Administration of President Taft. The next four years, Mr. Dickinson declared, should be a period of great development in the South, and economic and industrial conditions would exert a more profound influence in shaping the destinies of the South than they have hitherto. He spoke substantially as follows:

"The compliment of this reception, having relation, as it does, to my elevation to the council of the President of the United States, is, I am confident, meant as a tribute to him as well as to me, and it is right that it should be, for I am but the humble exponent by which he has expressed his good will for that part of our country to which you owe your birth, and to which you consecrate a love that no time nor distance can diminish.

"Many men could be found in the South who would more than measure up to the requirements of the office to which I have been called; but the ages produce only at rare intervals men whose hearts go out spontaneously to those who oppose their ambition, whose patriotism comprehends within its strivings for the public welfare impartially every part of the country, however affected by political differences, whose courage dares pursue an unexplored way which may invite harsh criticism and strong opposition, and whose wisdom is prescient to correctly interpret the spirit of the times.

Qualities Combined In Taft.

"Those rare qualities are combined in the President of the United States, who, judged by all the standards by which men are tried, gives such promise as justifies the American people in expecting all the national prosperity and happiness that can be vouchsafed by an able, wise, honest and fearless Administration. At times we have convictions founded more upon sentiment than upon knowledge, and nevertheless they are strong—yes, often even stronger than when resting upon known conditions which reasoning may dissipate as being without substance, or as inconclusive. I cannot give any definite conception of just how it will come about, but I am deeply impressed with the belief that great good is going to come to the South under the Administration of President Taft. While a cold, distant, unsympathetic President would not necessarily retard the progress of the South, it is certain that one with a warm, big heart, beating in unison with our hearts, a mind alert to discern, and a disposition keen to promote, what will redound to our welfare, a cheery smile that lifts tons will act like a tonic, inspiring hope and stimulating to high endeavor.

* * *

Anxious To Co-operate.

"No President could effectively help, and none would continue to be disposed to help, those who are repellant or coldly distant. There is certainly now a happy conjunction. We have a President who sincerely wishes to actively co-operate with us to promote our general welfare, and our people believe in him and give him their fullest confidence. If that were all the combination would lack essential quality. The people of the North, as is amply manifested by the public press, are in full harmony with the utterances of the President in respect of the South. This is an invaluable condition, for full welfare cannot come without their hearty approval and co-operation.

"The next four years should be a period of great development in the South. An era of general good feeling, emphasized by the great head of the Nation on the many occasions that will be presented to him, will give more confidence at home and abroad, and both are greatly needed. Capital will not continue to be alarmed as it has been in the past by unkind criticism, a higher respect for the law, a greater observance of order, should and will follow. The prevalence of a kindlier sentiment will bring about a greater tolerance of differences in opinion, and promote a freer discussion, which always brings enlightenment. The South has been much disposed to resent criticism from the outside and to stifle it at home. There can be no more fatal bar to progress. There will always be some there, as is always the case elsewhere, who prefer the sway of prejudice, who would rather continue conditions that foster appeals to ignorance and passion, who would rather rule in a stagnant civilization than be relegated to the obscurity that awaits them when better ideals prevail and a leadership that embraces in its patriotism the entire country, is successful.

Co-operation Instead of Individualism.

"Economic and industrial conditions will exert a more profound influence in shaping the destinies of the South than they have hitherto. More and more, are we realizing the necessity for co-operative exertion. The old civilization of the South in its nature fostered individualism and developed personal independence at the expense of communal interest. The plantation was a government witnin itself, where under the old regime everything was carried on upon an independent basis. There was very little general public co-operation. The schooling was largely through private tutors or the voluntary association of those of the same social class. Even the roads were largely built by the planters at their own expense. There was an almost all-pervading sense that each man must work out his own destiny. There were produced, under this system, a strength of character, a self-reliance and a personal independence and courage that have never been surpassed. Through such a personnel the Nation was greatly enriched by the services of great administrators of public affairs and national leaders produced by the South. But, on the other hand, there was a corresponding want of that development which advances a people through the influence of co-operative capital and the union of all civic forces for the promotion of the general welfare.

* * *

Chicago's Example.

"What more striking illustration has the world ever given of what may be accomplished than that furnished by the public-spirited people of Chicago, who have at all times and in all ways, in season and out of season, co-operated to advance its welfare. In its formative period, when a new railroad was needed, they got together, inspired by most intense public spirit, and never ceased their efforts until it became a reality. In every phase of industrial development they were always ready and eager to lend their united efforts to promote the public good, and now the spirit has projected beyond their own borders, and the question of improving our consular service is mooted by one of the leading clubs of Chicago, which has chosen that as its immediate and particular work and has inaugurated a plan of investigation and education on that subject.

"When the construction of the Panama Canal challenged the public attention a club of Chicago men had its forces and, without awaiting second-hand information, immediately went in force to the scene of activity to make their own investigations and form their own judgment. And so, in every way, co-operation, public spirit and civic duty have characterized the citizenship of Chicago. What more splendid testimonial could be given of their value than the phenomenal development in less than three quarters of a century from a trading post into a magnificent city of over two millions of inhabitants, which is now reaching out in its commercial activities to the uttermost parts of the earth.

"The South is developing and needs more to develop this spirit of co-operation. Although you who compose this society have left the South you can and will bear an important part in advancing its welfare. Just as Americans brought from England Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence and so advanced it as in turn to enrich the jurisprudence of the mother country, you who owe to the South your birth, the protection of your younger days and the high traditions with which she endowed you, can never divest yourselves of the duty to repay, as far as you can, the heritage which you have derived from her. Knowing as you do the conditions prevailing there, the long struggle which her people have made, their splendid contests for the maintenance of their civilization under circumstances at all times trying and sometimes seemingly hopeless, informed as you are also as to Northern views and impressions—some of them though earnestly entertained entirely erroneous, some of them entirely sound and just, though not altogether acceptable to our people—you are in a position to explain, to compose, to adjust, to accommodate differences of opinion and to bring about a better understanding. Our people are all in the main patriotic. They want to be fair and reasonable and just. If they seem to the contrary at times it is on account of a misunderstanding of the facts and not from a desire or willingness to do a wrong.

The South and the North.

"Sometimes it has seemed to me that the proper attitude for a man trained in the North, who lives in the South and understands both sections, is to be a Southern man when he is in the North and a Northern man when he is in the South; and, in the same way, that a Southern man, reared in the South and living in the North, should be a Southern man when he is in the North and a Northern man when he is in the South. And that is only to say that his disposition should always be to represent most fairly that part of the country which at the time may need a frank, just and courageous exponent of its better sentiments. Things are frequently just as they should be, if only they are properly understood.

"This is illustrated by an experience of a friend of mine, a distinguished Chicagoan who was South shortly after the Spanish War. He met an old Confederate soldier and said to him, 'There is one thing about this war that brings me great content, and that is that it has brought the two sections of the country together.' The old Confederate, with great emphasis, startled him by saying, 'No, sir; you are entirely mistaken. The Spanish War has not brought the two sections together.' My friend was very much surprised and thought he had stirred up an unreconstructed 'Reb,' later and answered, 'I beg your pardon, sir, I thought that it had.' The old soldier said, 'No, sir; the two sections of the country have long since been united in a common patriotism and the Spanish War simply demonstrated that fact.'"

Robert Lincoln Speaks.

Gen. Fred D. Grant received great applause, but the demonstration of the evening was given to Robert T. Lincoln, the son of the martyred President. Mr. Lincoln arose at the last and said:

"It has been with deep gratitude that I have listened to the kind words of Judge Dickinson regarding the Civil War and my father's connection with it. My health has prevented my speaking in public, but I must say a word on this auspicious occasion.

"I was old enough at the time of the war to be a young officer and I remember enough to recall several incidents correctly. I well remember the spirit in which the victory was accepted by the Southerner and held by the Northerner. Several of us were sitting on the porch of the McLean house, where Gen. Lee was confined, when some of Sheridan's scouts came dashing up, waving Confederate battle flags and shouting for Grant.

"They wished to show their enthusiasm in their victory. We dashed from the porch straight for the scouts.

"'Back,' we shouted, 'Gen. Lee is in that house,' and those scouts dropped their battle flags, turned their horses and dashed away. They would not have it appear that they were trying to humiliate Lee. They were true Americans.

"National wounds have been bound up with brotherly love—American brotherhood—which is shown here to-night and was shown during the recent centennial given in honor of my father's birth. It was a wonderful celebration, and I have been greatly affected by it, especially from the Eastern and Southern demonstrators and the eloquence poured forth by men of the South, especially at Atlanta, the city destroyed during the war. No greater honor could have been done my father and I am glad to thank you for it now."

THE FUNERAL OF MARION CRAWFORD

WILL BE HELD IN CHURCH WHICH HE SUPPORTED.

BODY WILL TEMPORARILY REST IN CEMETERY CHAPEL.

LAST HOURS OF NOVELIST.

Sorrento, April 10.—The funeral of F. Marion Crawford, the American novelist, who died here yesterday, will not be held until Monday, for the reason that the church does not permit the celebration of the funeral mass during Holy Week. The services, which will be private and simple, will be held in the Capucin church, to which Mr. Crawford made generous contributions.

Mr. Crawford, who was deeply religious, received all the comforts of religion during his last days. The body will be placed temporarily in the chapel of the little cemetery of Sant-Agnello until the will has been examined and it is learned whether Mr. Crawford expressed in it any wishes regarding his last resting place.

Mr. Crawford's physician said to-day that his patient had died of sudden cardiac paralysis following extreme weakness resulting from pleurisy. He suffered greatly from asthma, but seemed to find relief in oxygen. Up to the last moment Mr. Crawford wanted to put his papers in order, and almost his last act was to read the manuscript of an unfinished romance, "The White Sister," to a member of his family. He leaves forty completed works, and he had gathered together material for his masterpiece, an exhaustive account of the Medieval Communes of Italy, four volumes of which already have been completed.

The family has received hundreds of telegrams of condolence from all parts of the world. It has sent communications to Cardinal Gibbons and a few other friends in America. Several of the private houses in Sorrento have raised flags at half-mast and the mourning is general.

MISS OVERSTREET AND TSCHAIKOWSKY.

Features of Programme For the Symphony Concert Friday Afternoon.

Since his death in 1893 no composer has been more prominent in concert programmes of Europe and America than Peter Illitch Tschaikowsky, and to-day there are no compositions that engage public interest more than do those from his pen. His compositions are to make up the whole of the programme to be presented by the Louisville Symphony Orchestra at the Masonic Theater next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, which announcement proclaims the exalted quality of the work to be given and challenges for the orchestra most critical judgment. Gratz Cox will be at his old place in the conductor's chair and Miss Corneille Overstreet, Kentucky's distinguished artist, will be the soloist. She will bring her splendid technique and mentality to bear upon the B-flat Minor Concerto for piano and orchestra, work which she has played with decided success in Europe and America, and she will be a strong feature of the concert. The programme will be as follows:

MISS CORNEILLE OVERSTREET.

Symphony No. VI (Pathetic)—
- I. Adagio; allegro.
- II. Allegro con grazio.
- III. Allegro molto vivace.
- IV. Adagio lamentoso.

Concerto for Piano—B-flat Minor, with Orchestra—
- I. Andante non troppo; allegro con spirito; meno mosso.
- II. Andante simplice.
- III. Allegro confuoco.

Miss Corneille Overstreet.

Casse-Noisette Suite, Op. 71a—
- I. Overture Miniature.
- II. Danse de la Fee Dragee.
- III. Danse Russe.
- IV. Danse Arabe.
- V. Danse Chinoise.
- VI. Danse des Mirlitons.
- VII. Valse des Fleurs.

The Pathetic Symphony was completed shortly before the death of Tschaikowsky and it is supposed to speak his farewell message to the world. Some of the most exquisite melodies in the whole field of music occur in its score. It also embraces in its second movement one of the curiosities of music, a composition in five-fourths time—that is, five beats to the measure. The Casse-Noisette Suite is a series of dances arranged from a children's ballet based upon Alexander Dumas' version of one of Hoffman's tales. The ballet has to do with fairies and princes, including a certain nutcracker, which is by fairy magic transformed into a prince and who runs away with the little heroine of the story. The seats go on sale to-morrow at the Masonic Theater.

DECLARES DEAD SON FORGED HIS NAME.

Aged Indiana Farmer Files Suit Against Holders of Spurious Notes.

Lebanon, Ind., April 10.—Joseph S. Miller, who died or committed suicide last week, had forged his father's name to notes amounting to $25,000. The father, Matthew G. Miller, a farmer of this county, has filed suit in the local court against the Farmer's State Bank of Lebanon and sixteen other individuals, holders of the notes.

Miller, who is eighty-two years old and in feeble health, recites in his petition that he fears that unless he is able to prove the forgery now, his mind shall become clouded by illness and the holders of the notes will close on him and leave him penniless. The court has ordered that the defendants appear with the notes on April 22.

Mayor Ousted By Court.

Topeka, Kas., April 10.—The State Supreme Court to-day rendered a judgment of ouster against Mayor J. P. Harsha, of Hutchinson, all of the city officials and the city itself. The charge against the Mayor and other officials was that they permitted violations of the prohibitory law and that "joints" and disorderly houses were given police protection upon payment of a monthly fine.

Colossal Suit Sale!

An event that will again emphasize our commanding position in the garment trade. An opportunity to pick and choose from nearly five hundred new Spring Suits at the above price for choice.

We should like to have every lady compare these dresses with those in other stores at this price. We will be satisfied with the verdict. Such splendid garments cannot be found at even $40.00.

We have never conducted a fake sale. We have never misrepresented values. We have never juggled prices. During our eighteen years of honorable trading we have held some notable sales, but this Twenty-five Dollar Suit Sale is going to overtop all, and this is how it happened.

Our Mr. Besten spent the latter part of March in the New York markets. He had an opportunity to "clean house" for several of our favorite manufacturers, big creators who sell no other Louisville store but this. They had many short lengths of material, some instances only enough for one suit, and ranging from this up to four or five of a kind. These materials from the several firms were made up in the styles most suited to our exclusive trade. It took about two weeks to do this.

Now they are here and will go on sale at 8:30 to-morrow morning, and we say again that their equal cannot be found in this city at $40.00.

Petticoats

This is an unusual price for such a meritorious article. In fact, there are two styles to go in the lot.

The first one has a three sectional flounce with cluster of fine tucks. The lower section is elaborately embroidered in silk, being an eyelet design with scalloped edge. This Petticoat has a tucked underlay.

The other is a strictly tailored style. Has a ten sectional flounce trimmed with tailored bias folds. Extra deep underlay.

Both styles are made of excellent taffeta silk; fine lustrous finish, and at the start we will have both in black, white and eight or ten new spring shades to match the suits. Such quality was never offered under $6.00. While the present supply lasts you have choice at $3.95.

Details.

The Cloth Dresses come in serge, the most delightful mannish mixtures and imported worsteds, the new Prunella cloth, uncut cheviots, shadow stripes and novelty weaves.

They may be had in all shades from black to white and through a boundless profusion of rich colorings.

The coats are about 40 inches long; some are severely tailored; others are trimmed; cutaway styles, semi-fitting effects, snug-fitting hipless models and, in fact, everything that is new and good will be found.

In the one-piece Gowns, of which there are upward of one hundred, you get plain shades of taffeta silk, fancy stripes, checks, solid black, foulard silks, the new Matoria rep silk, satin duchess and messaline.

These exquisite Princess Dresses will prove a fascinating feature of this sale, and remember you have pick and choice in Coat Suits and Dresses at

Waists
$4.85

We have 379 Net Waists to go in a monster sale at this price. You have choice of white or cream net, and a few in the new colors. There are some eight or ten different styles in the assortment. All of them are made over a silk lining.

The patterns of net vary a great deal, affording a wide range to choose from. Some of them are plain with stylish knife plaits all over; others have lace insertion in simple designs, and still others are most elaborately trimmed in lace and large showy medallions.

This Waist sale is only second in importance to the Suit sale, and will command a great deal of attention on account of the superior values and remarkably low prices, for there are waists among them that could not be bought in other stores at $8.00. Of course, we have all sizes at the start. Help yourself at $4.85.

BYSTANDER SHOT DURING QUARREL AT EARLINGTON.

Peter Miles Mortally Wounded By a Bullet Intended For Another Man.

Earlington, Ky., April 10.—[Special.]—Peter Miles, an estimable citizen of Earlington, was dangerously wounded this afternoon during a difficulty which occurred between John Wilson and Henry G. Jones at this place.

Miles is in St. Bernard Hospital tonight undergoing an operation with four surgeons in attendance. He is a man of fine physique and perfect health. He was shot in the abdomen. Jones, who is a deputy marshal of Earlington, says he had to shoot in self-defense. Wilson was slightly wounded in the arm. Miles was fifty feet from the combatants and had no connection with the difficulty.

The operation has developed that Miles' intestines are perforated in several places and the chances for his recovery are slight. Jones is under bond.

SOLDIERS ASKED FOR NIGHT RIDERS

TENNESSEE OFFICIALS CALL ON GOVERNOR FOR PROTECTION.

ATTEMPT TO LIBERATE PRISONERS AT WAVERLY FEARED.

RIFLES IN HANDS OF LAWLESS

Nashville, Tenn., April 10.—Night rider depredations in Humphreys county have caused the authorities there to appeal to Gov. Patterson for military protection. Judge W. L. Cook and Attorney General John B. Bowman, of the Ninth judicial circuit, visited the Governor to-night and formally requested that he send a company of State troops to the scene at once. The Governor has the matter under advisement and is expected to take some definite action to-morrow.

The officials are pressing in their request. Extreme violence is feared and probably an attempt to liberate certain prisoners at Waverly under indictment for night rider outrages. These operations in Humphreys county have been in connection with the peanut growing industry. Forty-five indictments were returned at the last term of the Circuit Court and eighteen men are in jail here and at Waverly, bail having been denied them.

One of the offenses was the whipping of a Justice of the Peace so mercilessly that he begged that he be killed. Conditions have become so alarming that one of the county officials has received a note telling him his life would be taken "court week." Several prominent citizens who have been active in assisting the authorities in efforts to suppress the lawlessness have also been warned to desist. It is also said that a number of rifles have been recently purchased here and distributed among the riders in the affected district.

The collections for the first ten days of this month amount to $378,942.05 and for the same period of last year the collections were $342,712.09.

The collections in the office yesterday were as follows: Lists, $42.11; beer, $2,039; whisky, $37,507.34; cigars, $66.15; tobacco, $386.28; special tax, $41.67; case stamps, $12; total, $40,118.55.

How I Keep My Hair Young and Beautiful

By Mabel Graham.

I know that every woman desires beautiful hair, and if they will follow my rules they will have as long, soft and fluffy hair as I have. In the first place I wash my head well once or twice a month with a shampoo made as follows: Take half of a ten-cent cake of pure castile soap, shave fine, dissolve this in half a pint of water with aid of gentle heat; when dissolved beat the yolk of one egg and juice of one lemon; stir until cold. Rub a little of this into the roots of the hair, and rinse thoroughly with warm water and dry. I also use a quinine hair tonic freely, which keeps the scalp clean and the hair in a beautiful and healthy condition, and is especially good for dandruff and falling hair. I find the best tonic can be made by mixing a half pint of alcohol with half a pint of water and adding one ounce of beta quinol (liquid). This makes a quinine hair tonic better than the high-priced imported makes, and a whole pint only costs 65 to 75 cents. I am sure if every lady will try this recipe they will always have young and beautiful hair, and plenty of it.

NIGHT RIDERS ACTIVE AGAIN IN CALLOWAY

ALSO BURN PROPERTY NEAR TENNESSEE LINE.

BLOODHOUNDS FAIL TO RUN DOWN CULPRITS.

JUDGE PATTERSON TALKS.

Murray, Ky., April 10.—Night riders destroyed plant beds on the farm of Clarence Penny, near Murray, last night. Also the barns and stables of Gentry Miller, who lives in Tennessee, near the State line, were burned.

Bloodhounds had been sent from Murray to the scene of the burning before the report of the depredation in Calloway county was received.

Although Penny had sold his 1908 tobacco through the association, he had been active in circulating petitions asking for loose leaf sales and this is believed to be the cause of the visitation.

Judge Patterson, of Calloway, said tonight that he will not tolerate any lawlessnesses in the county and he believes the county authorities will be able to handle any situation that may arise, although he does not anticipate any disorder of a general nature.

"I will not suffer people's property to be wantonly destroyed," he said. "Any marauders will be hunted down and punished at whatever cost."

It was the first plant bed scraped in Calloway this year.

A message from Paris, Tenn., to-night said the bloodhounds did not take the trail of incendiaries, who burned the barn of Gentry Miller last night.

"I heard no one around by barn last night," said Mr. Miller to-day "and the first knowledge I had of the burning was when the flames had enveloped the barn. I lost two horses and all my hay and provender. The loss is between $500 and $1,000, with no insurance. I have not been here long, but have not yet joined the association. I do not know who set fire to the barn, but we have the dogs here and will put them on the trail right away."

The barn of Will Simmons, an independent farmer, was burned about three months ago. He lost his horses also.

COLORED EDUCATOR TO MAKE ADDRESS HERE.

Washington spoke to the negroes of this city on educational matters, the members of the race will be given a lecture by another colored educator Saturday night at Quinn chapel, Methodist Episcopal church, Ninth and Walnut streets. The subject of his address will be "What the Negro Has Done for Himself."

Dr. W. H. Perry, colored, president of the institute, will act as master of ceremonies, and the Musergia Singing Society will furnish a musical programme from selections from Dudley Buck, Mendelssohn and Gade. Fifty voices have been trained for the occasion, and the chorus will be under the direction of Prof. G. M. McClellan, colored.

ANSWER TO SUIT

Charges Plaintiff's Attorneys With Unprofessional Acts.

COMES IN RESPONSE TO ACTION TO ANNUL SETTLEMENT.

POPHAM & WEBSTER, LAW FIRM, FIGURING IN CASE.

RESULT OF OLD ACCIDENT.

Serious charges are made against a firm of local lawyers in the course of the answer of the B. and O. S-W. Railroad Company to a suit in Judge Kirby's court by which the annulment of a settlement in a damage suit and leave to reinstitute the acton is sought. The firm of lawyers in question is Popham & Webster and the suit is that of Cora Frances Courcier against the Louisville and Northern Railway and Lighting Company, the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railroad Company and the Kentucky and Indiana Bridge and Railroad Company.

The original action grew out of a collision at Thirty-first street and the approach to the K. and I. bridge. The plaintiff was on her way home to New Albany when the accident occurred and was injured. Suit was brought against the defendants named and before it was tried out the B. and O. S-W. settled directly with the plaintiff. What took place thereafter until suit was filed with the object of renewing the action is given from the defendant company's point of view in its answer filed yesterday.

* * *

Text of Railroad's Answer.

The answer of the B. and O. S-W. railroad in full is as follows:

Comes the defendant, Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railroad Company, and for answer herein says it is not true that between the 2d day of May and the 1st day of July, 1908, the agent of this defendant or of its codefendants, or of either of them, by false or fraudulent representations upon which the plaintiff relied, procured a settlement with the plaintiff; not true that counsel for plaintiff in said action referred to in the petition herein did not see the plaintiff between the time said alleged fraudulent settlement was made and the 9th day of July, 1908; not true that upon information of one of defendant's counsel that a settlement had been made with the plaintiff, plaintiff's counsel in the action referred to in the petition, at the request of counsel for the defendants, or relying upon the information procured from said attorney that a settlement had been made, without authority from the plaintiff, or without having communicated with plaintiff, signed an order dismissing said action settled as to the three defendants; not true that said order was entered by counsel for defendants on July 3, 1908.

* * *

Settlement of Damage Claim.

Second—Further answering, defendant says:

The plaintiff did receive some slight injuries at the time and under the circumstances recited, and thereby acquired a claim against this defendant, which it was ready and anxious to adjust without the necessity of litigation.

Thereafter the plaintiff was solicited by Popham & Webster, practicing lawyers of Louisville, Ky., to employ them to prosecute her said claim against this defendant, and they induced the plaintiff to enter into a champertous and illegal contract with them, whereby the plaintiff's claim against this defendant was placed in their hands for collection. By the terms of said contract, the plaintiff agreed to pay Popham & Webster one-half of any sum collected if suit was instituted, and one-third of any sum collected by way of compromise. If nothing was collected, nothing was to be paid for the services of Popham & Webster.

Thereafter the said Popham & Webster made no bona fide attempt to compromise the plaintiff's claim, but, knowing that defendant was willing to pay a reasonable amount, they made extravagant demands which they knew would be rejected, and thus furnish them an excuse for instituting an action, thereby increasing the measure of their compensation.

* * *

Dealt Directly With Plaintiff.

An action having been instituted, and this defendant being informed of the unprofessional conduct of the plaintiff's said attorneys in soliciting and securing the champertous and illegal contract aforesaid, did not conceive that said attorneys were entitled to the courtesy of being dealt with or recognized in its efforts to adjust and settle the plaintiff's claim, and for this reason it ignored said attorneys and negotiated directly with the plaintiff with a view to such adjustment, and found her willing and anxious to compromise and settle her claim on a basis that was satisfactory to defendant, and a compromise and settlement was made by the payment of $400 in cash on the 24th day of May, 1908, and the plaintiff, in consideration thereof, released this defendant from all claims and demands on account of the injuries sustained by her, and in writing directed her attorneys, Popham & Webster, to dismiss, settled, the action they had instituted for her in this court.

* * *

Refuse To Dismiss Action.

Defendant thereupon presented to plaintiff's said attorneys, Popham & Webster, the written release of the plaintiff, and her written direction to them to dismiss said action as settled, and requested them to comply with said direction. Said Popham & Webster refused to dismiss said action unless this defendant would pay to them a sum equal to that paid to their client—$400—and exhibited their written contract with plaintiff hereinbefore referred to.

Defendant was advised that because of the unprofessional conduct of the said Popham & Webster in soliciting employment and encouraging and inciting unnecessary litigation, and because of the agreement of said Popham & Webster to maintain the plaintiff in the prosecution of her action, and that defendant was under no obligation to pay them anything, but, nevertheless, defendant, by way of compromise, offered to pay them the sum of $200 in full of their claims under said contract.

* * *

Dismissal of First Action.

After a long delay the said Popham & Webster, on the 9th day of July, 1908, accepted said offer of $200, and as plaintiff's attorneys, caused an order to be entered dismissing her action as settled.

Between the payment of $400 to the plaintiff on May 24, 1908, and the payment of $200 to her attorneys on July 9, 1908, the plaintiff and her attorneys had frequent opportunity for and did have conferences about the compromise aforesaid, and they kept and retained the money so paid to them as aforesaid.

* * *

Decision To Renew Suit.

Afterwards the said Popham & Webster importuned the plaintiff to repudiate the compromise she had made and to allow them to institute this action to annul it and to renew the action which she had settled and dismissed, and they prevailed on the plaintiff to enter into a contract for said purposes. By the terms of said contract, said Popham & Webster were to receive a large portion of any sum they might recover, and to receive nothing if nothing was collected.

Defendant says that the said Popham & Webster, to maintain and aid the plaintiff in the prosecution of this action, agreed to and did provide the sum of $600 for the purpose of tendering back to defendant the amount paid by it as aforesaid and to keep said tender good.

* * *

Tender of $600 To Railroad.

Plaintiff had no money to tender to defendant and her said attorneys to encourage her to repudiate the settlement made with defendant and to maintain her in the prosecution of this unconscionable action, agreed to and did provide the said money and tendered it to defendant on the 8th day of March, 1909. Said tender being refused, this suit was instituted by said attorneys for plaintiff in pursuance of and is being prosecuted under the said illegal and champertous contract between plaintiff and her said attorneys.

Defendant says this action ought not to be maintained because it has been set on foot by such unprofessional conduct on the part of members of the bar of this court as degrades the bar and brings it into public contempt; because it is being prosecuted under an agreement between plaintiff and her counsel, which involves the commission by said attorneys of a misdemeanor, viz., maintenance.

* * *

"Violation of Public Morals."

Because it is an unconscionable effort to set aside an agreement deliberately and fairly entered into between the plaintiff and this defendant, and which was deliberately approved of by her counsel in this action, who demanded, received and kept the benefits thereof accruing to them, and afterward importuned, solicited and advised the plaintiff to repudiate said agreement and offered to maintain and have maintained her in her efforts to do so, in other ways than by the rendition of professional services; because the conduct of plaintiff and her said attorneys in the institution and prosecution of this action is wantonly in violation of good morals and public policy.

Wherefore, having fully answered, this defendant prays to be hence dismissed, with its costs herein expended and for all proper relief.

A. C. Popham, of the firm of lawyers, said last night that the answer was filed for publication purposes.

BAILEY SCORES CIVIL SERVICE

Texas Senator Exposes Hypocrisy of Sham.

Has No Place In a Free Government.

Life Tenure Is Only For the Judiciary.

MEN WHO EAT THE TAXES.

Washington, April 10.—[Special.]—Senator Bailey, of Texas, lost his anti-civil service amendment to the census bill to-day, but he had the satisfaction of knowing that he delivered a speech that was Democratic throughout and met with the party sympathy of a minority of the Senators on both sides.

The influence of the President prevented any Republican votes from being cast for the amendment. The Texas Senator did not embarrass the Republicans by calling for a record vote, but he did have a good deal to say with reference to the reports which are, of course, accurate, that the President would veto the bill if the civil service provision were eliminated.

Senator Bailey fully exposed the hypocrisy of the whole civil service sham.

"I venture to say," said he, "that under the old system when men were appointed, if you please to call it such, under a spoils system, a vast majority of the men who obtained these offices were as well qualified, both by character and capacity, to discharge their duties as the people who have obtained them since then under a competitive examination. It is true that many of those who were appointed in the old time could not stand the examinations which are now prescribed, but that does not signify that they were not qualified either by intelligence or by character for the work.

* * *

Civil Service and Congress.

"If no man is qualified to discharge the duties of these offices except men who are able to stand these examinations then I inquire what is to become of the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States? Not ten men in this body can to-morrow pass a civil service examination with a respectable average."

"I would infinitely rather have a man of intelligence and sterling force employed about any business of this Government than one did not enjoy the benefit of an education than to have an educated man without intelligence and without force. I call the country to witness that the administration of the Government to-day is neither cleaner nor more efficient than it was in the older and better days. But conceding that it is that does not end the controversy. What results grow out of this? Two results, and each result, in my opinion, is contrary to the essential principles and genius of free institutions. As certain as the world stands the civil service system eventuates in a life tenure of office.

No Place For Life Tenure.

"There is no place in a free Government like ours for life tenure save and except only the judiciary where the Constitution has ordained it. Not only does it eventuate in a life tenure, but it must likewise eventuate in an officeholding class, a class of people whose interest is apart from and sometimes in conflict with the great interest of the American people.

"The interest of men who eat the taxes is frequently contrary to the interest of the men who pay the taxes. Not only does it mean life tenure and an officeholding class, but these results lead inevitably to a civil pension list. Not only does this civil service law produce these bad results to the country, but it produces a mischief to the very men who are the beneficiaries of it. It teaches them thriftlessness, it teaches them improvidence, it inculcates in them extravagance. Your civil service system will breed a race of officeholding spendthrifts. If these offices were open to men it would stimulate the interest of the citizens in every political contest by the very fact that the holder of the office knows that with a reversal of political control he must go back into the body of citizenship, which compels him to keep in touch with the citizens. We have transferred the political boss to the department boss and as between the two I will take the political boss, who is here to-day and gone to-morrow."

DISCUSS PLANS

FOR ENTERTAINING COMMERCIAL TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Hold Annual Meeting Here Next December and Several Hundred Delegates May Attend.

Ways and means for entertaining the National Commercial Teachers' Association, which meets in Louisville in December, were the purpose of a meeting of the executive committee of that organization held at the Galt House yesterday. The meeting was presided over by Prof. Enos Spencer, chairman.

Plans for raising funds to entertain the several hundred delegates were discussed, and it was decided to secure some noted lecturers and to give some amateur theatrical performances for the purpose of raising money. All the commercial schools of the city will contribute to the general fund. The organization was invited to Louisville at the last general convention held in Indianapolis last December, the invitation being extended by Capt. J. T. Gaines, of the Commercial High School, and Prof. Enos Spencer.

The meeting yesterday was attended by H. M. Lockyear, president of the National Association, of Evansville, Ind. He expressed himself as well pleased with the outlook for a banner meeting in Louisville. This association is composed of representatives of the commercial schools throughout the country, and delegates from all over the United States will attend.

The occasion was closed with a banquet at the Galt House last night, given by the executive committee to all the commercial school teachers of the Falls Cities. Forty-five attended, many of them responding to toasts with appropriate talks. Some of the speakers and their subjects were:

J. B. Howard, "The Significance of the December Meeting;" H. M. Lockyear, "Doing Our Neighbors Some Good;" Capt. Gaines, "How We Are Going To Entertain the National Commercial Teachers;" Prof. Krieger, "Benefit of Annual Dinners For Our Local Teachers;" Prof. Clarke, "Getting Together In Louisville;" J. A. Hiner, "Epoch-making In the Commercial Schools of the South;" R. H. Lindsey, "The Advantages of National Conventions."

Mrs. J. T. Gaines gave a pleasant recitation of "The Deestrict School." Others who made short talks were Misses Reid and Zieglebauer, of New Albany.

The executive committee is composed of Enos Spencer, chairman, Louisville; J. B. Howard, Cincinnati; J. D. Bruner, Indianapolis, and Prof. Keisling, New Albany.

Y. M. I. Dances.

A committee composed of leading members of the Trinity Council, Y. M. I., has been named to arrange for a number of dances to be given by the council on various dates. The dances will be given at the council's new clubhouse, Baxter and Morton avenues. The first of the series will be given to-morrow night. Wednesday, April 28, and May 12, have been selected as dates for other dances.

FARMER SHOOTS MAN IN WOODFORD COUNTY

ROBERT CARROLL MORTALLY WOUNDS JAMES OWEN AT PINCKARD.

Versailles, Ky., April 10.—[Special.]—At Pinckard, six miles south of Versailles, this afternoon, James M. Owen, 50 years old, a blacksmith, was shot four times and probably fatally wounded by Robert Carroll, a farmer, aged about 45.

According to a telephone message from Pinckard, Carroll was drunk, and became enraged at Owen when the latter refused to talk to him. He started toward Owen with a knife. The latter grabbed a hammer, at which Carroll drew his pistol and began firing. After the first shot, which entered Owen's left shoulder, Owen ran, and three other shots entered his back, two passing through his body. Owen has a family.

Carroll was arrested and brought here at 9 o'clock.

Skin and Blood Diseases Banished

The Blood Quickly Purified and the Skin Healed By Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

The importance of the blood to the physical system is apparent to everyone. It contains in itself all the elements necessary for the nourishment and reconstruction of the tissues of the body, these elements being absorbed from the food in the stomach.

The blood is the greatest circulating medium in existence. It is the channel of transportation in the body, not only of nutritive supplies to the tissues, but also of the consumed and worthless materials that have fulfilled their purpose and are to be ejected from the body.

It frequently happens that the blood becomes charged with impurities absorbed from the stomach, intestines and kidneys, and which, if it is unable to eliminate through the usual channels, it sends out through the pores of the skin in the form of pimples, blackheads and various skin eruptions.

The skin is composed of two layers, known as the scarf-skin, or cuticle, and the true skin, or derma. The number of pores in the skin is estimated to be 2,800 to the square inch, or a total of about 7,000,000 in the entire system, and if put in one continuous tube would measure twenty-eight miles in length. About one-fifth of the impurities of the body are eliminated through these pores.

If the scarf-skin, which is constantly being thrown off, should for any reason collect and block up the pores, skin diseases such as furuncles or boils, carbuncles, acne, lichen, etc., are certain to occur.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers is the ideal remedy for keeping the blood free from impurities and the skin devoid of eruptions, no matter what the cause may be, as the wafers cleanse the entire system, and act generally as well as locally. The principal ingredient of this remedy is calcium sulphide, which is a standard U. S. P. preparation, and its powerfully-alterative, blood-purifying and skin-healing properties are well known to all physicians and druggists.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers act mildly upon the liver, kidneys and intestines, and powerfully upon the blood and skin, eliminating impurities of every nature, healing all skin diseases and building up rich, red blood and rendering the complexion rosy and healthy.

Obtain a box of this powerful remedy from your druggist if you are suffering from such diseases as pimples, blackheads, boils, carbuncles, tetter, herpes, erythema, urticaria, rascols, nettle rash, hives, ringworm, etc., and you will be surprised at the alacrity with which the system is rid of these troubles. He will sell you a package for 50 cents, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

These also have been purchased under price with a view of making this the greatest suit sale for April business we have ever held, and a comparison of these suits at $20.00 with anything shown at $30.00 would be a just comparison.

Tailored Suits at $35, $50, $65.

Our showing of handsome Tailored Suits in two and three-piece styles, in the finest of Ottoman, prunella and fancy suitings, is exceptionally strong. Several new models which we particularly feature to-morrow are the exact reproductions of the new Parisian ideas in style and material, and are shown for the first time to-morrow.

Neckwear.

The success of our Neckwear Department has been phenomenal. The quality and style we are selling at 25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00 have been a revelation to neckwear buyers. Everyone tells us that we could easily get one-third more for them. Jabots, Dutch Collars, Ties and Stocks from 25c upward.

Dresses that would regularly sell at $25.00. Special, $12.50.

The majority of them are regular $5.00 values, and some of them even more. Another lot which we are selling at $1.75 contains mostly $3.00 and $3.50 values.

Linen Waists at $1.75, $2.50, $3.00 and $5.00.

Millinery.

Another one of our new departments which has been crowned with immediate success. There is a reason, and that reason is the styles and prices. Hats from $5.00 up. Styles so far above the ordinary that they have created a sensation.

Monday we will sell Pattern Hats and French models at $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00, which were sold earlier for double.

CAMPAIGN

For Funds To Erect Business Women's Club

TO BE STARTED IN LOUISVILLE TO-MORROW.

STRUCTURE TO BE COMPLETE IN EVERY DETAIL.

GOOD WORK OF ORGANIZATION.

[Communicated.]

Right in touch with the constructive "new-time" in the affairs of Louisville, and ready to aid in the most modern and progressive way possible, one of the most potent factors in the business world—i. e., the business woman—the Business Women's Club, of Louisville, is planning to erect one of the most complete and commodious clubhouses in the country.

Starting in the most modest and unassuming way imaginable some eleven years ago, the Business Women's Club has demonstrated, by reason of its varied activities and splendid successes, its patience in overcoming powerful obstacles and its superb record of results, that it is one of the most powerful agencies in the civic, social and economic life of the city. It has been, from its inception, self-supporting, conducted on sound business principles, and withal ministering in a thousand ways to the comfort, health, happiness and general tone of the business women of Louisville.

To hundreds of women it has been the only real roofTree they have known—it has meant "home" in all that word implies, and a brief hour or so spent within its cheerful domain has often proved an oasis in an otherwise dreary desert through which many a self-supporting woman has had to pass.

The club has prospered to such an extent that it now owns the building it occupies and has $16,000 in its treasury ready to be invested in the new building. The building now occupied is old and in no way suited to the scope and influence which the club might exert in proper quarters. The lunchroom is not properly equipped, the accommodations which may be provided for business women are meager in the extreme, the gymnasium and library compelled to fight against the severest handicaps, and it is the really marvelous results which have been achieved in the face of such difficulties which give such radiant promise of the future when the new building will furnish adequate accommodations and facilities.

Valuable Building Site.

The building site now owned by the club has a valuation of $50,000, while there is in the treasury over $16,000. The plans for the new building contemplate a structure of five stories, with commodious lunchroom, gymnasium and swimming pool, library, restrooms and sixty rooms to be rented to business women at varying prices, as well as room for transient occupants. In addition there will be a rest-tory, where clean, cheerful, comfortable quarters will be provided for the girl just starting in on a self-supporting career, or for the woman whose small salary will not permit of her engaging an entire room. On the top floor of the clubhouse will be a perfectly equipped hospital which will obviate the necessity of the business woman living at the club being forced to go to an infirmary and pay rates which she is financially unable to do.

Because of the fact that this club will step into the field and do for the self-supporting woman of to-day what every employer would like to see done—what many employers, in fact, have been trying to do to the best of their ability—it is hoped and expected that the business men of Louisville will rally to the support of the campaign which is to be inaugurated to-morrow to secure the necessary funds for the erection of the new building.

* * *

Three-Weeks' Campaign.

This campaign will last for three weeks. The building fund committee, of which Mrs. Helm Bruce is chairman, has opened headquarters at the Business Women's Club, where Miss Sallie Gibson, formerly connected with the Galt House, and now engaged as secretary during the campaign, will have her office. Plans for the new building are on display. The membership of the club is divided into teams, each working with might and main for the success of the campaign.

It is hoped that every man, woman and child in Louisville will contribute to the success of this campaign, in work, money or influence, for this club will do a work which it is impossible to estimate, and will prove of vital interest to the best interests of the growing army of self-supporting women.

That the club is nowise in an experimental stage is proved by its annual report, showing in one department—the lunch department—that during the year just closed over 140,000 lunches were served, the receipts totaling $24,000. The report of the comfort and relief committee shows the gratifying fact that during the year over 800 women were assisted in various ways, ranging from the relief afforded by the restroom to the securing of employment, and timely aid in times of crisis brought on through misfortune and illness. The library likewise has a record of over 2,000 books circulated and many magazines and periodicals donated to charitable institutions when the patrons of the library had finished with them.

The building fund committee has secured a booth at the exposition, where the plans for the new building are on display.

ARE OIL PRODUCTS ON THE FREE LIST

QUESTION THAT IS TROUBLING MEMBERS OF LOWER HOUSE OF CONGRESS.

Washington, April 10.—Are the products of petroleum on the free list as the Payne tariff bill passed the House, or are they dutiable? This is a question that is troubling the legislators of the lower house of Congress to-night. Mr. Norris, of Nebraska, and a few others who were foremost in the fight for free petroleum and its products, are contending that the products, such as gasoline, vaseline and nearly two hundred other articles, will be subject to a duty. Chairman Payne, of the Ways and Means Committee, however, contends that refined petroleum, specifically mentioned in the free list as the bill stands, covers petroleum products.

Disagreeing from Mr. Payne's view, Mr. Norris has prepared a resolution which he proposes to offer in the House unless he becomes satisfied that petroleum products will be admitted free of duty. This resolution, he says, would remove all doubt in the matter and he claims will not delay the bill in its consideration by the Senate. The Congressional Record, showing the proceedings of the House yesterday, indicates that it was the intention of the House to place petroleum products on the free list.

Speaker Cannon, Mr. Payne and Mr. Dalzell, of the Ways and Means Committee, are recorded as saying that the effect of the amendment by which the countervailing duty proviso on petroleum and its products was stricken from the bill would have the effect of placing all of them on the free list. As the Payne bill now stands the only reference to petroleum is in the free list, where, under the paragraph covering oils, "petroleum, crude or refined," is included. Parafine is the only product specifically mentioned in the free list.

NO INDICATIONS OF BREAK IN ICE JAM.

Much Property At Niagara Falls In Danger of Destruction and Loss Will Be Heavy.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., April 10.—There is no indication of a break in the ice jam in the lower river. Late to-night the river from the cataract to Youngstown was from thirty to forty feet above normal level. The steamer Maid of the Mist, which in summer months carriers passengers up close to the falls, is in danger of being wrecked. She is tipped on her side and the ice is piling up around her. The damage to the roadbed of the Gorge trolley road is estimated at $250,000. The suspension bridge at Lewiston is standing the strain sturdily.

The Cornell House, situated near the Niagara Navigation Company's docks, is in danger of being carried away.

The damage may reach a million dollars.

In the school championship typewriting contest the winner was Miss Maude Linker, Springfield, Mass., with an average of 54.3 words a minute.

LOOKS LIKE GREAT DAY FOR FINERY

WEATHER MAN WILL BE GOOD TO EASTER TOGGERY.

SUNSHINE ALL DAY AND WARM AT THAT.

EVERYONE IS SO HOPING.

It looked like a big day to-day for Easter Sunday finery parades from the office of the Weather Bureau in the Customhouse last night. After having the "weather map" read to him, F. J. Walz, the district forecaster, could see nothing but azure skies and warm weather for to-day from morning to night. It appeared as though to-day would be an Easter Sunday long to be remembered because of its climatic clemency. There is no place for rain to come from, and hardly a cloud blurred the heavens from coast to coast last night. Although the thermometer didn't show any signs of breaking any speed records getting up to a summer clime last night, it didn't show the least inclination of a bull tendency.

Yesterday was a minus seventeen day. That means that the "thermom" registered a mean temperature of 17 degrees below the corresponding day for last year. But what happened yesterday is ancient history, and to-day promised to be of the kind that would make this spring famous. The mercury stood near 40 degrees at 8 o'clock last night, which wasn't bad considering that the highest it got all day was 42 degrees at 4 o'clock, when the sun was out to help things along. It was an improvement in the way of heat, because at 6:30 o'clock in the morning 2 degrees below freezing was registered. The forecast for to-morrow is partly cloudy, with moderate temperature. But no one cares what happens in the weather line on Monday.

MRS. WALKER DIES OF BRONCHIAL PNEUMONIA.

Mrs. Margaret Walker, aged 76 years, died of bronchial pneumonia at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Her death occurred after an illness of several weeks at the home of her son-in-law, the Rev. Frank E. Moore, 2911 Bank street. Mr. Moore was a former pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian church and is now a traveling evangelist. The body will be sent to Tennessee for burial.

THE PRICKLY PEAR.

[Boston Globe.]

If the farmer of New England has any idea at all of "prickly pear" it is to him a curious kind of cactus that is raised in pots as a curiosity. The notion of it as a farm crop would never occur to him. The United States Department of Agriculture has other functions than distributing free seeds; and one branch of its activity is the investigation with a view to improvement of plants that may have a limited range of territory in which they will grow, but which are of value in those regions.

From Florida along the gulf shore to the Rio Grande, and also from Southern Arizona to Southern California, flourish about thirty varieties of prickly pear which have so far lost their prickly nature that they may be called spineless. Besides the fig-like fruit they bear, they are of value as food for cattle in a region where green food is scarce. To their proper cultivation within these two narrow belts of territory the Bureau of Plant Industry devotes a pamphlet recently published. Some of these varieties grow a dozen feet tall; all need some water, though they are the camels of the vegetable world and can thrive for months without it, and all need careful cultivation. But every two years there may be cut from each acre many tons of the flat, ugly joints, and six tons of them are worth a ton of sorghum hay. The Government is now sending out cuttings of the best kinds.

Truly this is a great country and farming within it has to take into account many things foreign to the dwellers in New England.

SENATE TARIFF BILL IS READY

With Reservation On Important Schedules.

Includes Hides, Rails, Pulp and Crude Oil.

Reduction In the Duty On Bituminous Coal.

STOCKINGS TO STAY DOWN.

Washington, April 10.—The Senate tariff bill, so far as rates are concerned, was completed to-night, but it was decided that in making a report Chairman Aldrich will announce a reservation on certain important schedules for future action. These reservations will include hides, steel rails, wood pulp and crude petroleum.

Chairman Aldrich asserted to-night that the Senate committee had made a more general revision of rates than was done by the House Committee on Ways and Means, and that reductions in schedules had been made on a far greater number of articles. This did not mean that there would be a reduction of revenues, but that there would be recommended a bona fide revision downward of the tariff.

The great number of changes which would be recommended are due largely to the fact that while the Payne bill revised rates on certain basic articles, the revision did not extend to related articles. For instance, lead ore was reduced in the Payne bill and the several manufactures of lead ore remain unchanged. The Senate committe made general reductions on these manufactures in harmony with the reduction on the unworked material. Similar changes were made in many other schedules which will account for the many amendments that will be presented in the Senate.

* * *

Hides On Free List.

In the report which will be made to the Senate, hides will go on the free list, as provided by the Payne bill, but the question of fixing a rate in accordance with the sentiment of the Senate as expressed through a canvass taken by Western Senators will be taken up in the near future. A similar condition will be reported on steel rails. The Payne rate is $3.92 per ton, which is one-half the existing rates. The committee was impressed with the arguments made by the steel manufacturers that this rate should be increased, but it is known that considerable opposition to such action will be manifested in the Senate. This item will be discussed later by the committee, and the indications are that it will be recommended for an increase to about $4.25 per ton. No decision has been reached on the subject of wood pulp and this fact will be announced by Senator Aldrich when he reports the bill. The same is true of crude petroleum, which the House put on the free list against the protest of leaders in that body. It is likely that the Senate will be given an opportunity to vote upon this article. The duties on lumber also promise to occasion considerable debate in the Senate, and while no change from the Payne bill will be recommended, it is predicted that a number of amendments will be offered on the floor of the Senate.

* * *

Reduction On Coal.

After a long discussion of the rate on bituminous coal the Senate committee today decided to recommend a reduction from 67 cents to 40 cents per ton in view of the action of the committee yesterday in striking out the reciprocity clause. The Payne bill includes slack or culm coal at the same rate as was fixed for bituminous coal, increasing the duty on this product from 15 cents to 67 cents. The Senate committee has decided to restore the Dingley rate of 15 cents per ton.

* * *

Women's Protest Heeded.

Protests made by heavy importers of gloves and hosiery against the increase made by the Payne bill over the existing Dingley rates, which protests were added to by the position taken by hundreds of women throughout the country, induced the Senate committee to agree to recommend the continuance of the Dingley rates. The existing rates on woolens, which were materially increased by the Payne bill, will be recommended by the Senate committee. Specific duties will be recommended throughout on silks of all kinds, the specific duty being a trifle above the combined ad valorem and specific duties now collected under the Dingley act. This action is taken in order to meet probable severe competition with Japan silks which every year are coming in larger quantities at a constantly decreasing cost of manufacture.

* * *

No Protection For Long Staple Cotton

The demand for protection for long staple cotton, which comes into competition with Egyptian cotton used in the manufacture of mercerized silk goods, has been denied by the Senate committee. This action was taken on the ground that the long staple cotton raised on the Sea Islands of South Carolina and Florida now brings a high price in the American market, and for the further reason that it would be difficult not to give like protection to cotton raised in certain parts of Texas and Mississippi, which is of comparatively long staple.

Present indications are that the committee will report the bill to the Senate on Tuesday next. The majority members of the committee will be in session all day to-morrow, going over the amendments agreed upon in order to guard against possible errors. A meeting of the full committee has been called for 10 o'clock Monday and the portion of the bill carrying rates will be presented to the Democratic members at that time.

The administrative features of the bill, in all probability, will not be reported for another week or more. These features will be the subject of careful consideration by the entire committee, and it is thought their adoption by the Senate may be brought about without opposition.

* * *

Tariff Bureau.

Something of the proposed tariff bureau, which has been the subject of a great deal of study, was learned to-night, although plans for the establishment of such a bureau will not be completed until other administrative features of the bill are ready to be reported. According to the present plans the bureau will consist of a consolidation of the bureau of manufacturers and the bureau of statistics, which are under the Department of Commerce and Labor; the bureau of trade relations under the State Department, and the customs division of the Treasury Department. It is intended that this consolidation shall be placed under the head of the Treasury Department and that it shall act in an advisory capacity to the President in the event of the adoption of Senator Aldrich's maximum and minimum provision for the application of the tariff law. As this provision gives considerable discretion to the President, the Senate committee deems it wise to formulate a bureau which would at all times be competent to act in an advisory capacity with him in the matter of carrying out the operation of the tariff law.

CENSUS BILL PASSED.

Senator Bailey Speaks Warning Note To President.

Washington, April 10.—The bill to provide for the taking of the next census was passed by the Senate to-day in a form which, it is understood, will meet the views of the President regarding appointments for census work under regulations by the Civil Service Commission. Efforts by some Senators to allow these appointments to be made upon recommendation of Senators and Representatives without examination received but slight support.

The interesting feature was a speech by Mr. Bailey, who said it was reported that if the bill as passed did not provide for appointments under the civil service the President would veto it, and added that if any such "threat" were made it would stir up severe criticism of the President.

The Senate at 5:03 p. m. adjourned until Monday.

* * *

Payne Bill Transmitted.

The Payne tariff bill was transmitted to the Senate by Chief Clerk Browning, of the House, who was in the Senate chamber when the Senate was called to order. As soon as the chaplain had concluded the opening prayer he was announced and without delay delivered the important message from the House that the bill had passed from that body.

Mr. Aldrich, chairman of the Committee on Finance, was instantly on his feet and moved the reference of the measure to his committee. The motion prevailed and there was no further comment. An additional print of the bill of 2,000 copies was ordered for the use of the Senate.

Bailey Warns Taft.

Asserting that he had heard it reported that President Taft would veto the pending census bill if it did not provide for placing census employes under the Civil Service Commission, Senator Bailey, in a speech on the bill to-day, declared that if the President "had thus early in his Administration undertaken to coerce Congress he would find that the experience of the last seven years was a holiday compared with what the next four years would be."

Senator Lodge made a spirited reply to the Texas Senator. Among other things Mr. Bailey said:

"I am one of the men who sincerely hope that the President of the United States will distinguish himself in his great office. I hope his Administration will be an unmixed blessing to all the people, but I do not hesitate to say that no man ever had a less desirable preparation for it than the present occupant of that high office.

"He went from the bench, where the tendency is toward a certain kind of tyranny. There is scarcely a Federal Judge in the United States of twenty years' service who has not become arbitrary, irritable and sometimes tyrannical. I do not mean that this experience would corrupt him in the sense of making him venal, but it tends to corrupt him in the sense that it teaches him to oppose his will against all obstacles."

* * *

Denounces Civil Service Law.

The remarks followed a general denunciation by Senator Bailey of the civil service law, which, he declared, he had opposed for twenty years as "a humbug and a pretense." He stated that former President Roosevelt had not hesitated to appoint men to public office within the classified system upon his own judgment and without examination, which, he said, was not justified by any law. Instead of appointments being made by political bosses, they are now, he said, made by departmental bosses. If there was to be a boss he preferred a political boss.

Mr. Bailey said he had been told that heads of bureaus and petty chiefs had threatened to discharge employes of the Government if a Senator should go through a department to see that some wrong was righted. He added that he had heard that a certain member of a Legislature had introduced a measure framed in laudatory language in relation to the former President and that later he had this resolution taken to Mr. Roosevelt with a request that he be given a place and that he was appointed without examination to a position paying $7 a day.

"If any Senator doubts that story," said Mr. Bailey, "let him ask Senator Scott, of West Virginia, whether it is true."

Senator Lodge in reply said the civil service was incomparably superior to the spoils system.

Before the vote on the Bailey amendment was taken, Mr. Carter declared that if the old census bill passed by the last Congress and vetoed by Mr. Roosevelt had come before the Senate for another vote he would have voted to override the veto of the President. The present bill, he said, provides for a "special" test open to all applicants, while the old bill required a "noncompetitive" test, but open only to those designated by Senators and Representatives.

The Bailey amendment was then defeated. The bill without any important changes from the measure as reported to the Senate from the Committee on the Census, was passed.

SUMMER PLANS.

Taft Family Will Spend Part of Season In Manchester.

Gloucester, Mass., April 10.—It was stated here to-day that President Taft and his family had definitely decided to occupy the Edward Robinson house on School street, Manchester, part of the coming summer, their arrival depending upon the length of the present session of Congress. Mrs. Taft and Miss Mabel Boardman visited the Robinson cottage last month.

The house is situated on a hill overlooking the golf links of the Essex County Club and is about two miles back from the shore. The summer home of William J. Boardman, of Washington, adjoins the Robinson estate.

Taft Hears Talk On Stockings.

Washington, April 10.—President Taft to-day heard both sides of the hosiery tariff question. A delegation from the League of Cook County Women's Clubs of Chicago called on him and presented a protest against the increased duty on gloves and hosiery.

The other side of the question was taken up with the President by a delegation of hosiery manufacturers from Southeastern Pennsylvania, headed by S. S. Ramb, of Norristown.

Fancy Horse Sold To Taft.

Nashville, Tenn., April 10.—The Herbert stock farm, near Franklin, Tenn., sold to President Taft and Secretary of War Dickinson the famous saddle horse McDonald Prince. The price paid is said to have been a fancy one.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

John R. Williams, of Scranton, Pa., who for several years had been file clerk of the House of Representatives, died of an acute attack of Bright's disease at the Pennsylvania Club. He was taken sick about six weeks ago and his condition gradually grew worse until the end.

By reason of the death of J. M. Smith, auditor of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the position of auditor has been abolished, and the designation of the bureau of rates and transportation changed to that of the bureau of tariffs, with J. M. Jones, formerly in charge of tariffs, as chief of the bureau.

Much to the disappointment of the promoters, Count Okuma and Mr. Otani, a well-known business man of Japan, sufficient subscriptions have not been received to erect the proposed statue to Commodore Perry, which was to have been unveiled at Yokohama early in July.

A meeting of the Foundation for the Promotion of Industrial Peace was held in the office of Secretary Nagel, of the Department of Commerce and Labor. Present were Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture; Secretary Nagel, Seth Low, of New York; Thomas G. Bush, of Birmingham, Ala., and John Mitchell, of the board of trustees; Ralph M. Easley, of the National Civic Federation, and Marcus M. Marks, of New York, of the industrial peace committee; Franklin MacVeagh, Secretary of the Treasury; G. Gunby Jordon, of Columbus, Ga., representing the employers; Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Daniel J. Keefe, Commissioner General of Immigration, representing labor.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Marks, Gompers, Nagel and Low was appointed to draft by-laws. Theodore L. Weed, chief clerk of the Department of Commerce and Labor, was elected assistant secretary of the foundation.

Postage stamps with mourning borders will be issued by the British Postoffice Department in the near future.

GOES TO JUDGES.

ARGUMENT IN STANDARD OIL CASE IS FINISHED.

Decision In Famous Anti-Trust Suit Not Expected Before Autumn Months.

St. Louis, Mo., April 10.—Shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon Special United States Attorney General Frank B. Kellogg concluded his closing address in the Government's suit against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and another chapter in one of the most famous suits in history of the country's jurisprudence was completed. There remains the opinion of the four Judges of the United States Curcuit Court of Appeals and the final decision of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, as neither side will rest short of the opinion of the court of last resort.

The four robed Judges after the hearing retired and held a consultation concerning their long and tedious work of going through the evidence and briefs of counsel, each of the latter presenting a separate pivotal argument on both sides of the law and the facts.

It is not expected a decision will be handed down before early fall. Before finally adjourning the Judges signed an order granting Judge Franklin B. Ferris, of St. Louis, the special examiner in the case, $20,000 and expenses for his services. The suit has required Judge Ferris to devote the major portion of his time to the case for eighteen months, and to make half a hundred trips to New York, Chicago and other cities, where the voluminous evidence was taken.

ROBIN COOPER SPENDING EASTER WITH SIDNEY SMITH.

Robin Cooper, son of Duncan B. Cooper, of Nashville, Tenn., is in Louisville visiting Sidney Smith, son of Milton H. Smith, president of the L. and N. railroad. Mr. Cooper reached here yesterday and expects to return home in a few days. Mr. Cooper said last night that he had no business in Louisville. In fact he declined to say anything for publication. He was a schoolmate of Sidney Smith.

Two Killed By Explosion.

Chicago, April 10.—Two men were killed, two more were probably fatally injured and fifty other workmen narrowly escaped death when a charge of dynamite was exploded by accident today in the quarry of the Illinois Stone Company at Lemont, Ill. The charge had been placed in the stone last fall.

CRITICISE LENIENCY TOWARD SPEED CRANKS.

Automobile Clubs of New York Urge That Judges Imprison Instead of Fining Offenders.

New York, April 10.—The Justices of the Court of Special Sessions are being made the subject of much adverse criticism by officials of automobile clubs and law-abiding motorists generally, for the leniency with which they have sentenced some of the speed monomaniacs recently haled before them.

The prevailing opinion with these protestants is that nothing short of imprisonment will check the recklessness of habitual speed cranks.

The records of the Court of Special Sessions for the week ending yesterday show 446 cases of violation of automobile regulations, and that the highest fine imposed was $100 for a third offense and $50 for a second offense. The other culprits were allowed to go on payment of fines ranging from $5 to $30.

STRIKERS IN CHICAGO GOING BACK TO WORK.

Chicago, April 10.—Industrial peace has settled upon this city with the Easter tide. The strike of the 1,500 employes of the wholesale grocers collapsed to-day and the men will return to work Monday. The steamfitters and helpers, who have been on strike since April 1, will return to work also under an advance of 45 cents a day. Most of the electricians have gone back to work and it is expected some compromise will be effected with the tile layers and glaziers within a few days.

JACOB CORBETT IN CITY FOR BRIEF VISIT.

Jacob Corbett, of Wickliffe, a well-known Western Kentucky attorney, is in the city for a brief stay. Mr. Corbett is one of the best-known Democratic politicians in the State, having been active in political affairs since boyhood. He has been a delegate from Ballard county to about all the Democratic State conventions that have been held since he was old enough to vote. He goes early to conventions and stays late and never fails to go his length for the candidates of his choice. Coming from a family of lawyers and politicians he took to politics as naturally as a duck takes to water, and from the time that he was a page in the Kentucky Legislature he has been active in party affairs. As a legislative sergeant-at-arms and as private secretary to the late Gov. Luke P. Blackburn he acquired an extensive acquaintance and few men in the State have had larger or more intimate association with the statesmen of the past and present.

In recent years Mr. Corbett has been applying himself closely to the practice of his profession at Wickliffe, but he is still a "live wire" in politics, and some of his First district friends are counting confidently on inducing him to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for Congress when Ollie James shall have stepped down and out or gone up higher.

FRIENDS OF ARCTIC EXPLORER ALARMED.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, of Brooklyn, Has Not Been Heard From Since March, 1908.

New York, April 10.—Members of the Arctic and Exploration Clubs, who have recently been seriously alarmed over the continued lack of news as to the whereabouts of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, of Brooklyn, who has been missing in the polar regions since March, 1908, have resolved to lose no time in raising funds for a searching expedition. Rear Admiral Schley, president of the Arctic Club, recently issued an appeal for the subscriptions, saying $30,000 was needed to equip an expedition which Dillon Wallace has offered to lead.

Dr. Cook was last heard from when at a point forty miles north of Cape Thomas Hubbard, on the North Polar Sea on March 7, 1908, and he was then about to make his dash for the Pole. He said he expected to return home not later than September, 1908. It is the apparently utter miscarriage of the latter part of his plan that has caused his friends and admirers to become so alarmed for his safety.

SORSBY'S CASE GOES TO JURY TO-MORROW.

State Introduces Experts Who Testify That Defendant Is Not Insane.

Jackson, Miss., April 10.—Monday night, or, at the latest, Tuesday morning, the case of W. A. Sorsby, alleged murderer of Charles Fitzgerald, postoffice inspector, will be given to the jury for their verdict. When court adjourned this evening the presenting of evidence had ended and to-night the attorneys of both sides worked until a late hour preparing the instructions they desire read. Those instructions, Judge Potter notified the attorneys this afternoon, must be presented when court convenes on Monday. As announced but two of the attorneys on each side will be permitted to address the jury, and it is not probable that any speech will extend over two hours.

To-day's session was devoted to the introduction of evidence by the State in rebuttal. Two expert witnesses, Dr. J. M. Buchanan, superintendent of the East Mississippi Insane Asylum, and Dr. T. J. Mitchell, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane at Jackson, each declared that, in their opinion, Sorsby was not insane at the time he shot and killed Fitzgerald, but that, both then and now, his mentality was normal.

The attendance to-day was probably the largest which has ever attended a criminal prosecution in Jackson. During the afternoon scores of women were compelled to stand and several hundred men were denied admission.

NEW METHODS

Wiles of Old-Time Lobbyists Are No Good Now.

MODERN EXPERT GENERALLY LAWYER OF NOTE.

SOMETIMES BRINGS CLERKS AND STENOGRAPHERS.

KNOWS HOW TO REACH SPOT.

There are among us, even at this late day, those who still think of the lobby at Washington as it was in the days of Col. Sellers and "The Gilded Age." They know, in a general way, that progress has developed all American industries, and yet never suspect that the lobby has enjoyed the beneficent effects of that progress as well as others, says the New York Times.

Among these unsophisticated persons may be mentioned the playwrights of the United States, the novelists, and especially the well-meaning persons who write short stories for magazines. These three classes may be included in a body, neck, crop and heels, and if some member of any one of them can prove an alibi a graceful apology will be rendered. Mere proof that the member has never written a play, novel or short story dealing with Washington will not be accepted as an alibi, for it will be regarded as certain that if he ever did write one he would surely treat the lobbyist from the ancient standpoint.

Outside these professional classes there are countless unprofessionals, comprising, let us say, almost all the adult persons in America who know how to read, who conjure up with delightful shudders the beautiful and wicked female lobbyist who weaves an imperceptible web for the guileless Senator, or the dark-mustached lobbyist with the sneering smile who digs pitfalls for the unsophisticated Representative.

Maybe they did exist in Col. Sellers' day, but they don't now. The march of progress has struck the lobby business. In fact, the old-fashioned lobbyist has disappeared, to all practical intents. There are a few of them left, but most of them exist not by bribing Congressmen, but by making their own idiotic clients believe they have bribed Congressmen, and then collecting money for the fictitious bribery.

With the growth of centralization and consolidation in legislation as well as in other businesses it is no longer profitable to work on the individual Congressman. Power being lodged in a few hands, you get your results by working on the men in control. An old-fashioned lobbyist would have about as much chance of getting beyond the initial sentence in talking to the half-dozen men who have the final word on any given bill as he would have of buying up the President with a box of cigars.

In the place of this lost figure of legislation there now looms up the railroad attorney, the corporation lawyer, and the promoter. He would repel with rage the insinuation that he is a lobbyist. Frequently he is a man whose fame is nation-wide; usually he is a man at least of prominence; always he is a solid man.

When he comes to Washington he takes a lot of rooms in one of the best hotels. The rooms are the best to be had. Generally the lobbyist—or perhaps it would be better to call him the accelerator of legislation, taking a leaf from Lemuel E. Quigg's Albany and New York book—brings a stenographer and a clerk with him, and conducts his business quite openly. On many occasions he prepares typewritten statements for the press, and sends for the reporters to come and get them.

He does not bother with obscure Congressmen nor with Congressmen who are not in the knot of men controlling the fortunes of his particular bill. He economizes time, labor and other things by transacting his business with a few only, but those few are carefully picked.

The accelerator is never seen in the hotel lobby, except in the act of hurrying through to get into his automobile. If you want to see him you have to send your card, and the chances are that he won't see you unless you are worth seeing.

* * *

Ex-Member Lobbyists.

The retired Congressman quite frequently becomes a lobbyist, although the practice was more common in the past than it is in these days of corporation lawyers and accelerators, when the lobby business has been both simplified and enlarged.

If he chose to be a lobbyist he would be assured at the outset of a comfortable living, and a great advantage over his rivals in the profession. Persons desirous of engaging the services of a lobbyist would naturally conclude that a man who had served in Congress would know the ropes better than one who had not. There was, however, a respect in which the ex-Congressman would have a real and positive advantage over his competitors in the way of rendering service to his client.

That is, that an ex-Congressman is entitled to the privilege of the floor, while any other lobbyist is not even entitled to the privilege of the lobby. The ex-Congressman could walk into the House any time and chat in a familiar fashion with his old colleagues, getting introductions from them to new Congressmen if he chose, which he usually did not.

As a rule this sort of lobbying has passed out, so far as any real emergency goes. His principal use now is where the ex-Congressman specializes. If, for instance, he has been a member of an important committee for years prior to his defeat, and has acquired a special knowledge of things connected with the work of that committee, he can confine his lobbying labors to that sort of work, and be more useful to persons having that kind of business than any all-round practitioner.

THE EUCALYPTUS

To Be New Source of Wealth For Golden State.

GENERAL MOVE TO PLANT TREE IN CALIFORNIA.

GROWS QUICKLY AND GIVES WOOD OF GREAT USE.

NUMEROUS VARIETIES OF IT.

California, the Golden State, has recently, in the picturesque phrase of a promoter, "entered upon its third golden era," golden metal and golden fruits being now supplanted in public interest by the "golden hardwood," eucalyptus, says the Boston Transcript. Some scores of corporations and individuals are planting the trees; municipalities are setting them out by the hundreds on public lands; an Eastern firm of furniture manufacturers has purchased 4,000 acres near Sacramento, with the view to cultivate its own wood supply; and high officials of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe have incorporated to plant eucalyptus on an 8,600-acre tract in San Diego county, purposing to provide the road with poles, piles, ties, etc. Meantime, the boom is helped on by such facts as that "Australian mahogany" (eucalyptus rostrata) is genuinely in demand for finish, flooring and cabinet work, at $130 a thousand; and that "blue gum" (eucalyptus globulus) make a very profitable crop, even when sold for fuel, a rancher at Claremont having recently netted $473 from forty-seven trees only five years old.

Australian miners seem to have introduced the tree to this country, its natural habitat being Australia. About 150 species are known, and perhaps a third have become acclimated to Southern California, where they find the mild and equable climate in which alone they can flourish. Some species grow taller than any other tree, rising at times to a height of more than 400 feet; others are superlatively rapid growers, seeding plantations having reached a maximum development of five inches in diameter and sixty-seven feet in height in four years. In practically all the species the wood is heavy, hard and tough, "very little inferior in strength and stiffness to the best second-growth hickory." Eucalyptus probably serve more useful purposes, says the Department of Agriculture, than trees of any other grown on the globe, except, perhaps, the various palms. In Australia, the timber enters into the construction of ships, bridges, railroads, piers, telegraph lines, fences, paving, vehicles, agricultural implements, furniture, barrels, and a great variety of finer articles, eucalyptus being, indeed, the chief source of hardwood supply. In California, where the tree seems to lose none of its valuable qualities, the fever of experimentation still runs high, and it is hardly time for a prognosis. But, bearing in mind the fact that different species have different characteristics and, therefore, peculiar adaptations, it seems safe to conclude that California has found new "gold mines" in her eucalyptus groves and that they will strongly reinforce our diminishing forests.

Such were the predictions made, some six years ago, in the Forestry Bureau's Bulletin, No. 35, by the late Prof. A. J. McClatchie, of the Arizona Experiment Station—the man who, though he did not introduce the eucalyptus to California, may be said to have introduced California to the eucalyptus. The conditions that prompted his study of the situation were never more acute than at present, and of late they have been frequently restated, notably in Circulars 116 and 129 of the Department of Agriculture's Forest Service. Our standing growth of hardwood, timber is equivalent, we are told here, to only about sixteen years' supply. Furthermore, the annual growth does not exceed the amount of wood used for lumber alone, and, considering all the drains upon the forests, the annual consumption of wood is probably three times the annual growth." Manifestly, then, we need new sources of supply and need them soon. If, as is affirmed, eucalyptus will grow in ten years to 12-inch diameters while it takes black walnut fifty-six years, ash seventy-two years, hickory ninety years, and white oak 100 years, to reach the same dimensions, the more eucalyptus that California plants, the better.

PORCUPINES DO DAMAGE.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

Reports from Bishop, Inyo county, California, indicate that porcupines are seriously damaging the lodge-pole pine forests of the Eastern slope of the Sierra. Practically the entire area of the Inyo national forest has been affected to some extent. In many localities the damaged trees aggregate as high as 25 per cent. of the total stand. While these areas are not large, it is evident that if something is not done to curb the attack, much of the timber in that section will be killed.

The porcupine feeds to a large extent during the winter months upon the inner bark of the pine. To secure this he travels about upon the snow and completely girdles the trees just above the snow line. Of course, this results in the death of the tree. The damage would not be so serious but for the fact that the porcupine seldom makes two meals off of the same tree, but prefers to visit several trees in the course of a night. Since its habits are nocturnal, hunting this animal is very difficult. The attention of the forest service has been called to the ravages of these animals and plans for their extermination are under consideration.

DRESSES AS MAN

New Hampshire Woman "Makes Good" at Farming.

DRESS SKIRTS IMPRACTICABLE IN EVERY DAY WORK.

USES SCYTHE AND OTHER IMPLEMENTS LIKE MAN.

HOLDS OWN IN HORSE TRADES.

Among the successful business women of the Granite State, Mrs. Hester E. (Davis) Pinkham, of Farmington, probably has no superior, says the Boston Globe.

Trained from her youth to a wide range of activities, she has been able to turn them all to profitable account as occasion demanded. Her special forte from girlhood has been farming, and that, including stock breeding and buying and selling live stock for profit, is her business.

She is operating single handed, with the exception of the aid of a hired man, a fifty-five-acre farm she bought at auction in the spring of 1907, and is doing what many farmers with an equal number of acres are unable to do—making money.

Owing to a long period of invalidism of her husband, the late James Y. Pinkham, to whom she was married twenty-four years, Mrs. Pinkham met many adverse circumstances during the latter half of her married life.

Although 45 years old and a grandmother, she has the appearance and agility of a much younger woman. She is of slight build, weighing only 110 pounds, but her strength and endurance are remarkable, and she is able, she says, to do a man's work in all departments of farm work, except holding the plow. She has the skill of a man in wielding the ax and the scythe, and she says she can do as much as a man in working the cross-cut saw, which she does in felling trees. She does not disdain to use the hoe in hoeing time.

Few women, doubtless, would have the independence to don men's garb for doing what is commonly man's work about a farm, but Mrs. Pinkham has overcome her scruples concerning dress and now rigs herself out as a farm laborer, wearing a complete outfit from hat to shoes, overalls and jumper included, when engaged in outdoor work.

"I discovered the greater convenience of men's clothes quite by accident," said she recently, "and at once I decided to wear them when doing any kind of outside work on my place. I was storing hay in the barn with skirts on one day last summer and found I could not avoid treading on them and getting thrown. I hit upon the idea of wearing overalls and had no more trouble after that in handling a load of hay. I have continued to wear men's clothes since on the farm. People laugh at me, I know, for this and for driving into town with a load of farm produce or wood, but I don't care. My work is honorable, and I believe in dressing the way most convenient for it."

Got Farm At Bargain.

The farm was knocked down to her at $525. She expected to get $1,000 worth of timber, but was agreeably surprised later, on having an experienced lumberman make an estimate of the value of the thirty-five-acre wood lot, to find that she had $1,500 worth of merchantable timber and young growth, which would double in value in ten years. The farm has a large two-story house, barn and sheds.

An ideal duck pond is a feature. It is part of a chain of four never-failing boiling springs, and there is also a well, all within 200 yards of the house. Thus equipped, Mrs. Pinkham has been a successful raiser of ducks.

On about twenty acres of cleared land Mrs. Pinkham raised last season $275 worth of hay, corn, potatoes, pumpkins, beans, turnips and squashes. In every part of the work, except the plowing, she did her share with her hired man, Stephen Bennett. She spread the stable dressing, harrowed the plowed ground, sowed, planted, worked the cultivator, drove the mowing machine, and helped harvest the hay and tillage crops and store them. In gathering hay Mrs. Pinkham makes the load on the wagon, and then receives it in the barn.

Mrs. Pinkham's success in raising swine is unusual. She breeds from registered stock only, the Chester whites, the young of which she sells at fancy prices. The past season she raised sixty young pigs from seven sows. One highly-prized sow gave birth to a litter of fifteen, of whom fourteen were reared.

Last spring Mrs. Pinkham had in her various pens at one time eighty-four pigs and nine old hogs. At present she has seven hogs and forty-eight pigs.

* * *

Clever In Horse Trades.

She raises also sheep, cattle, chickens and Belgian hares. The hares netted her $40 the past season.

Mrs. Pinkham buys and sells continually all kinds of farm animals, from horses to poultry, and generally doubles her money. "I watch the market," she says, "and buy when people are obliged to sell. It is only then I am ready to buy. I sometimes buy scrub stock, but only to put in good condition to sell again at a profit. I have never been beaten in a horse trade."

"How did you gain your knowledge of farming and stock raising, so you could do these things successfully?" Mrs. Pinkham was asked.

"I took to it naturally, when a little girl. My father, George N. Davis, was a farmer. The homestead was a little way out of Farmington village, on the Middleton road. I used to go with him all about the farm and into the woods, and not only observed how things were done, but tried to help all I could. That is how I learned to farm and to use an ax, the scythe and other farm tools. I could not let them alone. Father used to call me his 'tomboy.'

"After the deaths of my husband and my father, both of whom died from injuries received from being thrown from a load of hay, I was physically unfit to continue keeping boarders and gave it up. I sold the farm I then had. Since beginning active outdoor life on my present farm, my health has greatly improved, and I greatly enjoy the change from running a boarding-house. Besides, farming has always been my favorite occupation."

CLARK ONCE NEAR-RICH.

[Washington Correspondence of the Baltimore News.]

Champ Clark, Democratic leader in the House, came nearer to being a multi-millionaire than anybody now in sight. Instead he went to Missouri and became a politician; later he became a Congressman, and finally he has become a statesman.

When he was 23 years old Clark was president of a West Virginia college, and he was a good one, too. At the end of two or three years he had saved $800, and a friends confided to him that it was enough to make a fortune.

"Let me take that money you've got in the bank," said his friend, "and buy some of this coal land around here. It can be had for 80 cents an acres, and it'll be worth thousands in a few years."

Clark thought about it, but he had long been of the opinion that the bounding West was the place where fortune smiles most amiably. He wanted to go there.

"I guess not," he decided. "I'll go to Missouri."

He did. The 1,000 acres of land that his $800 would have bought is now worth millions. If he had bought it and stayed in West Virginia he would have been one of the first of the long row of men who have made tens of millions in the development of the natural resources of that newer Pennsylvania.

"But, anyhow," sighed Mr. Clark as he turned to his desk and signed a contract for a summer lecture course at $200 a night, "I never did care much about money."

NAPOLEON IN DISGUISE.

[London Globe.]

A Paris contemporary at the time of the carnival had a story of the ineffectual efforts of the King of the Belgians to effect a perfect disguise, and in connection with the Mi Careme fetes another similar story is told of Napoleon I. at a bal masque.

The Emperor announced to his valet that he intended on a certain evening going to a ball at the Italian Embassy, and requested that complete costumes should be sent in advance. The valet Constant obeyed and attended his imperious master, and commenced to dress him in a manner which might, had the Emperor followed the valet's advice, have defied detection. Constant had some trouble with Napoleon over one or two minor matters, but when it came to changing his top bots for shoes the Emperor absolutely refused.

Going into the ballroom Napoleon at once relapsed into his accustomed attitude, and, wishing to engage a lady in conversation, approached her with his hands behind his back. To his first question she prefaced her reply with "Sire." Turning away abruptly he went back to his room and said: "You were right, Constant, I have been recognized. Give me another costume and shoes this time."

The valet redressed his master and warned him to keep his hands at his side. No sooner had he entered the room the second time than he relapsed into his natural attitude. This time a lady addressed him, "Sire, you are recognized." Once more the Emperor left the room in disgust.

Returning to his room Napoleon was disguised for the third time. His toilet complete, he went back to the ballroom, which he entered as if it were a barrack-room, pushing and swaggering. He was at once detected and some one whispered to him, "Your majesty is recognized." Another disappointment and another change, still with the same result, and in the end the Emperor left the embassy convinced that it was impossible to conceal his identity.

AFTER 'GATORS IN FLORIDA.

[St. Petersburg, Fla., Special to Jacksonville Times-Union.]

Alligator hunting has become quite a fad and a sport with some of the tourist friends and residents. Nearly every Sunday a party goes to Salt Lake, which is almost the only place these saurians can be found, and hunt the 'gator. While resembling fishing in a manner, it is greater sport to those who delight in it, though attended by greater calamities at times. The proper mode of procedure is to get a long pole, on the end of which is a hook, metal being preferred. The fisher goes in the bog, and finding a hole in which he thinks a 'gator is lying, first takes a rope and throws it about the entrance of the hole. Then, with his hooked pole, he rams down the den and waits and listens. If successful, soon he is rewarded by having the 'gator catch hold of the pole—he being furiously mad. Teasing his 'gatorship thus for a period, the 'gator finally grabs fast to the hooked pole and he is pulled from the den. It is with a spirit of uncertainty that he is dragged forth, for it is not known whether the catch is a large or a small one, therefore the fisher does not know whether to get into shape to run or to fight.

After the 'gator is dragged to the surface, he, in his madness turns and rolls and finally twists himself up in the rope or noose that has been previously prepared. When, by assistance from others of the party who have been waiting and watching for the sport, the 'gator is somewhat fastened, the rope is made fast to his legs, which are then drawn over his back, the mouth closed and tied. Then comes the time of the life for the 'gator fisherman, if the prize is a large one. The 'gator is, for the most part, caught in marshes, where it is soft and slushy, and too wet for either horse or wagon to enter. The fishers are compelled to carry their catch to higher ground, there to be loaded into the already waiting wagon, and the hunt is ended with the exception of marketing or selling the 'gator or his hide.

TURKISH CUSTOMS.

[New York Times.]

Every year in Turkey, in the month of Ramazan, as they term it—which is the month when the Koran was revealed, in twenty-six parts, to Mohammed—it was for years a general custom in Turkey for the Turks to open their houses at 12 o'clock, the Turkish sunset time, to strangers, and anyone was permitted to enter and take supper, a meal the Turks call oviftar, during Ramazan.

No matter how poor or how rich the persons and whether a complete stranger or near friend, they come just before the sunset hour, and all are seated at the truly hospitable table before 12 o'clock. Immediately after the roar of the cannon announces sunset the Turks eat either an olive or a date, it being the legend that the holy prophet did this, and those who smoke may begin as soon as the date or olive, supposed to be the fruits of paradise, disappears. Then come jellies, as it is a belief in Turkey that sweets "collect the senses," whatever that may mean. Oddly enough, soups follow the sweets, and then after that eggs cooked in butter are served, followed in turn by mutton chops or roasted meat; these are succeeded by vegetables, and the vegetables by a sort of sugarless pudding, called beurek, and after this the famous baclava, or kadaif.

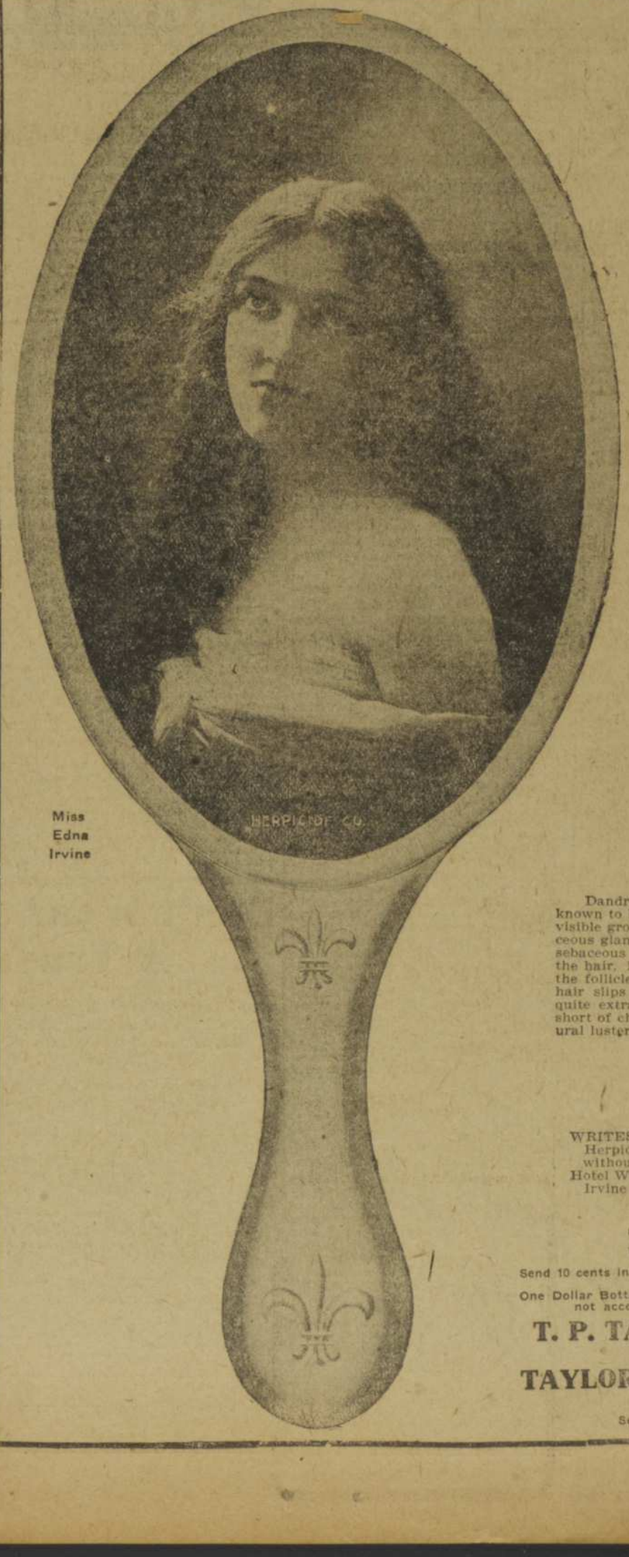

After all this more meat courses, fish and vegetables are served, and such sweets as rice milk (gullaj sudlaj), native blanc mange (mahallebi), pilaf with kishab or jourat (yaourt) and coffee.

HOLDING SEATS ON CARS.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]

A familiar sight on crowded railroad trains is that of a procession of passengers moving helplessly by seats that are covered with baggage. The seats are "reserved" by the simple process of placing the baggage on them, and the owner of the baggage feels that he has established a permanent claim. So secure is he that he may pass most of his time after the train starts in a smoking car.

This familiar incident of travel led to a dispute which was taken to the courts in New York State, and the Court of Appeals has decided against the smoker. It holds that seats are for passengers, not for baggage, and that no one is bound by the reservation. In the particular case the two contestants had come to blows. The conductor, who was appealed to, would not pronounce upon their claims, and though the intruder was obliged to succumb to superior force he succeeded in throwing part of the baggage through the window. The victor, not satisfied with this result, invoked the aid of the law and wanted damages for his loss and the injury to his feelings, as well as a judgment that he was acting within his rights in trying to occupy two seats. But the court was generally unsympathetic. It considered the feelings of the other man and indicated that the smoking baggage owner could get damages only by a separate suit in which he should establish the exact amount of the loss that he sustained because of the window episode.

What Does Your Mirror Say?

Does it cheerfully report an abundance of beautiful, well-kept hair, or does it regretfully tell the story of hair neglect?

Your mirror may be anxious to please, but if you permit your friends to see dull, brittle and lusterless hair, with possibly dandruff and falling hair, your mirror will have to reflect the same condition.

All of these unfortunate EFFECTS can be overcome by destroying their CAUSE with

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

The Original Remedy That "Kills the Dandruff Germ."

Dandruff, with its consequent hair injury and hair loss, is now known to be a highly contagious germ disease. It is caused by an invisible growth of vegetable character that finds lodgment in the sebaceous glands of the scalp. This growth disturbs the functions of the sebaceous glands, causing excessive oiliness or extreme dryness of the hair. It also sets up an inflammatory process that extends down the follicle to the papilla, where the adhesions are loosened and the hair slips out. The value of Newbro's Herpicide in such cases is quite extraordinary. Its intelligent use will correct every condition short of chronic baldness and thus permit the hair to resume its natural luster and abundance.

GRANT PETITION

Asking For Improvement of Fourth Street.

NEPHEWS SEEK TO HAVE WILL SET ASIDE.

HANDS OUT SEVERAL FINES IN JUVENILE COURT.

MAYOR BEST SERIOUSLY ILL.

The Board of Public Works of New Albany at the meeting yesterday morning granted the petition of property owners on East Fourth street between Main and Water streets, asking for the improvement of that thoroughfare with a twenty-six-foot brick roadway and granitoid sidewalks, similar to the Tenth and Eleventh-street improvements. Saturday, May 1, was fixed as the date upon which to hear the objections of property owners.

A culvert was ordered built at Clark and Locust streets. The Enterprise Ice Company filed a petition for permission to construct a switch from the Monon track at the first alley south of King street, crossing that street and thence across private property to the factory of the company on Division street. This petition was granted.

The Common Council met last night in special session and ratified the contracts made with the Floyd County Lumber Company, the Enterprise Ice Company and C. W. Inman by the Board of Public Works for the construction of switches, one across King street, one across East Fifteenth street and the other on Macbeth street.

To Contest Will.

Ewing & Roose, of New Albany, have brought suit in the Harrison Circuit Court at Corydon for James and John Kelly and Mrs. Nora Sandbach to contest the will of George Cooper. The case will be tried at the next term of court and it involves property worth over $7,000. The will leaves the estate to a sister and a brother of George Cooper and the heirs contesting the will, children of a dead sister, $1 each. Undue influence to the detriment of the nieces and nephews is claimed as grounds of the action.

Session of Juvenile Court.

The juvenile court at New Albany was in session yesterday morning, Prof. H. E. Buerk, superintendent of schools, presiding. WITNESSES IN HAINS CASE ARE SUMMONED.

Slayer of William E. Annis To Be Placed On Trial At Flushing April 19.

New York, April 10.—District Attorney Dewitt, of Queens county, issued subpoenas to-day calling for the appearance before him on Monday of the ten principal witnesses for the prosecution in the case of Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., whose trial for the murder of William E. Annis, last summer, is slated to begin on April 19, at Flushing.

At the time of the trial and acquittal of Capt. Hains' brother for this crime, Ira A. Darrin was prosecuting officer of the county, and the purpose of the present District Attorney in calling these witnesses before him is said to be simply to familiarize himself with the case.

There is a rumor, however, that a flaw has been discovered in the indictment under which Capt. Hains is now held, and that the object of Mr. Dewitt in calling the witnesses before him is to obtain a new indictment.

The District Attorney went to Boston to-day to question Mrs. Claudia Libby Hains, wife of Capt. Hains, in regard to the case.

Death Claims Well-Known Jeffersonville Woman.

MRS. MONTGOMERY BELONGED TO PROMINENT FAMILY.

MRS. ELLEN CUNNINGHAM DIES OF PNEUMONIA

WHILE VISITING DAUGHTER.

Death, which has been expected for several days, came at an early hour yesterday morning to Mrs. Fannie Meldrum Montgomery, who was the wife of John F. Montgomery, at her home, 232 West Market street, Jeffersonville. She had been ill for several weeks from chronic bronchitis.

Mrs. Montgomery belonged to a family of prominence and her maiden name was Fannie Meldrum, her parents being Mr. and Mrs. George Meldrum. She was born in Pennsylvania seventy-seven years ago and came to Kentucky when a young woman. At the age of 23 she was married to John F. Montgomery and for a time they lived at Madison, Ind., but fifty years ago they settled in Louisville, where the husband was formerly a well-known business man. He retired years ago and more than twenty-five years since moved to Jeffersonville. Mrs. Montgomery was a sister of Mrs. Samuel Hartwell, whose husband, previous to his death, was a well-known capitalist of Louisville.

She was an aunt of Richard M. Hartwell, Frank R. Hartwell and Samuel A. Hartwell, well known Louisville men. After locating in Jeffersonville Mrs. Montgomery became well known there and during her younger days was prominent in church work, she being a member of Morton Memorial Methodist Episcopal church, South. Besides her husband she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. William Schrodt, with whom she made her home, and one son, George Montgomery. There are several grandchildren and a few great grandchildren. The funeral will be conducted this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. J. D. Sigler, and the interment will be in the family lot in Cave Hill cemetery, Louisville.

Dies of Pneumonia.

While visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Maggie Hargrave, 2107 West Jefferson street, Louisville, Mrs. Ellen Cunningham, of Jeffersonville, succumbed Friday night from an attack of pneumonia, which was the second during the winter and the third within two years, she having made her home with her son, Samuel A. Cunningham, who is a member of the Jeffersonville Board of Public Works, and after recovering from a recent illness she concluded two weeks ago to go to the home of her daughter for a stay of a few weeks. While there she contracted a severe cold and pneumonia developed a few days ago. On Friday night Mrs. Cunningham grew much worse and her son in Jeffersonville was summoned, but before he could arrive at his mother's bedside she had expired.

The funeral services will be conducted from the home of Mrs. Hargrave Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the interment will be in the Eastern cemetery, Louisville, where Mrs. Cunningham's husband was buried.

BOOKWALTER PICTURES VALUE OF INTERURBANS.

Mayor of Indianapolis Tells Cincinnati Men To Be Up and Doing.

Cincinnati, April 11.—Before an assemblage of 200 or more of the leading business men of this city, Mayor Charles Bookwalter, of Indianapolis, the guest of honor at a banquet of the City Club and Business Men's Club, this afternoon, in an address, warned Cincinnati business interests that the Indiana State capital has already secured much valuable trade formerly coming to this city, and that unless the traction systems of Cincinnati are greatly extended to offset the growth of interurban lines in the Hoosier State, much of that still left to Cincinnati will ultimately be secured.

Mayor Bookwalter referred to Richmond, Ind., which he said was "formerly a suburb of Cincinnati, but that since the establishment of traction lines connecting Richmond with Indianapolis, the quakeresses of Richmond now buy their hats in Indianapolis."

He explained what Indianapolis had done in the way of admitting interurban lines, and added: "You Cincinnatians should at once solve the problem of letting the interurban roads into your city, or we energetic Hoosiers will be stepping in and stealing away from you all this trade of the country round you that belongs to you."

W. Kesley Schoopf, president of the Cincinnati Traction Company, followed Mayor Bookwalter and in his address told of plans of the traction company for a great entryway for interurban railroads and a terminal interurban station in this city.

Former Senator Joseph B. Foraker was among the guests at the banquet but did not speak.

Teeth Without Plates or Bridge Work.

No tooth need be EXTRACTED. No individual need be without teeth. To the dental profession Pyorrhea (Riggs' disease) has long been a disease which caused them to throw up their hands and say: "There is no cure," but, like all things, that cure has been discovered, and every loose tooth can be made firm again. We cure Pyorrhea by our new method, and it will stay cured. "What is Alveolar Dentistry?" a question that has been asked by many. This method consists of replacing teeth without a plate or bridge work; no crowning, banding or cutting off a single tooth; replacing teeth that are in color, shape and size like the ones that are missing, leaving no space in the back for food to catch, as in bridge work. This method is such a distinct improvement over bridge work that in a few years' time every dentist in the country must equip himself to practice it.

We are past masters in the art of dental science, and use every new method to make the work PAINLESS and PERMANENT. Our offices are equipped with all modern appliances, and we are better able to handle your case than a private practitioner. We can give you testimonials of hundreds of Louisville's best people whom we have put in work for, and they are all singing our praises for being made happy by a set of teeth which many of them claim are better than growing a third set of teeth. Our charges are in the reach of all, so if you need any work, call and see us. We will examine your teeth and explain our methods absolutely free of charge. Hours: 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Sunday, 10 to 12.

THE LATEST—THE GREATEST—THE MOST MARVELOUS PLAYER PIANO OF THEM ALL!

THE FARRAND-CECILIAN

88-NOTE PLAYER PIANO

Operating the Entire Keyboard Without Fatigue to the Performer.

HERETOFORE Player Pianos have either been limited to the use of only sixty-five out of the eighty-eight notes of the piano, or if they played the entire range of the piano keyboard, were such a tax upon the muscles of the legs and ankles that the fatigue of operating them was greater than the pleasure they afforded.

EVERY one knows that the really beautiful pieces of music require the entire keyboard of the piano for their proper execution, and that in rewriting them to fit the sixty-five note player, much of the brilliancy of the original music had to be eliminated.

THE objectionable fact that Player Pianos only operated sixty-five out of the eighty-eight notes was overcome some time ago by the introduction of eighty-eight note players, but it was only with the perfection of the eighty-eight note Farrand-Cecilian that both ease in operation and the playing of the entire keyboard were combined.

IN the Farrand-Cecilian Piano the expression devices are simple and positive. The tempo regulator is so sensitive that it instantly responds to the slightest wish of the operator, and the Thematic buttons soften the bass or treble at will, and accent the theme or melody so that it stands out prominently while the accompaniment is subdued. This is the original and only perfect

MELODY DEVICE

ULTIMATELY all Player Pianos will play the eighty-eight notes, but all will never be easy to operate, and any instrument that completely tires the operator is far from being a source of real enjoyment.

THESE eighty-eight note Farrand-Cecilians can be played either by hand like an ordinary piano or with the perforated music rolls as a Player Piano. All the standard sixty-five note rolls can be played upon them as well as the new eighty-eight note rolls, so that no music need be destroyed.

THE most remarkable feature about this new instrument, aside from the fact that it plays the entire keyboard, is that its Player mechanism is composed entirely of metal, which is by long odds the most vital mechanical improvement ever made in Piano Player construction.

STEEL, brass and bronze are used for all air chambers, valves and connections instead of wood, as heretofore, thus doing away with the difficulties of contraction or expansion, occasioned by climatic changes, heat or dampness, which have always caused so much trouble in the wooden action found in all Piano Players.

IT is really an instrument of eminent importance, and will prove to be of great interest to all those people who are impressed with the fact that they want a Player Piano, but who wish to be assured that they are getting the very best that money can buy.

SEE the 88-note Farrand-Cecilian on exhibition in our booth at the Southern Electrical and Industrial Exposition Your old piano taken in as part payment.

STATE HOSPITAL

How Maryland Is Warring On the White Plague.

PATIENTS THRIVE AT COLONY UP IN MOUNTAINS.

TWO HUNDRED ARE TO BE CARED FOR NEXT FALL.

BIG SUM SET ASIDE FOR WORK.

Few Marylanders realize how fast their State has advanced in the provision made for the treatment of tuberculosis, says the Baltimore News. Within about two years the rocky, barren slope of the sunny side of Loop Mountain of the Blue Ridge range has been transformed into an attractive site for a village of hospital buildings, with a large stone administration building and infirmary and eight pavilions for patients, all 1450 feet above the sea. The institution is the Maryland Tuberculosis Sanatorium.

Here, sixty-nine miles northwest of Baltimore, on the line of the Western Maryland railroad, in the extreme northwest corner of Frederick county, there has existed since last August, when the sanatorium was opened, a sufficient-to-themselves sort of colony, which has steadily grown in numbers until now there are about eighty patients and thirty employes. And by October, 1909, the number of patients will reach the extreme capacity of the institution—200. Many more will want admittance, but there will not be room.

Seven years ago no direct effort had ever been made by the Legislature to fight the disease. At the session of the General Assembly of 1902 United States Senator John Walter Smith, then Governor of Maryland, whose interests and energy were always directed to the relief of tuberculosis, dealt exhaustively with the question in his message to the Legislature, and with the vigorous co-operation of Dr. W. H. Welch, Dr. W. S. Thayer, Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs, Dr. John S. Fulton [then secretary of the State Board of Health], Senator John P. Moore, John M. Glenn and others he was able to secure the passage of the act creating the Tuberculosis Commission.

Those same public-spirited men kept up the fight at the ensuing session of 1904, aided, as they then were, by Gov. Warfield, and almost at the close of that session the bill introduced by Senator Moore authorizing the construction of a State hospital for the treatment of tuberculosis and appropriating $115,000 for that purpose was passed, of which sum $100,000 was to be used for buildings and grounds. This original appropriation was increased by an act of the last Legislature by an appropriation of $165,000 for buildings and equipment and $100,000 for two years' maintenance.

Dr. Victor F. Cullen, superintendent, assisted by Drs. Seth, Garrison and Mayhew of the medical staff, with Miss Lassen, lately of the Garfield Hospital, superintendent of nurses, ministers to the myriad demands of those in his charge.

The indefatigable hen and the humble, ruminant cow are the chief sources of food supply, for the patients dispose of more than 6,500 eggs a month and milk disappears rapidly. In addition to three substantial meals a day each patient has milk between meals. Beef, mutton and poultry are the staple articles of food. With this diet, carefully graduated exercise, long hours of rest and constant exposure to the fresh air, however cold, the patients after a little while, as a rule, gain weight and color rapidly.

The colony has its own railroad station and its own post-office and express office, all called "State sanatorium." It has its own barber—a patient—its own shoemaker—a patient—a sewage system such as no Baltimorean can boast, and a water supply which in purity and abundance leaves nothing to be desired.

In this colony up in the Blue Ridge mountains there are almost all classes, creeds and professions represented, and most of them grateful for the chance the State is giving them. Tuberculosis knows no distinction of sex or rank, or occupation, so that we find at the State sanatorium children and men, clerks and farmers, workmen, college men, teachers, physicians, women who have known little but toil and others who have known little but play.

All receive the same treatment and care, regardless of the terms they are on. The communism of disease draws them together in bonds of sympathy for each other and makes them kind. All realize the great work being accomplished for their good and are loyal to the staff.

The great majority are improving and are full of hope. But few of them are old—that is, over 35, for the pernicious, remorseless tubercle bacilli are greedy to feed upon the young.

FIREBUG BELIEVED TO HAVE APPLIED TORCH.

New Residence At Slaughter and Everett Avenues Goes Up In Flames—Loss $1,500.

A new two-story frame residence at Slaughter and Everett avenues, owned by T. J. Gnau, was destroyed by fire, believed by the firemen and police to have been of incendiary origin, at 10:40 o'clock last night. Although the building was vacant, the loss will amount to about $1,500. When the firemen arrived at the scene the flames had gained such headway that their efforts were devoted to saving adjoining property. On the way to answer the alarm, a wheel came off the No. 2 trucks at Baxter avenue and the railroad crossing. No one was injured. The fire tower was immediately notified, and the No. 6 trucks were sent instead.

Patrolmen Beckwith and Kraher, of the Highland subpolice station, say that when they went to the burning residence they found a bottle of coal oil on the back steps and other evidences which indicated that the place had been set on fire. On the rear porch of a vacant building adjoining, recently erected, and also owned by Mr. Gnau, the police say they found rubbish near the door. According to the police, oil had been poured over this and the rubbish was then set on fire. The blaze did not get a good start and went out without setting the building on fire.

OBJECTIONABLE SIGNS ON KENTUCKY RIVER CLIFFS.

[To the Editor of the Courier-Journal.]

Harrodsburg, Ky., April 9.—Some time ago I saw an article in the Courier-Journal which vividly depicted the disgust of a man from Michigan upon seeing a large, unsightly sign painted upon our wonderful cliffs at a point where thousands pass each day over High Bridge, going North and South. No one wonders at the disgust of the man from Michigan where civic pride seems to be the birthright of the people. We may talk of loyal Kentuckians, but that such signs are even permitted to deface the highways through our most beautiful country, especially that the Kentucky River cliffs should meet with the disgrace of being made to serve as billboards, speaks poorly for loyalty in Kentucky. The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly fine, and the women of Mercer county have not been idle in this matter, though nothing has been publicly said until a full investigation was made and legal action finally taken.

The civic committee of the College-street Club, of Harrodsburg, of which Mrs. Lafon Riker is chairman, took the matter up and went before the County Court, asking for the passing of such ordinances as would make it a criminal offense again to deface our cliffs or highways. Such an ordinance was promptly passed and will be rigidly enforced by the landholders in Mercer and by the county officials. The objectionable sign is already obliterated. I trust all the counties through which the Kentucky runs or borders will see that like action is taken and that Mercer will not be the only one to enter protest against such disgraces—for the man from Michigan was right, it is a disgrace. I inclose ordinance as passed at the recent meeting of the Mercer County Fiscal Court. Please publish.

F. S. R.

The Court's Action.

[From Records of Mercer County March 25, 1909.]

On motion, ordered—That the property holders be requested by the County Road Commissioner to prevent, as far as possible, objectionable advertising being placed upon the sides of cliffs and on the public highways of the county, and urge that this right be denied by said landholders.

On motion, carried—All persons are forbidden to advertise their wares or merchandise by painting signs on cliffs or roadways in Mercer county over which the county has control, such as portable or other objectionable signs, under a penalty of $100 for each offense.

LOUIS MANN COMES TO LOUISVILLE.

Louis Mann comes to Macauley's for a week's engagement commencing Monday, April 19, in his latest New York City success, "The Man Who Stood Still," in which he recently ended a five-months' run in the Circle Theater there. This is one of the three successful plays written and produced this season by a new playwright whom William A. Brady, Mr. Mann's manager, discovered. His name is Jules Eckert Goodman, and he was hailed, after the opening performance in New York City of "The Man Who Stood Still," as not only the first writer for the stage who had been successful in giving Louis Mann a really great role, but as a welcome addition to the successful group of young American playwrights. In "The Man Who Stood Still" Mr. Mann will be seen as John Krauss, a foreign-born watchmaker, who thinks that what was good enough 100 years ago—or a thousand, for that matter—is good enough for to-day. The role is filled with opportunities of which, according to the New York City newspapers, Mr. Mann takes splendid advantage.

WICKERSHAM'S BIG FEE.

[Washington Special to New York Tribune.]

The Attorney General was greatly surprised when he learned to-day that an effort had been made to create a sensation out of the fact that he had received a fee of $200,000 for the services he rendered on the reorganization committee of the Chicago traction companies. Mr. Wickersham said it was true that he had received $200,000 for his legal work on that committee, that he was engaged on the work about two years, and he considered his fee by no means remarkable; in fact, he was not at all certain that he would care to undertake a similar task again for that amount. He said that out of his fee he paid $10,000 to a younger lawyer who assisted him, doing a part of the legal work, but the remainder was deposited to the credit of the law firm of which he was a member at the time.

Mr. Wickersham said the total legal fees paid for the work of reorganization were $400,000, of which he received one-half. The remainder was paid to L. C. Krauthoff, the associate counsel in the case. There were three other members of the committee who worked out the entire scheme of reorganization of the Chicago traction companies.

NEW YORK'S PROBLEM.

[New York Times.]

So great has become the increase in passenger traffic over the various transportation lines of this city that statisticians estimate that at the present time more than 3,500,000 people are transported daily. This enormous traffic has overtaxed the facilities of transportation, though temporary relief was obtained by the construction of the Subway.

The population of Manhattan and the Bronx is nearly 50 per cent. greater and their area less than 25 per cent. of that of the other three boroughs combined, and yet a person can travel over ten miles of road in Manhattan and the Bronx in less than half the time spent in traveling the same distance through any other section of the city, and of the 3,500,000 people transported daily throughout the entire city 2,000,000 are carried by the railways operating in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx.

CEDAR FOR PENCILS.

[Country Life in America.]

The lead pencil is one of the most common articles in everyday use, and since practically the only wood used in its manufacture is red cedar and since the pencil industry is steadily growing (320,000,000 are manufactured annually in the United States) the supply of red cedar is becoming greatly depleted.

Red cedar has a soft, straight grain and is very free from defects when properly grown. Because of its peculiar qualities no good substitute for it has ever been found, and it is doubtful if any other wood-using industry is so dependent upon a single species as the pencil industry is dependent upon red cedar. It is the only wood the price of which is always quoted by the pound.

The popular belief is that the second-growth red cedar never reaches marketable size, but the forest service has made a careful study of the subject and has reached the conclusion that it can be profitably grown in regions of its development.

Some changes are recommended in the present forest management in order to secure the desired growth. In the Southern forests it must have a better chance instead of being considered, as now, a negligible quantity in its younger stages. Many of the forest-grown trees which are now cut for fence posts can profitably be left to attain their full development and thus become available for pencil wood.

CONFIDENTIAL BINDER.

[New York Sun.]

One of the odd ways of earning a living in New York is that of the confidential bookbinder. He is in great demand in banks and other large financial institutions. His tasks are usually patchwork, but occasionally of late he is intrusted with the building of a complete set of covers for a collection of papers or records that have accumulated in some of the new-fashioned filing or recording devices.

There is a man who owns a farm away out in New Jersey and spends the spring and summer on it amusing himself with his hay and butter and fruit and garden truck. About the end of September he runs up to New York and makes the round of his customers. Then he arranges a schedule according to their needs.

He will spend a week in one institution mending the backs of old ledgers and putting new leather corners on the covers. Then he will pass on to another and patch up its used up day books before they are stored away for reference. The books he handles could not possibly be sent out to a regular bindery; indeed, none but a thoroughly trusted man, one who could be relied on to see nothing and say less, could be allowed to handle them at all.

The job brings in something like double the ordinary day wages of first-rate journeymen for about eight months a year.

VESSEL'S LONG VOYAGE.

[Baltimore News.]

One of the longest voyages ever undertaken by a vessel of the United States Revenue Cutter Service will begin when the cutter Tahoma, a brand-new vessel recently turned out from a Wilmington (Del.) shipyard, will sail for Port Townsend, Wash., the base of operations for vessels of the revenue service on duty in Puget Sound.

The exact sailing date of the Tahoma has not yet been announced. From Baltimore to Port Townsend over the route which will be taken by the little vessel is about 18,000 miles, and on the voyage the Tahoma will literally sail the five seas—crossing both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, sailing the full length of the Mediterranean and Red seas and traversing the Indian Ocean.

The Tahoma is the second vessel of the revenue fleet to journey from Baltimore to the Pacific coast in the past year—the other being the cutter Snohomish, which is now on duty in Puget Sound. Unlike the Tahoma, however, the Snohomish sailed to the Pacific by way of the Straits of Magellan, which made her voyage several thousand miles shorter than that proposed for the Tahoma.

From the Capes to Port Townsend the Tahoma will sail over about the same course as that marked out by the Atlantic battleship fleet on its return from the Orient. The first stop after leaving Baltimore will be at St. Michaels, in the Azores, according to the itinerary of the voyage. From there the little vessel will proceed to Gibraltar, then to Malta, to Port Said, through the Suez Canal to the Red Sea, making a stop at Aden. The next stopping place will be Colombo, and from there the vessel will proceed to Ceylon, to Singapore, to Manilla, to Yokahama, where a brief rest will be taken before taking up the long voyage across the Pacific to Attu, the westernmost island of the Aleutian group. From Attu the Tahoma will go to Unalaska, and from that port to her destination, at Port Townsend. It is expected that about four months will be consumed on the voyage.

TRAVELS OF BIRDS.

[New York Press.]

The routes by which birds pass to and from different countries in spring and autumn are regularly followed. One great thoroughfare, of course, is in the spring from south to north, and in the autumn from north to south; another is southeast to northwest; a third southwest to northeast, with the returnto to the same starting points. The great Southern wintering region is south of the north of Africa and extends to far beyond the equator, and from it, under thes breeding instinct, birds hurry away in the spring to disperse themselves over the wide-spreading palaearctic or northern lands, which extend as far, in the case of some species, as a long way within the arctic circle. South of the equator during the Northern winter the migrants fly toward the South Pole to breed. The seasonal range limit of some of the Northern breeding birds is enormous—several extending from Patagonia to Greenland. All migratory birds have not the same range.

The best known of all of the birds of passage, the swallow, has one of the longest ranges—from 7,000 to 11,000 miles. In this extended range are also such well-known birds as the gray plover, the knot, the pectoral and curlew sandpipers and the Asiatic plover. The longer range—from 4,000 to 8,000 miles—includes such familiar birds as the cuckoo, the cornerake, the sedge warbler, the greenshank; the moderate range—from 2,000 to 4,000 miles—embraces the turtle dove, the crane, lapwing, mallard and jack snipe. Wax wings, several gulls and the eider duck have a smaller range, being something under a thousand miles.

HOUSECLEANING IN JAPAN.

[Boston Herald.]

House cleaning done by law, where at the outset policemen order tea tables, bedding, straw matting, all the Lares and Penates out on the sidewalk, where they finish their official inspection with a sprinkling of lime and antiseptic—spring house cleaning in Japan—Mrs. John L. Dearing described to the Woman's Baptist Social Union at their regular meeting in the vestry of the Park-street church. Wife of the Rev. Dr. Dearing, general missionary of the Baptist Eastern Missions, Mrs. Dearing has managed cleansing for seventeen springs in her home in the Flowery Kingdom.

"April is a busy month for the Japanese housekeeper," she said. "From attic to—alas! we have no cellar—from attic to ground floor, we get ready for the summer months of moisture. The policemen come and tell us that we must have the house cleaned by such and such a day. They go through the city by blocks. Every day the housekeepers living in one block are notified, the next day the housekeepers in another, and so on until the city is clean.

Everything has to be taken out into the street, and everything is inspected. They pour in antiseptics and lime in preparation of the coming plague. Fortunately it very seldom comes."

PRAISES FARMERS' WIVES.

[Ithaca, N. Y., Special to New York Sun.]

That farmers' wives are more apt pupils in learning how to manage a home on business principles than the wives of city men, and that they probably are better helpmeets were the declarations of Miss Martha Van Rensselaer, lecturer in home economics at Cornell University and supervisor of the farmers' wives reading course, to an audience of city women to-day.

Miss Van Rensselaer was discussing the science of home management and pointed out that nowadays it was as important for a woman to know how to run a home on business principles as it was for her husband to conduct his business that way. She said that women from the country are much easier than city women to teach scientific management of the home, and attributed this fact to a desire to be more of a helpmeet to him. This city women do not do, she said.

BOOK AGENT'S CUTE SCHEME.

[St. Louis Republic.]

A book agent copied down all the names of people he wanted to see in one of the downtown office buildings a few days ago and then called the people on the telephone.

"Is Mr. Smith there?" he would ask. "All right, I'll be over in a few minutes." After which he would hang up before Smith had time to ask who he was.

Then, "Is Mr. Smith in?" he would ask when he reached the office. Usually the stenographer would suspect that he had something to sell and tell him no. Whereupon he would retort that she must be mistaken, as he had just called Smith on the telephone and made an appointment with him.

MAYORALTY

Fight At Indianapolis Promises To Be Warm.

TAGGART AND TAYLOR MAY BE OPPOSING CANDIDATES.

BEVERIDGE'S SENATORIAL TOGA IN JEOPARDY.

GOV. MARSHALL'S POSITION.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 10.—[Special.]—That the governorship of Indiana and a possible inheritance of the Beveridge senatorial toga are to be involved in the coming mayoralty race in Indianapolis is the common talk among the political leaders since the announcement late this week that William L. Taylor and Thomas T. Taggart will probably head the Republican and Democratic tickets, respectively, for the place as chief executive of the city. In sifting out the material thus far put forward as suitable for mayoralty timber the Republicans have not lost sight of the fact that they are in a fairly secure position to demand that they be given a gubernatorial candidate from Indianapolis in 1912, while the Democrats have not lost sight of the fact that with Taggart in the Mayor's chair they would stand a pretty fair chance of landing him in the United States Senate in 1911, when Albert J. Beveridge steps down and out.

* * *

Taylor Strong With Labor Vote.

Taylor was a candidate for the nomination for Governor a year ago with James E. Watson and Charles Miller, recently appointed United States District Attorney in the place of Joseph B. Kealing, resigned, hence is out of the gubernatorial aspirants' ranks for some time to come. He is strong with the laboring element of Indianapolis as well as the entire State, and shows remarkable strength among this class of voters in his recent race for the nomination. His defeat was due to the Watson faction on the one side and the Miller faction on the other. They whipped his support back and forth between them, until Taylor was forced out of the fight. The tactics employed in the nominating convention stirred the laboring forces of the State against Watson and cost the Republicans thousands of votes in the election last fall.

* * *

Taggart's Candidacy.

In spite of Taggart's declaration to the contrary, it is said in Democratic circles that the National Democratic Committeeman and owner of the big slice of the French Lick Hotel stock will be a candidate for Mayor. All over the city Taggart's name is sufficient to bring out the declaration, in spite of his denial and in spite of the talk of other candidates, that Taggart is the man for the place, and the accumulated sentiment seems at this time to be pushing forward in Taggart's direction so rapidly that it seems that he will not be able to stem the tide, even should he wish to do so. Taggart has never, of his own apparent selection, been a candidate for any elective office, but he was twice made Mayor of Indianapolis and once made Auditor of Marion county. He would be the strongest man the Democrats could put forward as far as catching the colored vote is concerned, and the colored vote in Indianapolis is a factor which the politician cannot afford to disregard in ascertaining the conditions of his campaign. With Taggart in the Mayor's chair in 1910 it would be a comparatively easy matter for Marion county to send another Democratic delegation to the General Assembly of 1911, which will select a successor to Albert J. Beveridge, and any Marion county delegation would be for Taggart for the United States Senate at any time Taggart might so much as indicate that he would like to have the place.

* * *

Bitter Feeling Removed.

After the election of Benjamin F. Shively in the last session there was considerable bitter feeling against Taggart in the belief that he had thrown the Marion county delegation to Shively at the cost of John W. Kern, of Indianapolis, but subsequent explanations have evidently removed most of the bitter feeling, and if Taggart wishes to go to the United States Senate in 1911 and the Democrats have a majority of the votes of the General Assembly he can go, and that is all there is to it. In spite of Taggart's declaration that he has no aspirations to wear the Beveridge toga there is a pretty well established belief that the national committeeman would not be averse to adding this political honor to those he has already enjoyed.

* * *

Stotsenburg Is Mentioned.

State Senator Stotsenburg, of New Albany, who was a leader of the Democratic forces in the Senate in the recent session of the General Assembly, is another Indiana Democrat who is being talked of over the State as a successor to Senator Beveridge. Stotsenburg made an enviable record as a legislator and earned the right to be called one of the brightest young men in the General Assembly. Stotsenburg would not refuse the post if elected, and, it is understood, he will make a more or less determined fight for the place.

John E. Lamb, of Terre Haute, vice chairman of the National Executive Committee in the recent campaign, will be another candidate. He fought for the place against Shively and Kern, and when the voting reached its hottest part in the caucus, endeavored to throw his support to Kern to defeat Shively, the understanding being that Kern in 1911 would throw his force to Lamb, but the plans miscarried and the Indianapolis delegation, which was supposed to vote solidly for Kern all the way through, went to Shively and secured his election. It was charged that Taggart caused the Marion county vote to go to Shively, but this has never been proven.

* * *

Gov. Marshall's Position.

Democratic boosters who have been endeavoring to push Gov. Marshall into the limelight as a candidate for United States Senator are receiving not a bit of encouragement.

"I am not a candidate for the United States Senate nor for anything else," he declared. "Just now I am trying to learn how to be a good Governor for the State of Indiana. I don't want to think of going after another office. When I am done with this I am going to return to the practice of law."

* * *

Attitude Toward Gambling.

The Governor's attitude toward the French Lick gambling resorts has caused not a little comment since it became known to-day that he had submitted evidence gathered by Attorney General Bingham in the hands of Frank S. Houston, Prosecuting Attorney for Orange and Washington counties, with instructions to Houston to proceed to prosecute the gamekeepers for violations of the State law against gambling. In his address on the day of his inauguration Gov. Marshall declared that in all matters of law enforcement, it was clearly the business of the local authorities, until they showed that they were unwilling to perform the task. Houston has not yet shown that he will not try to stop the gambling, and until he shows the white feather Gov. Marshall is inclined to give him the benefit of the doubt. Evidence that gambling was in progress at French Lick and West Baden was mailed to Houston to-day.

DIRECTORS OF MUSICAL ART SOCIETY PLEASED

OVER INTEREST IN COMING APPEARANCE OF MME. EAMES.

SINGS AT WOMAN'S CLUB ON EVENING OF MAY 14.

AN INTERESTING PROGRAMME.

The directors of the Musical Art Society are much gratified over the interest which has been shown in the coming appearance of Emma Eames—April 14—at the Woman's Club. At great expense the services of the great singer weer secured, and at a loss—financially—the prices of seats have been made the most reasonable of any charged during the tour upon which Mde. Eames is at present engaged.

From time to time a great deal has been written about the singing of the great soprano, and likewise, from time to time, great and striking improvements in her voice have been noticed by the musical writers, but all agree that upon the present recital tour she has excelled any work done hereofore. According to her own statements, Mme. Eames has greatly enjoyed the close contact with the masses of the people into which her tour has thrown her, and as she is a most enthusiastic American, her love for her own people has been greatly enhanced.

For the tour, to do honor to her American audiences, Mme. Eames acquired a very elaborate wardrobe, the gowns coming mostly from Worth, and her appearances have had a value, especially to women, not entirely musical. Descriptions of the gowns in which Mme. Eames has appeared at various points are very dazzling, and should mean much to the feminine division of her audience here.

The sale of seats has gone forward briskly since it was opened on Thursday. The small auditorium of the Woman's Club will not accommodate a very large audience, and should every seat be sold the cost of the recital will not have been made good. This loss, however, is gladly taken, according to the directors of the Musical Art Society, in order to place within the reach of musical persons a great entertainment.

The programme which Mme. Eames will present on Wednesday evening has been carefully selected with respect to the tastes and preferences of Louisville audiences, and its numbers are musical works of recognized value and importance. The programme follows:

I.

Nina ..... Pergolesi
My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair.Haydn

ONE OF THE PAGES FOR MEETING OF D. A. R. TO BE HELD IN WASHINGTON

MISS SARAH GIBSON CHENAULT.

Lexington, Ky., April 10.—(Special.)—Miss Sarah Gibson Chenault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher D. Chenault, of this city, has been officially appointed one of the pages for the National Congress of the D. A. R., to be held in Washington, D. C., on April 17, and her friends in the younger social set in Lexington and Central Kentucky are highly elated that such an honor has been conferred upon the young woman.

Miss Chenault's mother is a daughter of the late Mrs. Sarah Gibson Humphrey, a noted Southern writer, and a niece of the late Senator Randall Gibson, of Louisiana. Miss Chenault is one of the most popular young schoolgirls in Lexington, possessing a promising voice. She is greatly interested in outdoor sports, being particularly fond of horseback riding, and though only a girl in years, is noted for her ability in the saddle.

Possessing a wealth of rich red hair and dainty coloring, she is greatly admired for her individuality.

Mrs. Chenault, who will chaperon her daughter to the National Congress, is State regent of the D. A. R. and a prominent Colonial Dame, and was formerly president of the U. D. C. of Lexington. She is one of the most cultured women in Kentucky and takes a prominent part in the affairs of her State.

CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE GAME WARDENS

GOV. DAVIDSON TESTIFIES BEFORE SENATORIAL INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE.

Madison, Wis., April 10.—Gov. James O. Davidson faced a senatorial primary investigation committee about an hour and a half to-day and told in detail the circumstances surrounding the $1,200 campaign fund subscribed by the game wardens of the State and left at his office by Chief Game Warden James W. Stone. Gov. Davidson repeated his statement previously made that the money was given him in two packages, containing $1,000 and $200 respectively. Stone testified that he made three visits and that the amounts were $500 on two occasions and $200 on the third.

The Governor said that when the $1,000 package was handed to him others were in the room, and he had no chance to speak with the game warden. When Mr. Stone came the second time the Governor said he tried to hail him, but that the game warden left the office and gave him no chance to question him.

The $1,200 was not used by the Governor, he said, and after repeated attempts to get an interview with Stone, without being able to see him, the Governor finally deposited the money in the shape of a certified check.

The Governor said he never authorized anyone to solicit campaign funds for him, and that he told the game wardens in his office a year ago last March not to interfere with politics.

According to a mathematician of the School Board, New York City spends annually on the education of its children $5 for each inhabitant.

HELP OF COURTS

Asked To Settle Saddle Horse Breeders' Troubles.

COHEN FACTION PLAINTIFFS IN SUIT FOR INJUNCTION.

MILK WAGON TAX OF $5 A YEAR HELD TO BE ILLEGAL.

IN THE COURTS YESTERDAY.

As was promised on Friday night, suit on the part of the Cohen faction of the stockholders of the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association was brought in the Circuit Court yesterday against the Castleman faction of the organization. Of the officers and directors elected by both factions all are named as parties to the suit except Ion B. Nall, chosen as secretary by one and then another faction, and J. W. Newman, who has been elected to the office of secretary by the Castleman faction. The plaintiffs sue in the name of the association, of which they represent themselves to be the duly elected officers.

The stormy times of Friday are reviewed briefly in the petition, which was filed yesterday morning by Elliott K. Fennebaker and Greene & Tilford, representing Mat S. Cohen and those who organized the second convention on that day. The parties to the suit are identified according to the office to which they were named. The plaintiffs and defendants are listed as follows:

Plaintiffs, the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association, Powhatan Wooldridge, J. Gano Johnson, M. F. Arbuckle, Allen S. Edelin, Mat S. Cohen, John E. Gray, W. H. Northcutt, J. A. Tuttle and Gus Ball.

Defendants, John B. Castleman, W. R. Goodwin, Attilla Cox, David Castleman, J. T. Woodford, W. T. Collins, B. L. Bond, Philip Weissinger, Scott Isbell, J. W. Bates.

Matter of Proxy Important.

It is asserted that the plaintiff corps of officers were elected duly according to the constitution and by-laws of the association, which provide that the officers of the association shall be elected by a majority vote of the stockholders at a regularly assembled meeting at which the stockholders shall be present either in person or by proxy. Stress appears to be laid on the expression "by proxy," and it is understood that the whole question at law may hinge on this point.

The plaintiffs set forth that the defendants are in possession of stock registers, books, records and money belonging to the association, of which it would be impossible to duplicate the records and registers in which are listed the breedings of many horses. The specific amount of money, something like $7,000, said to be in the keeping of Attilla Cox, is not mentioned, nor is the other property in question listed in detail.

* * *

What the Suit Asks For.

The suit asks for a temporary restraining order and later a permanent injunction by which the defendants shall be prohibited and restrained from:

"Exercising any of the functions of officers;

"Opening any of the mail addressed to the association;

"Indorsing and signing checks as officers of the association;

"Disposing of any of the books or money of the association; or from

"Holding themselves out to the public as the officers of the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association."

In the same breath the court is also asked to grant a mandatory injunction requiring the defendants to turn over to the plaintiffs as the regularly elected officers of the association all the stock registers, books, records and money of the association. They ask, further, that they, as plaintiffs, be declared the regularly elected officers of the association.

Milk Wagon License Illegal.

Ruling yesterday in joint session on questions raised by demurrers in the case of A. J. Weikel and other dairymen against the city and the Sinking Fund Commission, Judge Samuel B. Kirby held that the ordinance which imposes a special tax of $5 a year on milk wagons is invalid. Judge Kirby read rather an elaborate opinion in the matter, discussing the questions involved in the action and quoting the authorities.

He said that the question of the $5 tax, which is assessed by ordinance on each wagon operated by dairymen, had been plainly answered in the dairymen's favor by the Court of Appeals. In passing on a case in which a similar Covington ordinance was involved, the Appellate Court held that this tax was illegal because it was levied on interests singled out among others.

As to the matter of the regular $3 a year vehicle tax, which milk wagon owners have been required to pay to the city in common with all other vehicle owners Judge Kirby held that, were the $5 tax legal, the city would not have the right to tax the same property again.

The action seeks the recovery by the plaintiffs of whatever they may have paid into the city treasury under this illegally imposed tax. Judge Kirby quoted a number of decisions, mostly in liquor cases, in which taxes wrongfully collected have been recovered and said that he saw no reason why the plaintiffs should not prosecute the action to recover. He pointed out that the fact that the ignorance of plaintiffs that the ordinance under which the tax was collected was void, could not be weighed against them.

He sustained the demurrer of the Sinking Fund Commissioner, holding that in the matter the commissioners were acting only for the principal, which is named in the suit. The plaintiffs in the action are represented by Arthur B. Bensinger and J. B. Weaver. The question as to recovery of taxes paid in is yet to be adjudicated.

Six Decrees of Divorce Granted.

The following six decrees of divorce were read yesterday by the Chancellors at joint session:

Josie Hockersmith, on her counterclaim, was granteed a divorce from W. H. Hockeresmith, whose suit charged improper conduct. The counter-claim alleged a statutory cause for divorce and denied the charges made by her husband. They were married in Jefferson county on July 28, 1902. The wife's maiden name, Josie Bewley, is restored, and she is allowed $5 a week allimony.

Blanche McCollum was granted a divorce from Oscar McCollum on the grounds of abandonment, and her maiden name of Blanche Miller is restored. They were married in Indiana in 1908.

John Hardin was given a divorce from Emma Hardin; abandonment alleged. They were married in Jeffersonville in February, 1877.

James Martin was granted a divorce from Ada Wallace Martin; five years' separation alleged. They were married in May, 1890.

Jennie B. Hawkins was granted a divorce from Benjamin Hawkins; abandonment alleged. They were married on March 18, 1907. The plaintiff is given the custody of her son, Benjamin.

Mary H. Smith is given a divorce from Harley F. Smith for cruel treatment. They were married on April 22 1908, and lived together until December 31 of that year.

Recovery, But No Receivership.

In an exhaustive opinion by Judge Shackelford Miller which was read at joint session yesterday Thomas Villecod was given a judgment against the Standard Trust Company of Delaware for the recovery of a sum of money he had paid to the defendant company, but the receivership he asked for the business of the company in Kentucky was refused. The petitioner set forth that he had entered into a contract with the Eastern concern by which he expected to be enabled to borrow enough money to build him a house.

He said that he had paid into the company $72 he thought he was to have to pay before he should be allowed to borrow the $1,000 he wanted. He charged misrepresentation and asked, suing for himself and others in similar situations, that a receiver be named for the company. Judge Miller observed that whereas there were a thousand or more subscribers to the defendant's proposition in Kentucky, only ten joined with him to ask for the receivership.

Will of Samuel H. Stone.

Col. Samuel H. Stone, by his will, dated June 6, 1908, divides his estate among his wife and his two sons. He directs that half of all his property shall go to his wife, Mrs. Pattie Stone, absolutely, and that the remaining half shall be divided between his sons, James C. Stone and Samuel H. Stone, Jr. He names James C. Stone as executor, to serve as such without bond. Col. Stone died a week ago yesterday after a long illness and the will, which is a very brief document, was probated yesterday.

Big Damage Verdict Upheld.

In refusing to give a new trial in the case of Mrs. Rossa Wellington against the Louisville Railway Company Judge O'Doherty yesterday upheld a damage verdict of $7,125 given in his court on February 11. The new trial had been sought on the ground that the amount was excessive and that the court erred in instructing the jury.

Mrs. Wellington on September 8, 1907, boarded a Greenwood-avenue car to return from the White City. Negroes, by which the car was largely occupied, pushed, pulled and struck Mrs. Wellington and the conductor failed to go to her assistance. Mrs. Wellington was represented by George Weissinger Smith and C. R. Dinwiddie.

QUEEN OF ACTRESSES PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE.

"I Am Glad To Write My Endorsement Of The Great Remedy Pe-ru-na. I Do So Most Heartily."
Julia Marlowe.

ANY remedy that benefits digestion strengthens the nerves.

The nerve centers require nutrition. If the digestion is impaired, the nerve centers become anemic, and indigestion is the result.

Peruna is not a nervine nor a stimulant. It benefits the nerves by benefiting digestion.

Peruna frees the stomach of catarrhal congestion and normal digestion is the result.

In other words, Peruna goes to the bottom of the whole difficulty, when the disagreeable symptoms disappear.

Mrs. J. C. Jamison, 61 Marchant street, Watsonville, Cal., writes:

"I was troubled with my stomach for six years. I tried many kinds of medicine, also was treated by three doctors.

"They said that I had nervous dyspepsia. I was put on a liquid diet for three months.

"I improved under the treatment, but as soon as I stopped taking the medicine, I got bad again.

"I took the medicine for two years, then I got sick again and gave up all hopes of getting cured.

"I saw a testimonial of a man whose case was similar to mine being cured by Peruna, so I thought I would give it a trial.

"I procured a bottle at once and commenced taking it. I have taken several bottles and am entirely cured.

"I have gained in strength and feel like a different person. I believe Peruna is all that is claimed for it."

Nervines, such as coal tar preparations, are doing a great deal of harm. Sleep medicines and headache powders are all alike—heart depressants, and should not be used. The nerves would be all right, if the digestion were good. Peruna corrects the digestion.

BAZAR IN INTEREST OF EDUCATIONAL WORK.

The junior class of the Semple Collegiate School will hold its annual bazar on the afternoon and evening of May 15.

For four years past this class of young women has held a sale of their own handiwork, the proceeds of which have been devoted to the educational work in the mountains of Kentucky. Two scholarships have been maintained, and while pursuing their own educations with every advantage which the metropolis of the State can afford they have not been unmindful of their less fortunate sisters. Thus, when their own school days are ended, two girls at least will have been helped to higher and better things through their efforts.

There will be offered for sale everything which appeals to the needs and desires of femininity—fancy work of all kinds, desk furnishings, college pillows and pennants; a housekeeper's table with aprons, both plain and fancy; pickles, preserves, jellies, cakes and candies, besides other articles too numerous to mention.

The sale will occupy the afternoon, while the evening hours will be given over to a lawn fete, with suitable refreshments.

The doctors requested that Mrs. Sturgeon fast to reduce her weight, that the operation might be performed. She did as they suggested, and during the entire time of the fast did all of her usual housework, though her husband asked that she rest. Following the fast for a few days she was given a light vegetable

A Story From the Heart

The story of Sister May Spencer is the story of a thousand others, people who made themselves well and strong by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Some people talk lightly of constipation, but it is no laughing matter. It leads to serious diseases. It stops the machinery of the human system, and think of what that means.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL.
Look for this picture on the package.

The letter from Sister May speaks for itself. The original is three times as long. It goes into the details of how good she feels now, of how thankful her husband is, for she has been married only a little over a year. She has been a Christian worker all her life, and she makes this letter public from a sense of duty. She feels that other mothers (for she has since become a mother herself) ought to know about Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Thousands already know it as the best family laxative, best for the babies, the children, the women and the old folks. These need the kind of laxative that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is—gentle in action but effective, pleasant to the taste, nongriping. It also contains tonic properties that build up and strengthen the stomach muscles, and in that way a permanent cure is brought about, for soon you can do without medicine of any kind. Its purity is vouched for to the Government. Its price is only 50 cents or $1 a bottle, either of which is sufficient for a world of good. Once you have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin you will never again resort to salts, cathartic tablets, purgative waters or such things, for at best they only do temporary good. We want you to know this remedy if you suffer from any stomach, liver or bowel complaint, and, if you like, Dr. Caldwell will send you a free trial bottle direct to your home on receipt of your name and address.

Inclosed please find just a little photo of myself to put to your own use, to help spread the glad news of your wonderful medicine called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I did not stop with the sample you sent me (but I must say it started my bowels to move), but I bought a 50-cent bottle of our druggist, and took it all, and have now bought a $1.00 bottle to keep in the house. Now believe me when I tell you that I took everything to move my bowels, but everything failed. After my baby was born, I did not make but one passage in two weeks, and then I used the syringe. For four nights I took salts. Well, while all this was going on, I was reading in the papers about your wonderful medicine, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, but I never believed in anything like that, but I thought, just for fun, I would try it. I did try it, and I am glad to say, after all else failed, it cured me, and my stomach and bowels work perfectly now.—Mrs. Fred Hoffman, Jr., better known as May Spencer, 19 Bancroft street (Salvation Army), Toledo, Ohio.

PROPOSE TO FIGHT AGAINST INCREASE

REALTY BROKERS TO APPEAR BEFORE TAX COMMISSION.

DECLARE BURDEN OF TAXATION ALREADY HEAVY.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE NAMED.

Prominent real estate brokers, affiliated with the Louisville Real Estate Association, are preparing to resist efforts to advance the tax assessment on real estate in Louisville and Jefferson county. The first step in the direction of opposition to the proposed increase was taken late Friday afternoon, when, at an important meeting of the board of directors, a committee was appointed to urge the tax commission appointed by Gov. Willson not to impose a higher rate than property-owners and real estate men are subject to now. While no definite statement is made as to what proportions the controversy will assume when the matter is aired before the commission here April 24 it is generally predicted that both sides will take a firm stand.

A prominent broker identified with the association said yesterday that under the present system property-owners and real estate men are subjected to some inconvenience, to say nothing of what conditions will be if a change is ordered adverse to the interests of real estate. Primarily the committee appointed by the board of directors will seek to persuade the tax commission to modify the assessment on mortgaged property. Should the commission decide on a proposed plan of taxation for this class of real estate now under consideration, it is understood that property-owners will have to pay taxes on the full value of the property they own regardless of whether or not it has been fully paid for. The real estate men declare that taxes should only be paid on the amount of the installment paid down on the real estate.

The committee to which the matter has been intrusted is composed of J. S. Ray, Ambrose Bruner, Hancock Taylor and Thomas Bohannon.

This committee will present the grievances of the real estate men to the commission on April 24 prior to or at a meeting of the commission scheduled for that date at The Seelbach.

The question of a real estate exchange to be established in Louisville within the real estate association was also taken up at the meeting of the board Friday. It was decided unanimously to send out a call for a special meeting Tuesday, April 20, to hear a report of a committee appointed recently to consider the proposition. It is said that at a meeting of this committee several days ago the majority voted against the real estate exchange, but one member favors the idea and will submit a minority report at the special meeting next week. It is believed that sixty or seventy prominent realty brokers will attend this conference, which will be held in the directors' room of the Louisville Trust Company.

FAMOUS SINGER

To Appear Here In the May Music Festival.

MME. OLIVE FREMSTAD EARNS $100,000 A YEAR.

MEN NOT A NECESSARY PART OF HER EXISTENCE.

STORY OF EARLY STRUGGLES.

Madame Olive Fremstad, the famous prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who is to be one of the chief figures of the May Music Festival, to be held here May 6, 7 and 8, has attracted a great deal of attention of late by declaring that opera singers should not have large families, and adding the rather gratuitous remark that she doesn't think that men are necessary parts of her scheme of existence.

The most interesting commentary upon all this is that she has a husband, who is a naval officer, and to whom she is devoted. Yet in the same breath with which she extolled his virtues, she announced calmly that she could live and be happy without him. Her comment regarding the effect of children on art and vice versa stirred up a fever of discussion for a while, but it is frankly quite likely to have little result, as a question of that kind can be decided only by the individual.

Fremstad's declarations on these subjects give one an idea of her quick, original mind, and her ability to think for herself. She is not only one of the greatest singers on the grand opera stage, but is also one of the recognized beauties of the music world. It is this combination of beauty of body and beauty of mind, together with her mastery of her art, that has placed her upon the topmost round.

* * *

Earns Princely Salary.

Mme. Fremstad is now one of the seven musicians who earn as much as $100,000 a year by their talents, and yet not many years ago she was a young and obscure girl, struggling for a chance to educate herself along musical lines, and teaching the piano in order to get enough money to support herself. It was her pluck as much as her genius that won for her the place she now possesses, and that is one of the reasons why her popularity is so great.

Fremstad was born in Sweden, but in all essentials she is American. She came to this country with her parents when a child, and had the distinction of growing up in St. Peter's and going to school there with Gov. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota. When she grew a little older her musical ambitions developed, and she went to New York.

It is a splendid and inspiring story to hear how she succeeded. First she played accompaniments for a singing teacher to pay for her lessons. Later she began to sing in church choirs, and little by little, all of the time keeping up by the hardest kind of hard work, she developed into a recital singer.

Following a successful concert tour she went abroad. Her study under Lilli Lehmann, whose place she was later to take with the Metropolitan, developed her into a good enough singer to take her place in the Cologne Opera. She sang there, and at the Royal Opera in Vienna, as well as the Royal Opera of Munich, the Paris Grand Opera and Covent Garden, London, before being engaged by the Metropolitan.

In New York the retirement of Eames and Sembrich have left her without a serious rival for first honors as a soprano, and she may be classed without protest as the greatest woman singer in America to-day. She will appear on the final night of the festival, Saturday, May 8, and her singing is expected to mark one of the greatest musical events in the history of the city.

COUNTY ASSESSOR TO ARGUE AGAINST PROPOSED INCREASE

Thomas Ryans Appears Before State Board of Equalization On April 19.

Through the Sheriff yesterday Judge Arthur Peter, of the County Court, received formal notification from the Capital of the action of the State Board of Equalization in increasing the assessment of Jefferson county by 5 per cent. Thomas Ryans, County Assessor, said yesterday that the State board had fixed April 19 as the date on which he will be heard against the raising of such an assessment and that he will appear before the board on that date.

STATE-WIDE

Campaign For Better Sanitary Conditions

STARTED BY FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS.

INITIAL MEETING HELD HERE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

NOTED WORKER IS COMING.

A State-wide movement, looking to better sanitation and more cleanly conditions, was launched under favorable auspices at an enthusiastic joint meeting of the State Board of Health and the State Federation of Women's Clubs, held in the Medical Library in the Atherton building yesterday afternoon. The gathering, embracing a number of influential and energetic persons, was presided over by Dr. J. M. Matthews, president of the State Board of Health, and Dr. William Bailey.

The purpose of the meeting, as outlined, was to devise plans for making a general and thorough inspection of sanitary conditions in the State as they apply to general cleanliness and health. It is proposed to work for a more rigid and wide-reaching inspection law and laws more strict in their application to every form of unwholesomeness. It is hoped that by State-wide concert of action and judicious educational work that these laws may be brought about and enforced. That the movement contemplated is to be expansive in scope was indicated by those present and participating in the meeting. They are the official representatives of the laws already in vogue, provided for by both State and Nation.

* * *

Medical Men.

Dr. Benjamin W. Smock, County Health Officer; Dr. T. H. Baker, City Health Officer; Dr. Gearey, stationed here as an attache of the Federal Inspection Bureau; Dr. P. T. Eisenman, State Veterinarian, and Dr. M. K. Allen, president of the County Medical Society, were the medical men present, all of whom made addresses advocating the movement.

Dr. T. H. Baker said there are about 100 slaughter-houses in the city which are run without restriction and little inspection, so far as the State is concerned. He said that the ordinances regulating them are inadequate, and recommended more strict regulation as to sanitation. Dr. Baker heartily favors the proposed State-wide movement.

Dr. Eisenman talked of the dairies, which, he said, are in a fair condition, but subject to improvement. He said the inspection system under the ordinance recently passed by the General Council would better those conditions, but that the dairies all over the State should be under rigid rules of inspection and regulated by a stringent sanitary law.

It was suggested that Mrs. Caroline Bartlett Crane, of Kalamazoo, Mich., who is president of the Civic Improvement League in her home city, be asked to come to Kentucky and make lectures and an inspection of conditions as an initial step in the movement. Mrs. Crane was at one time at the head of the Health Department in her home city, and is thoroughly familiar with every phase of sanitary inspection. It was decided to have her come to Kentucky the latter part of May and visit and lecture at a number of points. It was also decided that Dr. Eisenman shall escort her on the itinerary. She is to be appointed a special State inspector for Kentucky.

* * *

Workers In the Cause.

Representing the State Federation of Women's Clubs at the meeting were Mrs. Letcher Riker, of Harrodsburg, president of the State Federation; Miss Lilla M. Breed, chairman of the food sanitation committee of the State Federation; Miss Frances Ingram, of the Organized Charities of Louisville; Mrs. C. L. Martin and Mrs. J. L. Woodbury, representing the Alumnae Club; Mrs. John D. White, of the civic committee of the Woman's Club. To these women may be accorded the credit for the inauguration of the proposed movement. They have discussed the subject in their clubs for some time, and its success depends largely upon their work.

When Mrs. Crane comes to Kentucky she will have mapped out for her an itinerary beginning at Newport or Covington at a joint meeting of the people of those cities. She will then visit Cynthiana, Lexington, Winchester, Richmond, Berea, Frankfort, Harrodsburg, Danville, Louisville, Bowling Green, Paducah, Owensboro, reaching the latter place June 8, where she will be present at the State meeting of Women's Clubs. At Richmond, Berea, Bowling Green and in Louisville Mrs. Crane will deliver special lectures to teachers.

WHEN SHE OBJECTED.

[San Francisco Argonaut.]

A young man, who looked every inch the bridegroom, stood in the rotunda of a Chicago hotel the other day telling a friend of the manner of his proposal to his bride. She had known of his wild ways and fondly hoped to reform him through marriage. "After I had popped the question and she had accepted me," he said, "I at once began to talk about the wedding. 'We shall go away somewhere by ourselves, my dear,' I said; 'there will be no flourish, no cards, no ceremony'—here she interrupted me, and, with a dignified sweep of her arm, declared, 'Mr. ——, I shall certainly insist upon a ceremony.'"

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pains in my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — Mrs. Emma Imse, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

ARE YOU DEAF?

WHY LET YOUR FRIENDS SUFFER?

Your friends are more sensitive about your deafness than you, yourself, so why should you impose on them?

You probably know that a telephone operator's hearing is the most acute. This is due to the fact that the electrical vibrations act upon the ear drums in such a manner as to produce a very keen sense to sound—such is the principle of

THE ELECTROPHONE.

It is a tiny, electric telephone that fits on the ear, and which, the instant it is applied, magnifies the sound waves in such a manner as to cause an astonishing increase in the clearness of all sounds. It overcomes the buzzing and roaring ear noises, and also so constantly and electrically exercises the nerves and vital parts of the ear that usually the natural, unaided hearing itself is gradually restored to perfect condition.

PLEASING MUSICAL AND VAUDEVILLE ENTERTAINMENT

The musical and vaudeville performance given under the auspices of the central committee, Catholic Knights of America, at Liederkranz Hall, promises to be an artistic and social success. Messrs. Bob Speaker, John J. Flynn, David Maloney, Thomas D. Clines, Philip Hager, Will Martin and Tello Webb, and Misses Leola Walton Bierach, Abbie Chester, Rosalie and Olivia Wempe will present vocal and instrumental music, recitations, fancy dances, monologues, etc. Each of the performers is an artist in his or her line, and the programme will come as a pleasant diversion after the solemnities of Lent.

The Catholic Knights of America is one of the oldest Catholic fraternal insurance societies in the United States and is of Southern origin. It was founded a little over thirty years ago after a terrible scourge of yellow fever had laid waste many Southern cities and towns. Since its establishment it has distributed several millions of dollars among widows and orphans, and is to-day on a sound financial basis.

It Ought To Be Settled.

Mayor Grinstead is now an announced candidate for re-election to his present office, as it has been long perfectly apparent that he was an actual candidate.

In this course he has concluded to take the risk of his ineligibility under our organic law.

Is he really ineligible?

Good lawyers say that he is.

Other good lawyers say that he is not.

The point ought to be definitely and authoritatively settled. It will be an excellent time to settle it if either the Mayor or any other of the candidates for re-election who are in the same boat with him should receive a majority of the votes next November. Their eligibility should at once be referred to the courts for final adjudication.

We ought to have the law in such cases construed. We ought to know whether the law really means what its spirit means or whether it can be set aside on a hairsplitting quibble.

Its purpose is plain. It was intended to remove all temptation from an official to use his office primarily to further his personal political fortunes rather than primarily to serve the interest of his constituents, regardless of any effect his action might have on his personal political fortunes. It is clearly indisputable that an official may thus violate the spirit of the law as well in two years as in four years. Any contention that the law does not apply to such an official is merely a bit of legal thimblerigging to get around the law. No one, lawyer or layman, can make anything else out of it.

It is time that our highest court should pass upon this point. It should have an opportunity to do so if the Mayor or any of his fellow officials to whom the same conditions apply should be successful in securing, by the very methods which it is the object of the law to prevent, a majority of the votes at the polls next fall.

It would be better if this question could be settled by the court before they make their campaign; but if that cannot be done it ought to be done when there is the first chance to do it.

Bogus Pleas Resisted.

The Governor takes a common-sense view of the matter when he refuses to pardon a Pulaski county man who wished to escape a three-years' penitentiary sentence for killing his wife's mother on the ground that both "emotional insanity" and "the unwritten law" figured fundamentally in his case. It seems that the prisoner undertook to kill his wife, believing her unfaithful. One shot took effect in the wife's body and the second struck the mother-in-law, who had rushed forward to save the wife. The mother-in-law died instantly.

"I take no stock in this 'emotional insanity'" comments the Governor in refusing the prayer; "he practically condoned his wife's sins and came back to her twice or more and finally drew a pistol, which he carried habitually, and shot his wife and accidentally shot her mother." The Governor adds that the verdict of the jury was merciful. And so it was. A three-years' imprisonment is a light enough punishment.

"Emotional insanity" and "unwritten law" are mere buncombe whereby the violation of the law, the very scorn of the machinery of law and the evasion of high demands of humanity and human intercourse are condoned, excused or even applauded.

"Emotional insanity" and "the unwritten law" usually turn their tricks with juries. Such cases, of course, do not get as far as Governors, so Governors do not often have the opportunity to resist a plea based on such grounds. The place where the fake pretensions should be mainly whipped is the jury box. Men from whom juries are picked should be inculcated with a higher sense of their responsibility to society and a lower regard for the crime that parades under the shelter of "emotional insanity" and "the unwritten law." The influence of Governors can count, be it acknowledged. Positive contempt on their part of the petitions founded on such pleas and a firm opposition to the idea that a man who takes the law into his own hands when the law itself affords adequate remedy is excusable can be strongly effective in shaping public opinion. Also, such a stand is valuable in upholding the integrity of the law in the particular cases where the Governors may so act.

In his fixed aversion for "emotional insanity" and "the unwritten law" in the case of the Pulaski county man, Gov. Willson takes the side of society and society's laws against the spirit of lawlessness and he does a very proper and sensible thing.

Algernon Charles Swinburne.

"Whether he was or was not a man of genius—whether his genius, if he had such a thing, was wide or narrow, deep or shallow, complete or incomplete—became at once, for the moment, a matter in some quarters of something like personal controversy. * * * He has left not a few pages which, if they do not live as long as the English language, will fail to do so through no fault of their own. His vivid and vehement force of style, his passionate belief and ardent delight in the greatness of his calling, would have conferred interest on a literary figure with less serious pretentions to regard."

These words, written of Charles Reade by Swinburne, may not unfairly be written of Swinburne, a man who, by the consent of a great company of witnesses and by right of articulate achievement, has justified his turbulent beginnings. At his best he was a truly great writer of a truly noble genius; one capable of vehement ambitions; one who did nothing that was common or easy, that was not wrought with care and conscience; one who received the tribute of misrepresentation, as he did plaudit and panegyric, with an equal unconcern.

The actions, the passions, the mysteries of man attracted and inspired him. He had the pathetic fallacies, the sublimity of emotion, the passionate indignation that distinguish polemical verse; he could be meditative and tender, cynical or heroic, incomparably dainty, bewilderingly joyous. Exquisite and terrible in turns, he surrendered alike to the wisdom of children, the second sight of lovers, the afflatus of the prophet. His passion was for perfection of form and harmony; for a distinctive and special appeal, for a matchless completion of execution, a melodious brilliance and finish—and all these he achieved. As a workman in words he stands among the gods of English verse.

It was Swinburne who divided the craft into two classes—the gods of harmony and creation, the giants of energy and invention. He had all the qualities which he conceded to Ben Jonson, "color, form, variety, fertility, vigor," and he possessed, besides, the gift of fragrance, that singing power which in verse "answers to the odor of a blossom, to the coloring of a picture, to the flavor of a fruit—that quality without which they may be good, commendable, admirable, but cannot be delightful," and thus, according to his own tests, he must take seat with those who are born divine, rather than with those whose labors were Titanic; among the gods of song, and above those who were merely inspired craftsmen.

On one occasion, it was as far back as 1866, James Russell Lowell said of "Atalanta in Calydon" that it showed that "poverty of thought and profusion of imagery which are at once the defect and the compensation of all youthful poetry, even Shakespeare," but that it gave promise of rare achievement. No one was more ready than Mr. Lowell to concede that the promise had been most amply kept, and that the fault of "expression pushed to the last gasp of senseless exhaustion" had been overcome. It may almost be said that Swinburne became a classic in his own lifetime, and that he had come to be spoken of as one embalmed in memory; certain it is that his death removes the one conspicuous and commanding survival of an age which includes names no less noble than Tennyson and Hugo, Matthew Arnold and Sully-Prudhomme.

Arrived beyond the Psalmist's age Swinburne, whether as poet or critic or personality, remained in great measure an unknown figure to the noisy public which invades the privacy of the great. They had forgotten the battles that raged around his first volume, the clatter and the censure and the scorn; they had forgotten his splendid advocacy of republicanism, his noble utterances on national issues, his passionate confidence in a sublimated theology.

Great as a poet he was great in friendship. Mazzini and Hugo were at once his friends and his masters; Burne-Jones, Rossetti and Watts-Dunton his nearest and most intimate associates, and it was to the latter that he inscribed his collected works in these words:

"It is nothing to me that what I write should find immediate or general acceptance; it is much to know that on the whole it has won for me the right to address this dedication and inscribe this edition to you."

Easter.

It does not require religious fervor for a human being within civilized borders to feel the joy of Easter. If today be gloomy with leaden skies and chill winds the air will still be pervaded with the jubilation of a race. If the sun shines and the skies are eloquently soft and blue, the gladness will move from heart to heart with subtle, electric swiftness.

It is this magic power of the day—this magic power which penetrates into the spirit of the callous, the wayfarer, the passive pagan no less than the devout—that distinguishes Easter among the festivals of earth. You may never have been in church in all your life; you may never have conceived in all your days a religious thought; the divinity of Him who rose on this Resurrection day may not have caused you a moment of study, but you will feel somehow—through the mysterious operation of the subtle forces of the day—the thrill of Easter. The gala moods of the many will surcharge the very air, and from the very air you and your neighbor, if you be not actuated by religious warmth itself, will derive some of the feeling of joy and of exaltation. The parades of the young along the streets of town and through the lanes of country, the anthems which will peal from the million voices, the diapasons of the organs that will swell through ten thousand churches, the perfume of the millions of flowers that will bloom upon altars—all these elements will weave about the civilized world a garland of joy, whose influence none who comes into contact with it can resist, whose inspiration none may deny.

To the religious, of course, the day speaks its sublime message which the materialistic onlooker either does not hear or, hearing, does not heed. To the religious the day is indescribably glorious in its significance. There is a strong, beautiful note of the celestial in its harmony. Heaven itself seems by the wonderful nature of the day to be brought nearer to earth. If there are angels they seem to hover in the air on Easter morning.

Why is it that the day should cast such a spell about civilized mankind, even about those of the civilized world who are not religious in thought or aspiration? Why is it that the man in the street catches the spiritual joy of the feast, although the Resurrection may be to him an untold tale? Why do you walk through the thoroughfares and the lanes conscious, without the definite thought of it, that there is a superb gladness all about you? It may be because nature is about to awaken into new life, issuing forth from the somber garb of winter into the gay green of spring, because the blossoms are beginning to peep out for a new season of life. But were that the cause one spring day might be as inspiriting as another; but no spring day approaches Easter in the all-pervading and irresistible quality of its joy. Why?

What if there should be at the bottom of the phenomenon that magic element which philosophy firmly recognizes—the influence of mind over mind, of thought over thought, of will over will; the psychic kinship of men, the inescapable operation of one active being over another. Perhaps, although as individuals we may be oblivious to it, the gladness of the religious hearts on Easter day, the spiritual thoughts of the congregations, the songs of praise and the general out-of-door joy of those who venture forth for a fresh period of happiness—perhaps these things become surging, pressing, moving forces which travel the air and in some insidious, occult way stir heart upon heart and link heart to heart and so all the civilized earth finds itself in a spell of jubilation. Perhaps this telepathic manifestation is the secret of Easter—perhaps this is why Easter is the supreme feast, the feast when all souls are buoyant and exultant—who knows?

Writing to the Tribuna, Rome's leading daily, Signor Ferrero, who sniffed at Cleopatra and whitewashed Nero, has something nice to say about America. He finds our journalism the "best expression of American intelligence;" he regards Tammany Hall as a characteristic and satisfactory product of American democracy, and he notes that our millionaires live in comparative simplicity. These are his discoveries. The ruling power, says this observer, is the vote. In that, Don Giuseppe is right, and we commend his intelligent summary to the attention of certain gentlemen in Washington in charge of a tariff measure.

Boston is to inaugurate a crusade against rats, the object being to lessen the dangers of an appearance of bubonic plague. A chance for the Browning clubs to demonstrate their usefulness. Let them detail one member to each rat-hole and have her declaim "The Pied Piper" into the orifice. After that if any rats remain to contract and spread the plague, nobody will care much anyway.

The one best lesson of the British war scare is the solidarity of the empire; Victoria and New South Wales have subscribed for a Dreadnaught, to be built by private enterprise, in the proportion of $4,000,000 for New South Wales and $3,000,000 for Victoria, the ratio being based on population. This is the kind of union which spells strength.

Two hundred and sixteen young New York men, graduating from a trade school, have entered upon their careers with the life of John D. held up before them as a model. The time-honored commencement adjuration, "Aim high" seems to have been superseded by "Shoot low and bring home the meat."

Chicago restaurants will not furnish music with meals during the summer months. Just why one should go to a restaurant for a concert rather than to a symphony concert for a ham sandwich has always been a mystery. The quality of the article he would find at both places is usually about the same.

We are told that the word "Tariff" is derived from Tarifa, the name of a maritime stronghold near Gibraltar, where corsairs held up the incoming galleons. We believe it.

To-day, as when Troy Town stood, the judgment of Paris is still the arbiter of style.

Grows White House Under Mrs. Taft's Control.

RIGID ECONOMY OF FIRST LADY OF THE LAND.

HOUSE MEMBERS ARE GETTING AWAY FOR BRIEF VACATION.

MISSES JOHNSONS' PARTY.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

Washington, April 8.—Mrs. Taft is a canny housewife and she's for cutting down expenses wherever the lopping can be done judiciously.

The lady found eight laundresses on the payroll when she entered the White House. She promptly, but sweetly fired five of them. Wise woman! What human clothes could stand properly the torturing of more than three tub specialists a week!

You get a fresh napkin every meal at the White House, too, now, even since the reduction of the ablutionary forces, and the tablecloth is changed more than twice a week, whether you slop your coffee or irrigate the purlieus about your plate with tomato soup or not. Isn't this cleanliness beyond the dreams of avarice? What more could five extra laundry ladies do for one?

Mrs. Taft talks over all these matters to her cronies when they drop in for afternoon tea, quite cozy and comfy. The seances are usually in the Blue Room, where an honest fire of old Virginia logs glows and sputters on antique brass andirons, and where a gleaming fender on the hearth offers a cozy invitation to gossiping toes. Mrs. Taft has infused a soul into the Blue Room, as well as a baby grand piano. This is a departure from tradition. The Blue Room has never been one of the "living" centers of the palace before. As the imperial audience chamber, where royal presentations are made, it has always been a proud and haughty spot, where a guest merely ducked and passed along, without license to linger or to look. Mrs. Taft has changed all that. She means the White House to be homey—every nook and cranny of it.

* * *

Fires Policeman.

She opened her domestic innovations by banishing to the attic or the woodshed the formidable gentleman in undisguised policeman "garbage," who professionally challenged the entrance at the portals of the palace, of even the most innocent applicant for admission. Little children in hereditary terror of a "cop," often shrunk away affrighted believing the White House to be a jail.

These imperturbable personages as guardians of the big front door have been urbanely superseded by a brace of negro footmen of that yellowish-brown complexion that in their own vernacular they would probably designate as "bright." The men are as much alike in tint, physique and costume as the two Dromios themselves. They wear the conventional footmen's livery, with buff waistcoats, and the bland, inviting manner of personal retainers. The Taft menage is all manned by colored servants plus one silken-treaded Filipino, Mr. Taft's "body servant," as the other generations used to say—Monico Lopez, a swarthy little chap, suave and soft-voiced, whom Mr. Taft brought back with him from the Orient along with the other curios with which his home is overflowing.

The Tafts are impressing their own personality emphatically upon the White House. It is, however, to be noted with regret that the dead-head list is not eliminated. The same old defunct, bodiless animals stare down as unappetizingly and as unnecessarily as in the Roosevelt regime, from the walls of the State dining-room. We heartily commend to the moths this "dead circus," that we had hoped Teddy had taken with him to Africa as sample copies. The mortuary menagerie would make a beautiful, bad-smelling bonfire in the back lots of the White House.

Not Like Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Taft differs from Mrs. Roosevelt in taking her walks abroad unpanoplied by her lady-in-waiting. The ex-Miss Hagner, now settled down prosaically to a desk in the War Department—she says she enjoys her new job—attended every footstep of her presidential patroness. Mrs. Roosevelt never budged, un-Hangered. The social secretary was ever the most conspicuous figure on the official landscape at the White House. She ran the show. Now Mrs. Taft brooks no dictatorship. If she has a social secretary she doesn't complain of her in public. Mrs. Taft is self-reliant, she does her own thinking and her own walking. One meets the President's wife any morning trudging briskly down F street in a plain little gray tailor suit and black toque and commonsense heels, unshadowed and unchaperoned, darting in and out of shops, democratically, usually unrecognized. She is becoming proficient in driving her own electric runabout, which is one of a trinity of new machines in the White House stables nowadays.

The presidential progeny are all Eastering at home. Miss Helen Taft, fresh from Bryn Mawr, is naturally much specialized, socially. She is a big, tall blonde, five feet eight in height, much resembling her mother, although more serious in expression. Miss Taft is studious and reflective beyond her years. A pretty glimpse into the character of the President's young daughter was afforded inauguration morning when Helen was asked by an intimate, how she was taking things. A look half earnestness, half elation, came into the girl's sweet gray eyes.

"I feel," she said, with a sort of reverence, "a little excited, and very, very solemn."

* * *

Charlie Likes the White House.

If there's any solemnity lying around loose in the Taft family, it hasn't struck young Charlie. He's the cheeriest, most gambolsome soul, on the map of Washington. He takes the presidency personally. So does Mrs. Taft. They both enjoy the job.

When Fritzi Scheff was playing here the other day—she, who is Mrs. John Fox in private life—the President and Mrs. Taft and Charlie occupied a box at one performance.

A tremendous demonstration was elicited by the arrival of the family. The entire audience arose to its feet, while the orchestra played itself black and blue and red, white and blue on Star Spangled Banner. Mr. and Mrs. Taft, she radiant in pale blue chiffon sprinkled with silver, acknowledged the plaudits appropriately. But small Charlie was the one to watch. He was more fun than the show. The little chap leaning enthusiastically out of the box, was one huge, cherubic grin. He was bursting with bliss. Every little snaggle tooth in his head, both the old crop and the new, gleamed joyously, as he nodded and bowed and beamed on the multitude, beatifically appropriating to himself the lion's share of the ovation.

Little boys are delightfully amusing. Mrs. Taft and Charlie and a bunch of his boy friends attended an illustrated lecture on Russia at the Columbia Theater. Charlie goes to school to his uncle, in Watertown, Conn.

School Teachers Relieved.

The public school teachers in Washington are thanking their stars and stripes that no presidential progeny are under their tutelage this administration. When the Roosevelt boys, Archie and Quentin, respectively, were pupils at the democratic founts of learning here, the young women who had them in their grades were in a chronic state of anxiety lest their precious charges—always more or less objects of curiosity and attention—should be kidnaped or other evil befall them. The apprehensive school marms complained the responsibility was almost too grievous to be borne. It is a relief to have little Charlie attain his readin', writin' and 'rithmetic, outside their bailiwick.

Members of the House of Representatives and their families have been trooping home en masse to remain absent during the period of inactivity in the House while the Senate is settling the tariff question. Mr. and Mrs. Ollie James have left Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Stanley their two small bay beauties and Mrs. Ben Johnson and her two daughters, Misses Rebecca and Nancy. Mr. Johnson returns to Bardstown Tuesday.

Misses Rebecca and Nancy Johnson had made every arrangement to join the congressional expedition to Panama on the Government transport, scheduled to sail from Newport News April 19. But the trip has been abandoned. These young ladies received the signal honor for the third time of being invited to be pages at the forthcoming D. A. R. congress. Mrs. Johnson representing the John Fitch Chapter, of Bardstown, will return to Washington in time to attend the congress, beginning the 19th. Early in June Miss Nancy Johnson, at her beautiful ancestral home in Bardstown, will entertain a house party, among the members of which will be the daughter of Senator Overman, of North Carolina, and two senatorial Misses Foster, the daughter of Senator Foster, of Louisiana, and the daughter of Senator Foster from Vermont.

Mrs. Ben Johnson was hostess at the latest tea at the Congressional Club. She wore a directoire costume of black embroidered satin. A lecture was delivered during the afternoon by Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. Taft's most intimate friend, on the work of the Red Cross, of which she is president in this country.

Summer In Wyoming.

Mr. Pollock Paynter, son of Senator Paynter, expects to leave in May to enjoy a summer of out-of-door life on the ranch of a friend in Wyoming. He expects later to join his parents, who are projecting a trip to the Pacific coast.

Mrs. Paynter and Mrs. Ben Johnson were guests at the Toronto of a smart luncheon given by Mrs. Woodyard, of West Virginia.

Mrs. Sherley, Mrs. Langley, Mrs. Paynter, Mrs. Stanley, Mrs. James and Mrs. Johnson were among the company at a large tea given by Mrs. Anthony, wife of the Congressman from Leavenworth, Kas., nephew of the late Miss Susan B. Anthony.

Mrs. Green Clay Goodloe was one of the receiving party at a large tea given by the club of Colonial Dames of Washington, in honor of Mrs. William Ruffin Cox, president of the National Society of Colonial Dames, and of Mrs. Taft, who has just consented to join the club, and was present for the first time.

In honor of Mr. Preston Gibson and his bride Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean will give an Easter dinner and ball.

Miss Elizabeth Rogers, the handsome young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reid Rogers, of Mt. Sterling and Washington, a student at Dobbs Ferry, is spending Easter with her parents on Farragut Square.

Mrs. Green Clay Goodloe was the guest of Mrs. Floyd Sicard at a large bridge party. Mrs. Goodloe is noted as one of Washington's bridge experts.

The Rev. Herbert Shipman, formerly of Lexington, whose late father was once rector of Christ church there, with his handsome young wife, has been visiting his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Bradley, in Washington. Mrs. Shipman's costume was one of the most elegant on view when she was presented at the court of St. James. Mr. Shipman is rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, in New York.

Messrs. Percy Scott and Charles P. Rogers, of Lexington, have been in Washington this week.

Judge Lassing recently has been a visitor to Washington.

Visitors From Louisville.

From Louisville Judge A. P. Humphrey, Messrs. C. C. McChord, James Breathitt, E. F. Trabue and H. L. Stone were recently here.

Mr. E. H. Wheeler, of Louisville, has been stopping at the Raleigh.

Miss Lillian Netherland, of Louisville, is spending Easter with Washington friends.

Mr. R. W. Wathen, of Lebanon, has been recently a guest at the Hotel Raleigh, where William Sampson, of Middlesboro, was also a guest.

Other recent Kentuckians in Washington have been S. C. Flonbager, Lexington; Willis H. Harvey, Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hunt, Covington; J. H. Fowler, Frankfort.

Representative and Mrs. Swagar Sherley were dinner guests on Tuesday of President and Mrs. Taft. The affair was in honor of the director general of the Tokio Exposition, and the imperial commissioner of the exposition. The music, instead of being from the Marine Band, as is customary, was supplied by the Philippine Constabulary Band, imported to assist at the inauguration. It was an interesting feature of the evening. Mrs. Taft wore an empire costume of white satin, bordered about the corsage with rhinestones. Mrs. Sherley was graceful in a directoire frock of embroidered black chiffon, with long rope of diamonds.

Mr. John Fox, the Kentucky novelist, with his wife, who is better known as Madame Fritzi Scheff, are spending Easter at Hot Springs, Va. Mr. and Mrs. Fox were quietly married just before Christmas. They have been recently entertained in Washington by Mr. Fox's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. William Cabell Moore and Mrs. Moore, at their home on Eighteenth street. Mr. Fox is frequently the guest in Washington of Dr. Thomas Nelson Page and Mrs. Page.

DISCONTINUANCE

Of Navy Yards In the Southern States.

QUESTION SOON TO BE DECIDED UPON.

SECRETARY MEYER WILL TAKE UP THE MATTER

OF STRATEGICAL IMPORTANCE.

Washington, April 10.—Within a few days Secretary of the Navy Meyer is expected to take up for active consideration the question of the continuation in operation of the navy yards at Pensacola and New Orleans, which Mr. Newberry, just before he retired from office, gave orders should be closed. A settlement of the issue is of importance to the cities in which these yards are located for more than one reason. Before Mr. Newberry's order had been officially served on the commandants of those yards the congressional delegations from the respective States in which they are situated took up the matter with Secretary Meyer and presented arguments to show why they should be continued in operation. Mr. Meyer felt that their protests against closing should receive thorough consideration and concluded to call for data from the commanding officers showing the amount of work that was being done and reasons, if any, for or against the closing of the yards. The character of the data which he asked for was so elaborate and comprised so much detail that the commandants have not yet been able to furnish it.

The Secretary is determined to be fully advised of every feature of the case before reaching any decision. The fact that appropriations have been made for a continuation of work during the next fiscal year is the least argument advanced why the stations should be maintained in all their efficiency. But this is not the only proposition put forward along this line. It is admitted that the work done at these places is not material at this time, but the contention is made that the future should be taken into consideration. For tactical and for strategic purposes, if for no other, it is declared these yards should be maintained at a high state of efficiency in order that the Government may be prepared for repairing and equipping war vessels for any services which might be required of them in that section of the world. The point is made that the amount of money actually required for this purpose is not great by comparison and that the yards, ready for business in a case of emergency, are a valuable asset for the navy to always have at hand. The plant at both these stations is said to be in good shape.

Have Floating Dry Docks.

Both are equipped with floating dry docks, that at Pensacola having a capacity of 12,000 tons and that at New Orleans a capacity of 15,000 tons. Mr. Meyer's decision is awaited with a great deal of interest, and the hope is expressed that he will revoke Mr. Newberry's order, for it is generally felt that the relatively small amount of money required to keep the yards in operation is insignificant in comparison with the value they may be to the navy in the event of the development of any warlike operations. It is the best kind of economy, say the advocates of the yards, to keep them in a state where they may render effective service to the Government should the necessity therefor arise.

Vast sums were carried by the naval appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1910. While considerable of the various amounts appropriated for specific purposes was for the pay of officers and men, for maintenance purposes of all sorts, and for repairs to battleships, both building and completed, yet the measure also contemplates great activity in public works, under the various bureaus. A study of the itemized features of the bill shows specific appropriations for work in the South at the various yards and stations as follows:

* * *

The Appropriations.

Yards and Docks—Navy yard, Norfolk, railroad tracks, extensions, $10,000; electric light plant, extensions, $20,000.

Navy Yard, Charleston—Paving and grading, $20,000; underground conduit system, extensions, $5,000; intercepting drain, $30,500; pneumatic system, extension, $5,000; dredging, $25,000; increasing and improving torpedoboat slips, $50,000.

Navy Yard, Pensacola—Remodeling building No. 29, $15,000; to repair rifle range and wharf, $5,000.

Naval Station, Key West—Latrines, $5,000; concrete cistern, $25,000; to complete marine railway, $15,000.

Naval Station, New Orleans—Levee improvements and grading, $45,000.

Under the head of public works there is an appropriation of $6,500 for the purchase of land adjoining the Charleston navy yard to be used as a reservation for the Marine Corps.

Under the head of the bureau of construction and repair these appropriations are made: Norfolk Va., $12,000; at Charleston, $20,000; at Pensacola, $12,000 to be expended for repairs to and improvements of the plants at those yards.

Under the bureau of steam engineering an appropriation of $25,000 is made to obtain additional machine tools to equip the machine, boiler and coppersmith shops at Norfolk.

Appropriations aggregating $100,000 for repairs of barracks occupied by the Marine Corps, among the places mentioned in the bill being Norfolk, Virginia; Port Royal and Charleston, S. C.; Pensacola and Dry Tortugas, Fla., and New Orleans, La.

RED HAIR'S BURDEN.

[Philadelphia Record.]

While red hair is exceptional, it is not so rare as to explain the ridicule to which it is subjected. Children will terrorize any one of their number who has red hair, and it is only in well-bred society that adults so endowed can escape annoyance. Yet it has stately associations and artistic merits. Thomas Jefferson had red hair; so did the Marquis de Lafayette. Queen Elizabeth had red hair. Who has not been told that Titian loved to paint that warm hue which is generally accompanied by an unusually fine complexion?

And yet the amount of torment that any red-headed boy or girl will have to go through before reaching the age at which native savagery is usually covered by a veneer of civilization is simply incalculable. The moral effect of habitual teasing, guying and annoyance is very serious, and if red-headed persons are quick-tempered it is less likely that the hair and the disposition go together than that constant hectoring on account of the hair has ruined the temper.

ADAPTABILITY OF MAN.

[London Express.]

No animal or bird can endure the extremes of climate like man, or is at home in so many different parts of the world. A dog, it is true, will follow man anywhere, but only when food and shelter are provided. Nor can any other creature subsist on such a variety of food as man can digest. He flourishes on roots, herbs, grubs, insects, fruits or fish, —on which flesh-eating animals would starve, or he is equally pleased with animal or bird flesh on which herbivorous animals would starve. He can pick nuts with the monkey, catch fish with the otter, dig roots with the wild pig, eat ants' eggs with the anteater, and grasshoppers with the snake.

And all this is due to man's hand. Because his hand could grasp a stone or a club-man rose on his hind legs and walked and talked. His hand is the most wonderful of all tools. It twists like a monkey-wrench, hangs on like a grappling hook, cracks like a nut-cracker, picks like tweezers, tears like forceps, grubs like a gopher.

This brings us to the first great lesson of health and common sense. Man owes all to his hand. Train the child's hand, then answer the questions that the brain, which the hand builds, will ask, and you have true education, education at its best. Give children every kind of handwork that their play-instincts call for—and their play-instincts are the deepest and most useful in their nature—and then brain development will follow as naturally as the night follows day.

Movement is education, movement is life, and here follows the second lesson, which is about exercise. Muscle, controlling movement, makes up about half of our bulk; two-thirds of our heat is produced by muscles, and most of our food is consumed in the muscle cells. The brain is simply a telephone exchange to carry on the business of muscle, and the only way to nourish it is through the muscles, which, alone of all the tissues of the body, are under the direct control of the reason or will. Give an order to a voluntary muscle and it obeys, and here is a great danger to health, the muscular system being so peculiarly defenseless and liable to abuse.

FAMILIES GROW SMALLER.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]

From 1790, when the first United States census was taken, to 1900, the year of the latest census, the size of the average American family dropped from 5.8 to 4.6 persons. Some interesting deductions are drawn from these figures by Chief Clerk W. S. Rossiter of the Census Bureau.

For one thing the ratio of children to women over 16 years of age has been cut in half during the 110-year period. The United States, it is shown, aided by immigrants from all parts of the world, is now maintaining a ratio of children practically the same as shown by Great Britain, Germany and Italy, the deduction being that population conditions here are tending to become more in harmony with those obtaining in other civilized countries.

It doubtless will surprise those not in the habit of reveling in figures and the compilation of statistics to learn, as pointed out by the census report in question, that had the average size of families remained the same in 1900 as in 1790 the country to-day would have a native population greater by 20,000,000 persons. According to the compiler of the report, "it may be claimed that the people of the United States have concluded that they are only about half as well able to rear children, at any rate without personal sacrifice, under the conditions which prevailed in 1890 as their predecessors proved themselves to be under conditions prevailing in 1790."

The increasing movement toward the cities is responsible in large measure, in the opinion of the census officials, for the decreasing size of families. Apartment-house and flat life does not encourage rearing of large families, while the struggle for existence in cities is more exhausting than under the conditions usually prevailing in rural districts.

SENATE RESTAURANT IDLE.

[Washington Star.]

The Senate has got itself into a most embarrassing fix. It has constructed in its handsome new four-million-dollar office building the finest and most complete kitchen, or series of kitchens, anywhere to be found. It has also fashioned beautiful marble dining rooms. And now not a soul can be found who will think for a minute of running them and furnishing grub to the hungry senators and their clerks even at nice high prices.

This is passing strange, too, for all of the kitchen and dining rooms, with furniture so complete and so convenient that cook and waiter scarcely have to do anything, are all free, as well as light, heat, electric power and fuel.

But still it seems that everybody who has been asked about it looks askance at the palatial quarters and then at the busy restaurant over in the Capitol building, thinks of the lively little authomobiles that take people quickly from the office building through the intervening space by the subway, wishes the palatial quarters were on Broadway, or even Pennsylvania avenue, and sadly shakes his head.

"No money in it," say they all.

Now, the question is, Will the Senate decide to go into the lunchroom business itself? It looks as if it will come either to that or allowing the fine dining rooms and kitchens to go to waste entirely. A new committee might have to be created to run them, or else they could be handed over to the committee on public health and national quarantine, on irrigation or some other similar committee that stands around and looks pleasant to the folks out home, but never does a stroke of work of any kind whatsoever.

MICE COME WITH SEEDS.

[Washington Correspondence of the New York Tribune.]

If the Government continues its policy of allotting free seeds to members of Congress it will not be many years until men stenographers have all the desirable clerical places in the House of Representatives. The new $3,000,000 office building of the House is overrun with mice, and the women employes are more concerned over this fact than they are at the prospect that the Payne tariff bill will raise the price of feminine wearing apparel.

Under the law each Representative receives about ten thousand packages of garden seeds annually. Many members have had their allotments sent to their rooms in the office building, and with the seeds have come the mice. One young woman who was taking down in her shorthand notebooks words of congressional wisdom shrieked so loudly when she saw a mouse that she almost spoiled a tariff speech. The secretary of a Western Representative said she had counted in her room a dozen mice that had come from "that horrid Agricultural Department," and declared she would give up her place if seeds continued to be allowed in the office building.

NEW TYPE OF PRISON.

[London Daily Mail.]

Preparations are being made in Parkhurst Forest, Isle of Wight, for the erection of the new type of prison instituted by last year's prevention of crime act.

As Mr. Gladstone explained his proposal, professional criminals, after serving a term of penal servitude for their latest offense, will be detained for an indeterminate time in the new building. There they remain until the authorities are assured that they will henceforth lead an honest life or until, by age or infirmity, they are incapable of resuming a life of crime.

In this new type of prison, however, the habitual criminal will be subject to less rigorous discipline than in prison. The hours of labor will be less, he will be allowed more liberty to talk, get better food, be able to earn wages and have an opportunity of recreative occupation.

Some thirty acres of forest land on the site of a disused rifle range will be cleared for the new prison, and the work will start before long.

STORIES OF THE TOWN.

They were discussing the revision of the tariff, and she was endeavoring to show the right amount of intelligent interest—an operation the difficulty of which can be appreciated by nearly everybody.

"There's been a good deal of debate pro and con," he remarked judicially.

"Is that why some people call it a 'con' game?" she inquired eagerly.

He started to say something sarcastic, but changed his mind.

"That's why it is a 'con' game," he conceded generously.

Friends of John I. Jacob, the well-known clubman, are interesting themselves in the suggestion that he be appointed to some foreign post under the State Department. While they have not yet learned whether Mr. Jacob will be tendered such an appointment, they are confident that he would be able to make an excellent diplomatic representative of this country if he should be selected.

Mr. Jacob has traveled extensively, and has visited nearly every country in the world. His methods have not been those of the ordinary tourist, either; for, instead of keeping to the beaten tracks as to hotels and types, he has met the people of the countries where he has been and has learned about them at first hand.

Mr. Jacob is also an excellent linguist, and could hold down the secretaryship of a foreign legation, for instance, as though he were the oldest inhabitant of that city.

"Telephone girls," said the chronic kicker yesterday, "sometimes irritate me. One did to-day. It has happened before, and I trow will happen again, but nevertheless it made me peevish.

"I had called a number and discovered when a response was made the intelligent operator had left out a couple of integers and landed me in the wrong part of town. I so informed the fellow at the other end, and he hung up.

"'I'm ringing,' exchange said about that time. I opened my mouth to reply, but realized as I did so that she was no longer within reach, and that she was plugging away at the wrong number again. The other party answered once more, this time in harsh accents, which did not grow more mellifluent when I explained to him the situation.

"Exchange refused to give me satisfaction until I hung up the receiver, allowed it to remain there for several minutes, and then opened negotiations with her afresh. Incidentally, I lost several precious minutes and a large quantity of equally valuable temper."

Pedestrians on Fourth avenue stopped, looked and listened yesterday when two newsboys, each of whom was about two feet nothing tall and grew so close to the pavement that he wriggled his way through the forest of other people's legs with much difficulty, got into a scrap. It must have been over a "customer," for they were unusually violent. They went at each other hammer and tongs and kept at it for a full minute.

The interesting and typically Kentuckian feature of it all was that everybody watched with interest, taking care, of course, that neither should be hurt, but unwilling that the spectacle of the combat should be lost. Then after the two had decided to call it off and wait until some club should offer a suitable purse for the bout, the spectators departed much refreshed in spirit.

John Downey, traffic manager at Belknap's, is said to have the most wonderful grasp of rates and railroad figures of any man in town, not even excepting the rate experts who sit high in the railroad offices at Fourth and Main and Ninth and Broadway.

"I talked with Mr. Downey the other day," said one of his admirers, "and I was amazed to see how easily he handled the multifarious problems of transportation and rates that were presented to him almost every second. He knew everything and had to refer to books for few facts. Every bit of freight leaving the house, it seemed, had to pass muster before him, and his directions as to its disposition were made so quickly and details regarding routing were decided so instantaneously that to me, who am lost whenever figures are introduced, it was positively uncanny."

A good many people have been threatening to climb the frame of the person who is responsible for the weather, in spite of the fact that the glorious sunshine and the clear skies that he has been providing of late are the best combination he has handed out since 1909 was a novelty.

A victim was explaining yesterday that when he looked out in the morning and saw the sun was shining, and remembered also that it was April, he carelessly tossed aside his faithful overcoat and went it alone. Before he had gotten very far, though, he discovered that it was all a mistake, and that the sunshine was literally a delusion and a snare. Before sunset he had developed a lovely cold.

"If I have to visit the doctor's for this," he said, "Mr. Walz gets the bill."

ON THE FUNNYBONE.

The Flower Parade.

It is the Easter tube parade!
Observe it well.
Adown the avenue they glide
And gentle nods from side to side
Vouchsafes each belle.

These slender forms with spreading hats,
Adorned with gems,
With ribbons, laces, buckles, plumes,
Are like a mass of lovely blooms
On swaying stems.

A Familiar Trait.

"After an absence of twenty years a Chicago man walked in on his wife the other day. She didn't recognize him. He sat down and kicked because dinner was late."

"Then she recognized him, eh?"

Her Spring Outfit.

"I saw her on parade yesterday. She had a lovely new gown."

"So?"

"And a striking spring hat?"

"Indeed?"

"Yes—and a stunning new husband."

* * *

Something New.

"I notice the stage lawyer in that play didn't carry his papers in his hat."

"Well, maybe the author of the play used as his model a real lawyer. They're getting realism down pretty fine these days."

To a Bud.

Standing with reluctant feet
Where the brook and river meet,
'Tis a marshy spot you choose;
Don't forget your overshoes.

With Two Spring Hats.

"I s'pose it cheapens the freaks to permit them to appear in public?"

"It does usually," replied the impresario of the dime museum. "But we're going to let the two-headed girl out this week. We calculate she'll make a hit with her two spring hats."

* * *

Not Always.

"There is a popular belief that summer girls are always fickle."

"Many a man has gotten himself married by putting faith in that erroneous idea."

"I see a New York man says anybody can take a $100 bill, a pad, a pencil and make a fortune in Wall street."

"Let's form a firm to try it. I'll furnish the pencil and pad."

"SPECIALS"

Will Bring Shriners From Every Direction.

KEEN INTEREST DISPLAYED IN LOUISVILLE MEETING.

MECCA TEMPLE TO BREAK LONG-ESTABLISHED RULE.

PLANS OF CHICAGO NOBLES.

With the national meeting of the Shriners less than two months away, the executive committee, of which Frank Fehr is chairman, and which is the representative body of Kosair Temple in arranging for the event, is fairly working overtime in its efforts to arrange a hospitable reception and an appropriate programme for the Shrine nobility of America. The claims of the convention workers that the approaching annual session will break all previous records from an attendance standpoint are borne out in the data on file with the executive committee.

Probably the most significant announcement of the past week was that Mecca Temple, of New York City, and Medinah Temple, of Chicago, will both attend the Louisville meeting. These are the two largest Shrine organizations in the country, and the former has never heretofore officially participated in an annual session. Details are lacking as to the plans of Mecca, but it is a certainty that its famous Arab patrol will participate in the festivities and it is likely that 150 or 200 Shriners from Gotham will come to "root" for the drill team. The temple authorized William B. Trumbo, jr., chairman of the music committee, to engage a band for the use of the patrol.

* * *

Takes Whole House.

At least one special trainload of Shriners will come from Chicago. Medinah Temple has leased for the first week in June the old Guthrie homestead on Walnut street and will maintain headquarters and entertain on a scale of lavishness almost unparalleled. Medinah will have its own band, its patrol will participate in the parade, exhibition drills and grand review, and there will be a number of wives and daughters of Chicago Shriners here to assist the nobles in their social functions.

A recent message from Lu Lu Temple, of Philadelphia, whose coming was some time ago announced, reports that two special trains will now likely be needed to carry the Quaker City pilgrims. There will be sixty musicians in the band, and Lu Lu's Arab patrol numbers forty members. This temple also will send many women to the convention.

Zuhrah Temple patrol, of Minneapolis, will bring its own band, and the Shriners of Minneapolis and St. Paul are coming on a special train. The famous Masonic Quartet of the former city also is scheduled as one of the Zuhrah attractions which will figure in that temple's session of hospitality while here.

Mecha Temple, of London, Ontario, will require a special train. A special train also will be used by the nobles of Cyprus Temple, of Albany, N. Y. The New York State pilgrims will park their cars and use them for sleeping quarters while they are here. The same arrangement has been made by the nobles of Zenobia Temple, of Toledo, O.

* * *

Brings a Band.

One of the largest patrols will be sent by Osman Temple, of St. Paul, Minn. It numbers fifty-seven members and will be headed by a band of thirty musicians. The Osman Shriners are advertising that they will come on the finest electric-lighted solid train that was ever sent out of the Northwest. They are to be joined on the pilgrimage by the nobles of Fargo, N. D., and possibly some of the Montana Shriners will unite with the delegation.

Antioch Temple, of Dayton, O., has named a committee to complete arrangements for the pilgrimage to Louisville. The Charleston, W. Va., Shriners have already engaged a special train for their pilgrimage. Another of the recent announcements is that Anezeh Temple, of Mexico City, also will send an official delegation. It is expected there will be not less than twenty-five Shriners with their wives and daughters in the pilgrims' party from Mexico City.

Al Malaikah Temple, of Los Angeles, Cal., has chartered a special train for the trip to Louisville. The nobles of St. Joseph, Springfield and Joplin, Mo., and of Oklahoma City will unite in one party and make the trip on a special train. Hella Temple, of Dallas, Tex., and El Kalah Temple, of Salt Lake City, will each send a party of twenty-five to fifty Shriners and their wives.

* * *

Special From Baltimore.

Boumi Temple, of Baltimore, has engaged a special train. A special also will bring the Shriners from Springfield and Peoria, Ill. So, too, has Syria Temple, of Pittsburg, engaged a special, with 150 pilgrims already booked. One entire train running on special schedule will be used by the Shriners of Lincoln and Omaha, Neb. So enthusiastic are the nobles of Cleveland, O., that it is announced in their pilgrimage literature that "the fun will be worth $10 an inch." A splendidly-appointed special train has been engaged. The Cleveland nobles will be joined by the members of Zem Zem Temple, of Erie, Pa. A special train run in two or three sections will be required to carry the Shriners of Iowa, who will act as escort to the Imperial potentate, Edwin L. Alderman, of Cedar Rapids. Several Shriners from the northwestern section of the country are to join with the escort in the trip from Iowa to Louisville.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING.

Will Elect Officers and Look At Pictures of Workhorse Parades In the East.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Kentucky Humane Society will be held on Thursday, April 15, at 3 p. m., in the assembly room of the Louisville Free Public Library.

After the routine business, election of officers, etc., which will take about an hour, there will be shown stereopticon pictures of prize draft horses as they appeared in the workhorse parades of New York and Boston, an exhibition which did much to awaken pride in owners and drivers, resulting doubtless in better treatment all down the line.

Views of teams consisting of six, four and two horses in gala equipment will be thrown upon the screen, and then in sorry contrast will be shown pictures of like employed animals, but in neglected condition, such as the members of the society are anxious to benefit.

The members of the auxiliary will, as a matter of course, be present, but it is also hoped that the public which has in general a kindly feeling for dumb brutes will add fresh enthusiasm to the cause by coming to the meeting.

PUPILS OF PROF. PITCHFORD TO HOLD A REUNION.

Nearly 3,000 Scholars of Dead Educator Plan To Meet In Allen County During Summer.

Franklin, Ky., April 10.—(Special.)—A movement is on foot to hold a reunion of all the surviving pupils of the late Prof. J. F. Pitchford, some time during the coming summer. The place of the meeting is to be in Allen county, where Prof. Pitchford taught in the public schools for more than half a century. It is estimated that fully 3,000 former pupils of his live in Warren, Allen and Simpson counties. Among the oldest are Mr. P. V. Mayes, a bookkeeper of Franklin, and Mr. John Blackburn, of Woodburn.

Mr. Pitchford died at the age of 78 years last November. The movement will be launched from his home town, Scottsville, during next week.

HOW THE KENTUCKY SPRING WEATHER FLIRTS WITH MORTALS IN BLUEGRASS LAND

Changeable As the Fickle Maidens It Brings To Grief Many New Togs—Society Talk Around Capital City —Cupid Busy During Lenten Days.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

Frankfort, Ky., April 10.—Did you ever feel as though you would like to stretch forth your hand and stop all the machinery of the universe—just for an hour? Stop talking, writing, thinking and doing. To feel that it didn't make a mite of difference if you didn't get a "peach-basket" or an "aluminum" hat; to feel that you had a right to sit and look over the top of your typewriter at your neighbor's yard and enjoy the picture of a peach tree in full bloom with a "burning bush" (I forget the botanical name) in close juxtaposition, and all around that burst of red blossoms and green leaves, a border of myrtle with its innumerable little violet-colored flowers and forget that the old "rag" must be filled with "stuff" for next day's publication.

Beautiful Spring Days.

"Never, it seems to me," said a dear old, young woman at the train shed yesterday, "never has a spring been so beautiful—so full of promise for a bountiful year. Why, the yards of the city are so gorgeous and exquisite in coloring that I find myself forgetting to get to the grocer's in time to order things for dinner in peeping over the fences! What," she continued, musingly, "can be more beautiful than that magnolia tree in Mr. John Lindsey's yard, and the dogwood tree and the bed of hyacinths near it?"

The woman who found the yards so beautiful didn't get a new spring hat—she won't get one, either, this year, I'm thinking, but she is the richest woman in the city—for all things beautiful are her own by divine right. If this woman feels more keenly the beautiful things a-bloom around her than the owner, then she is richer far than he.

Spring has been in the blood for many weeks and for this reason the Easter parade will not be an entirely new affair for the feminine portion at least.

Drenching Rain On Spring Clothes.

Last week a young matron, wonderfully and beautifully gowned, went out to pay about twenty calls. When several blocks from the street car and several more from her home she was overtaken by a drenching rain, and the new dress was streaked with red from the flower garden of a hat which had been her chief joy and pride.

"Don't tell me about flinging your winter garments in the 'Fires of Spring,'" she muttered, trying to blow herself up with gasoline ig eradicating the red streaks, "don't tell me anything about spring. I shall wear my winter suit and old blue felt till the first of May if I bake."

She was right. If anyone wishes to "fill the cup" let him do so, but be a little cautious about flinging your winter duds in any old fire till the first of May, unless you wish to be caught in a snowstorm.

A woman from Wisconsin wrote a friend here that her health was very bad and that she wanted to come to Kentucky to spend the winter, and wrote for information concerning the climate. "Don't come," answered the friend, "don't come, we don't have any climate in Kentucky any more, we have nothing but changes."

When the Town Clock Struck Six.

Frankfort, as most people know, has a town clock. It has had that clock since the memory of man, and it would take two or three clock keepers to make it tell the truth.

Last week two women who live on the West Side of the city—in a flourishing little suburb once called "Bellepoint," determined to take the early morning train for Cincinnati, thus leaves here at 6:20 o'clock, to buy their new spring outfit.

Everything was laid out in readiness the night before, and those two excited women didn't go to sleep till after 1 o'clock discussing what would be most becoming to their style of beauty. We are not going into a dissertation of whether they should have gone or not. We are loyal to Frankfort, and think there are any number of beautiful stores here, but people and opinions differ, and these two thought better bargains lurked behind Cincinnati counters.

The next morning, while the two were hurriedly dressing, one of them threw up the hair brush in most tragic style and by a gesture demanded silence, and then she beat the air with the brush and counted: One—two—three—four—five—six! "It can't be!" fairly wailed her companion, "it can't be;" and she flew to the arbiter of human affairs, the telephone girl, and rang hard and earnestly.

She rang and she rang. "What's the matter with this darned old 'phone anyway?" she demanded of her flustered hostess, "it won't ring!"

The hostess stopped and threw the "rat" she was fastening in her hair under the bed and said limply: "I forgot—the wind crossed the wires yesterday and I haven't notified the office. Oh," she laughed hysterically, "all we can do is to run for the train."

That's what they did. They jammed collars, rats, side combs and handkerchiefs in the suit case and buttoned the top button of either shoe, buttoned up their cloaks over a bellless waist, and held their noses to keep the inviting fumes of the coffee from driving them from their purpose, and ran.

Breathless they arrived at the station and found a sleepy porter opening up the waiting rooms for the 5:25 train for Louisville. The clock had gained an hour in the night, caused by a brood of squabs and their parents fluttering in and out of the works. Help!

Here is another spring story. A young woman living on the South Side has been busily engaged in gardening these last few bright days. Gardening was recommended as a tonic because she recently had a spell of fever and was compelled to have her head shaved.

A wig has become a necessity in her case. Last week she and her mother were very much engaged in planting some young slips and growing overheated the young woman hung her wig on a limb of a near-by tree. Then the inevitable happened — her "steady" passed by.

Forgetting the wig, fluttering in the breeze on the tree, she advanced and smiled up engagingly into his shocked countenance.

"Why, what's the matter?" began the young woman, and then the "why" struck her and her funnybone at the same time and she laughed merrily at the hirsuit adornment on the tree. Not he. His sense of the ludicrous was nil, and now the neighbors need not peek from behind the window curtains to watch the sweet friendship across the way, for unlike women, men seldom possess the "love that passeth understanding."

Holy Week.

This past week has, if possible, been even more dull than any previous one. Nevertheless some splendid music has been given in various churches in the city. The First Presbyterian church choir presented Stainer's "Crucifixion" last Friday night in most commendable style to an appreciative congregation.

All the churches in the city will have splendid Easter music and from the rear end of the sacred edifice to the chancel the various chapeaux will look like a bed of gorgeous tulips.

Two Weddings.

Cupid, never overly strenuous in this small city between the hills, has aroused himself into something like business the past month. Before that he couldn't send a shaft because the women played bridge and "skat" and never gave him half a chance, but the Lenten quiet gave him several opportunities that he did not neglect.

The very latest victims were Miss Katherine Mayhall, a vivacious and pretty brunette of this city, and Mr. Emil Herbert Scheffer, of Louisville. The wedding was celebrated in Cincinnati and after a bridal trip East they will be at home to their friends after April 12, at 138 Vernon avenue, Louisville.

Miss Mayhall is one of the prettiest girls in Kentucky and her belleship has lasted over several seasons.

Mr. J. W. Iliff, a young and popular druggist, on the South Side, stole away from the city and wedded Miss Alice Elizabeth Werner, of Cincinnati, on Tuesday afternoon. The wedding was quiet and the house decorations simple but beautiful.

Mr. and Mrs. Iliff will shortly go to housekeeping on the South Side.

To Intimidate Mr. Taft.

Col. E. H. Taylor, Jr., left the first of the week for Washington City on business. Ordinarily that would be "Nuf sed." But on this occasion the Colonel deserves more than honorable mention.

He laughingly said that his purpose was to subdue Mr. Taft. If Col. Taylor presents himself in the sartorial habiliments in which he left Old Kentucky, he will do more than subdue him—he will intimidate His Excellency.

Now, everybody knows who knows anything at all, that Col. Taylor is the greatest "Beau Brummel" of 'em all. In a place as large as New York or Chicago he attracts attention as he walks down Broadway or State street. He is of commanding appearance and fully six feet two inches tall. A "stove-pipe" hat adds to the height and his clothes are all made in New York and represent the latest.

Not one person in a thousand could don those same garments and not be termed "horsey." But the Colonel dominates his glad rags and makes them "fit the crime."

He had already taken his seat in the drawing-room when a young woman tapped on the glass with her umbrella and called out: "O, Colonel, please stand up and show these skeptics your illustrated vest."

Immediately the gallant Colonel came to the rear of the coach, stepped down and displayed his latest in the way of vests. If I were to tell you that he wore a pair of checked trousers in black and white, a long frock coat of black, a tan and brown and red vest, a green tie and scarf pin to match, and a long invisible checked overcoat of woodsey green, you would say, "O, horrors!" But, they were just the thing, and if he doesn't get exactly what he wants out of Mr. Taft it will be because Mr. Taft is simply jealous of the Colonel's togs.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

YOUTHFUL RABBI LEADING NEW AMERICAN JUDAISM GAINING CONSIDERABLE SUPPORT

Follows Neither the Old Orthodox Nor the New Reformed Line, But Creates An Entirely New One

The youthful rabbi who went from Portland, Ore., into the East in order that he might lead a new American Judaism is gaining moral and financial support from Jews who do not agree with his theology. The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, the new leader, is following neither the old orthodox nor the new reformed Judaism, but is creating a new one on lines that commend themselves to some leaders of both of the former schools. He is not a Westerner, much less a coast man, and he went to Oregon for but a short stay, chiefly to see from a distance the Judaism of the older States. He had no idea of remaining on the coast when he went to it. A New Yorker to begin with, he returned to his own city, there to lay the foundations of what may, as some believe, change the face of Judaism in this country.

The new Free Synagogue established by Dr. Wise in New York, and which is already swinging an annual budget of $15,000 and has just received contributions exceeding $50,000, is not local to New York by any means. It comprises Judaism in all America. Its tenets are three in number:

First—That Judaism is to be preserved, not in its forms, but in its spirit; that it does not need a Christ, for all He did, it says, was to repeat what had been known by the world, at least by Jews, for hundreds of years; that America must be really religious or go to pieces as Rome did; and that Judaism is the religion that eventually must save it.

Second—That old forms must be sacrificed; that religion must change with the times, and that there is nothing sacred about ceremonial. Medievalism must give place to modernism, not perhaps in theology, but in forms of public worship, and in ideas underlying these forms; and

Third—That the rabbi must be free from financial domination and personal dictation; that if he sees sin in high places he must be in position to denounce it, without danger of losing his pulpit, his opportunity to preach.

Leaders in this modern Judaism would enter social and political affairs and purify them, and not leave others to do that reformatory work which the world has a right to expect from Judaism. The movement is growing, not in New York alone, but elsewhere, and it means, it is said, an entirely new element, perhaps organization, among Hebrews of America.

International Convention.

The twenty-fourth international Christian Endeavor convention is this year to be held in St. Paul, Minn., the dates being July 7 to 11. The 1907 convention was held in Seattle, and leaders of the movement believe that the central location chosen this year will insure a great gathering of young people. For the past ten years the Christian Endeavor conventions have not drawn as large numbers as formerly, but this is held to be a result not of lack of interest in the movement, but rather a result of its growth, because with accession of large numbers the national conventions were in some measure supplanted by the various State conventions, themselves great gatherings.

It was for this reason that the international convention was made a biennial instead of an annual affair.

Some unusual features of the St. Paul convention will be the division of the delegates, for many of the sessions, into six groups, each considering some special form of Christian Endeavor methods. At noon each day an evangelistic service will be held, for which the groups will come together. The spectacular event of the convention promises to be a patriotic service to be held on the afternoon of July 8 on the steps of the Minnesota Capitol.

Missionary Campaign.

The Laymen's Missionary Movement announces a campaign which is to start with the sound of trumpets and oratory, cover every part of country and continue even after it has reached the Pacific coast. President Taft has promised to speak at the opening meeting, to be held in Washington in October. There will gather the host of speakers who are to spellbind the country immediately afterward. A mass-meeting, the largest the National Capital has ever seen for missions, and prayer and conference meetings for speakers and workers are to form the Washington beginning.

The beginning made, two companies will set out, one going through the South to the Pacific, the other to the North with the same destination. It had been at first intended to visit fifty cities, but the number has grown to seventy-five, and the speakers to nearly 200. Some of the speakers are to come from Canada. Arriving at the Pacific coast there are to be two conferences of speakers, similar to the Washington one, and then two or three of the American missionary spellbinders are to set sail for Australia for a seven weeks' campaign there.

The movement is in aid of foreign missions only, and it endeavors to enlist missionary supporters for all Protestant bodies, and from all of them. Denominational organizations are springing up as one result of the general campaign. The aim is not to raise money, but to increase information in and enthusiasm for foreign missions as maintained by the official or recognized boards and societies of the respective denominations. The proposed campaign, beginning in October and continuing until February, is for men only, and unordained men chiefly, and is declared to be the most comprehensive thing of its kind ever put through.

Foreign missionary organizations are greatly in need of some such assistance, they declare. This movement, with its series of meetings, now in its third year, have not been long enough at work, it is claimed, for marked results to show themselves in the financial receipts of the boards and societies. In any event, many of the foreign mission organizations are behind in their receipts, as well as ahead with their expenditures, and most of them are seeing little chance for improvement in their immediate outlook. The Presbyterian, Congregational, Baptist and other boards and societies are in straits, all making frantic appeals for gifts in order that they may avoid debts. None reports increase in receipts, and none is venturing anything in the way of advance to any considerable degree. They all see promise in the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and view with satisfaction the promises that are made by men at one convention after another, that better support will come, but it is not coming quickly enough to satisfy the leaders who are responsible for the administration of the work on the foreign fields.

Baptist Conference.

Baptists in and around New York are to hold a conference early in May to consider the advisability of organizing what some have called a "Metropolitan Baptist Union," the object of which would be the central direction of Baptist extension, missionary and benevolent work in and around the great city. The matter has been under discussion for a number of months, and leaders say they expect the new organization to be accomplished.

The Baptist situation in and near New York, out of which has grown the movement for a new organization, differs only in degree from that experienced by other religious bodies. Ecclesiastical lines, drawn in some instances centuries ago, are now creating artificial boundaries in what is from a religious point of view, one great city. Some time ago there was organized a Reformed Church Extension Society, which included in its field of work nine ecclesiastical organizations. The new Baptist organization, if formed, will include six such ecclesiastical divisions. Presbyterian, Episcopalians, Congregationalists, Methodists and even Catholics are hampered in their extension work in and around New York for lack of comprehensive organization. Long Island and the Hudson River shores of New Jersey are in different dioceses, presbyteries, associations or whatever the local ecclesiastical bodies may be called, from the old city, Manhattan Island. The metropolitan district is growing as one city, and all these religious bodies are realizing that religious work in it must be unified.

American Church Union.

High Church Episcopalians have just organized the American Church Union, the object of which is the "defense" of certain church principles which leaders of the High Church party believe to be in jeopardy. These principles, they say, have been endangered of late by open questioning and denial, and "it is time for loyal churchmen to rally in their defense. Legislation regarding them will probably come up in the general convention next year, and there is urgent need of immediate organization." While other principles are included among those needing defense, in the opinion of these leaders, it is generally believed that the "open pulpit" matter, which has been disturbing Episcopal circles ever since the general convention of 1907, is the real motive behind the new organization. The American Church Union thus designs its principles, with the explanation that it is formed to defend and maintain unimpaired the doctrine, discipline and worship of the church against laxity and indifference within and hindrance and aggression from without. It declares:

First—That the Protestant Episcopal Church is an integral part of the historic Catholic Church.

Second—That the church's creeds are to be interpreted and believed in their traditional sense.

Third—That the ministry of the church has been from the apostles' time threefold, and those only are to execute the functions of this ministry in the church who have episcopal consecration or ordination.

Fourth—That the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are the word of God.

Fifth—That the church's sacraments possess vital power to confer grace.

Sixth—That the marriage tie is indissoluble.

It is further asserted by the new organization that the faith and order of the church are in immediate danger from attacks made by those within her own household. Among these attacks are specifically mentioned: First, the denial of the inspiration of Holy Writ; second, the admission to the Holy communion of persons who have not been confirmed by bishops of the church, and third, the permission to persons not communicants of the Anglican body to teach and preach in Episcopal congregations. The organizers of the American Church Union are at the present time exerting themselves to secure members and supporters for the new organization.

Original Chautauqua.

The original Chautauqua, that established by the present Bishop Vincent at Chautauqua, N. Y., announces a 1909 season that begins July 1 and continues through the month of August. While this summer gathering has always been noted for the educators and entertainers presented on its platform, it has nevertheless always had a strong religious influence, presenting some of the strongest leaders of the Protestant Church. For its coming season it announces among such leaders the Rev. Reginald J. Campbell, of London; Prof. George Adams Smith, of Edinburgh; the Rev. John Thomas, of Liverpool; the Rev. George Jackson, of Toronto; the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, of New York; the Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, president of the Christian Endeavor movement; Dean Shaller Matthews, of the University of Chicago; Bishop Vincent and President W. H. P. Faunce, of Brown University. The foregoing are to go to Chautauqua this year especially as preachers. Other religious leaders are to go to deliver lectures, and among these are the Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, president of the American Unitarian Association, and the Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, editor of the "Christian Advocate."

SUGGESTIONS ONLY CONTAINED IN LETTER

BOARD OF WORKS TALKS ABOUT BEARGRASS CREEK.

BLAMES FfloODS ON EXCEEDINGLY HEAVY RAINS.

TEXT OF INTERESTING DREAM.

No relief, but a beautiful suggestion as to how to best control the waters of Beargrass Creek, which have twice gone on a costly rampage this year, is contained in the last bi-weekly letter of the Board of Public Works. The epistle blames the floods on the heavy rains and goes on to declare that the nuisance might be obviated by the expenditure of enough money to cement the bed of the stream and make a few other improvements.

The very interesting dream in full is as follows:

"Twice this year, during unusual rainfalls, Beargrass Creek overflowed to such an extent as to seriously inconvenience and damage some of the residences and factories located along its banks. On both these occasions, separated by an interval of a few weeks, the creek rose higher, according to information given us, than it has ever done before.

"According to official reports, the Ohio River in 1884 reached the highest flood stage on record, and the back water into Beargrass Creek gave it a flood stage which it was believed was the highest to be expected. It will be noted that while the rise of 1884 was due to back water, the recent unprecedented rise of Beargrass Creek was due to an unusual rainfall. The creek overflowed to such an extent that the current passed over the roadway at Broadway.

"Lausberg & Macke, manufacturers, whose plant is located adjoining Beargrass Creek at Kentucky and Underhill streets, stated that they had built their plant about twenty-one inches above the 1884 water mark, and yet during the recent rises the creek overflowed about two feet above their floor and caused considerable damage. Others had a similar disastrous experience.

"The members of the Board of Public Works visited the scene and also sent engineers to make measurements with a view to discovering the causes for the unusual overflow. Several bridges across the creek, built in recent years, would seem to have been built too low and to have too many trestles. They have proved obstructions to the free passage of the creek. In high water they catch the driftwood and trash and further choke the flow. The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company has several bridges spanning the creek and their engineers, as well as those of the Sewer Commissioners, were on the premises with a view to locating and, if possible, removing the trouble.

"For the information of the many who reside and do business along the bank of the Beargrass we will state that the city engineers, the engineers of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company and of the Sewer Commissioners will have a meeting with a view to improving the situation. It would seem necessary to raise several bridges and in some places deepen the bed of the Beargrass, and in other places to widen it where too much of an encroachment has been made in filling.

"It has occasionally been suggested that Beargrass Creek should be covered over and used as a sewer. This is not practicable, as the recent inundation proved. The Sewer Commissioners are building a sanitary sewer alongside Beargrass Creek and when that is completed only storm water will be allowed to flow into Beargrass, which will remove the chief objection to that historic stream.

"What ought to be done with the creek after the Commissioners of Sewerage have relieved it of house drainage is to treat it as such small streams are treated in German cities. A bed and retaining wall should be constructed of stone or concrete. In the center of the bed should be a smaller bed for the dry weather flow. A railing should be placed on top of the walls and a space for twenty feet or more on either side of each wall should be required, trees and grass planted and walks laid out on each side for the whole length of the creek. In this way what is now an eyesore and an offense can be made a source of pleasure for the entire city and a means of enhancing the worth of all the property near its banks. We do not doubt that in time all this will be effected, but it is well to make the suggestion this early and to see that it is not forgotten."

WOMAN'S WORK

LIGHTENED BY ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES OF TO-DAY.

Trip Through Big Exposition Which Begins To-morrow Equal To Course In Domestic Engineering.

When Elias Howe, back in the '40s, put an eye in the point of the needle and used two threads instead of one in the crude sewing machines of that early day, it was said that he cut woman's work in half.

But electricity has progressed far beyond that achievement—to-day the progressive woman, living in this fireless, dustless, fatigueless and wasteless electrical age, operates appliances by which a meal may be cooked with the touching of a button—a veritable "Blue Monday" wash airily disposed of by the beautifully simple process of turning a lever—and the house cleaned and dusted by twisting a valve.

All the devices of what may be termed "domestic electricity" will be revealed in their inspiring and servant-problem-solving detail in the great Southern Electrical and Industrial Exposition, to be held at the armory for two weeks, beginning to-morrow.

That the woman of the house is able to manipulate this domestic machinery with ease will be proved by the tremendously interesting exhibits, which range from the electric washing machine to the rather more personal and equally as important electric curling iron.

In fact, there is every reason to believe that through electricity women will become the most expert of "domestic engineers." Already, in hundreds of homes, women are becoming expert in the manipulation of a thousand labor-saving devices—most of which, by the way, will be shown at the Electrical and Industrial Exposition. Already the hours of work which women have devoted to domestic details are being shortened to minutes—while her minutes of rest are being lengthened to hours. Woman is rapidly reaching the high plane which she is destined to occupy as domestic engineer, the head of an establishment in which electricity, compressed air, vacuum, high-pressure water and "denatured" alcohol, with all their accompanying devices and apparatus, will combine to make a perfect whole.

After a careful trip through the Southern Electrical and Industrial Exposition, with its marvels of electricity, its amazing array of the greatest inventions of the age and its industrial display, it is safe to assert that any woman will feel as if she had taken a course in domestic engineering.

Asthma

Even if you have suffered but a hundredth part of what I did for years with Asthma and Catarrh, and you tried everything under the sun in vain, you will say Zoloxa Treatment, applied in half a minute, is a marvel. Stops gasping right off, and the terrible death staring-you-in-the-face feeling. So sure that every treatment is guaranteed. Contains no cocaine or similar drugs—no reason why it cures. No case of Cold in the Head, Nose or Throat Catarrh, Asthma or Hay Fever has yet failed to be cured by it. Try it. Money back if not satisfied. Send for particulars, or send $5.00 for a full Zoloxa Treatment. No sample. C. G. Maywood, Box 2, Hastings, Mich.

New Method of Reducing Fat

A news item from Paris informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh a pound a day without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dieting, or interference with one's meals is a mighty important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results, however, follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous prescription) can be obtained of any druggist or the makers, the Marmola Co., Dept. 103, Detroit, Mich., for seventy-five cents the large case, which is a decidedly economical price considering the number of tablets each case contains.

PROTECTION TO BE GIVEN THE POOR

MOVEMENT TO CREATE OFFICE FOLLOWS DISMANTLING OF FEDERAL JUDGE'S HOME.

Atlanta, April 10.—The outrageous dismantling of the home of United States Circuit Judge W. B. Sheppard, under a Justice Court writ, has led to a movement to create the office of People's Attorney. The duties of this officer will be to represent poor people who are often greatly wronged but who have no means to employ counsel to protect their rights. It is pointed out that if a United States Judge can be made the victim of such practices there must be hundreds of poor persons abused in a similar way. The plan is to have each member of the local bar contribute a small sum annually to be paid to some young, but competent, lawyer, and volunteer members of the association also will appear in court for those litigants if necessary.

The Bar Association will meet next week to take action on the Sheppard affair and will also act on the People's Attorney affair. Already enough people have agreed to contribute to insure the payment of the attorney.

HAIR REMOVERS ARE DANGEROUS

Dr. Wertenbaker Says:—"Don't Use Poisonous Depilatories."

In treating superfluous hair, it is of vital importance that the agent to be employed should be absolutely nonpoisonous, antiseptic and germicidal, because if it is not so, with frequent use it will produce eczema or blood poisoning. The trouble with the majority of ladies is that they don't do a little thinking for themselves. When an assertion is made by some unreliable concern, they take it as gospel truth. They never consider the reliability, neither do they question or ask for any substantiating proof that a preparation is nonpoisonous. They seem to think that the bare word of the manufacturer is sufficient. To the contrary, ladies should be most particular in choosing a hair remover and learn first what reputable authorities know about it.

Dr. Wertenbaker, the prominent physician, says: "For several years I said to my patients: 'Don't use poisonous depilatories, because they are bound to do harm. I have found De Miracle to be absolutely nonpoisonous, antiseptic and germicidal; therefore, on account of these qualities, it is distinctly beneficial to the skin and under no circumstances can it produce eczema or blood poisoning. I have used the preparation in my practice for a number of years, and find that the principle of its chemical and physiological action is correct. I consider it the only satisfactory method for the removal of superfluous hair."

Better take a doctor's advice. Don't be deceived with the fake free treatments which are advertised so extensively in the newspapers. Remember after you have used worthless concoctions it will be harder to remove the hair; therefore, isn't it better to investigate all hair removers first before you try any one of them?

We will send you absolutely free, in plain sealed envelope, a 54-page booklet containing full information concerning this remarkable treatment, as well as testimonials of prominent physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and the principal magazines. You should read this booklet before you try anything. It treats the subject exhaustively. Write to the DE MIRACLE CHEMICAL COMPANY, Desk 84, 1905 Park avenue, New York, simply saying you want this booklet, and it will be mailed, sealed, at once.

"THE PROTECTOR OF KINGS" TO GUARD ROYALTY NO MORE.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

PARIS, March 31.— In an inconspicuous corner of the Parisian papers the following notice appeared recently:

"M. Xavier Paoli, the 'Protector of Kings,' is about to retire from public life and with a clean conscience, enjoy the blessings of a well-deserved rest."

Unimportant as this intelligence may appear to the ordinary man, it will nevertheless be read with feelings of sincere regret by crowned heads and chiefs of state throughout the world, and will cause something of a flutter of apprehension on their part. "Paoli is gone"—they will say—"who will henceforth protect us when we go to France? Who will be the first to greet us, the last to bid us farewell? Who will attend us in our walks abroad and watch over us when we sleep? In whom can we put our trust as we did in Paoli?"

For upwards of thirty years no sovereign has set foot on the hospitable shores of France without being commended to M. Paoli's especial care. On their arrival they never failed to find the dapper little "commissaire special," courteous and self-possessed but keen and alert withal, waiting to receive them. "My dear Monsieur Paoli," said the King of the Belgians to him one day, "you are the protector of sovereigns." And King Leopold's happy phrase hit the nail on the head. M. Paoli has ever since been known as "le protecteur des souverains."

M. XAVIER PAOLI.

* * *

Those He Has Watched.

The list of crowned heads confided to the care of this indefatigable little man is indeed imposing one. He reckons among his proteges, past and present, the Tsar and Tsarina, Queen Victoria, King Leopold, King Oscar and King Gustaf, of Sweden; King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra, the Empress of Austria, King Alfonso and Queen Victoria Eugenie, of Spain; the kings and queens of Italy, Norway and Denmark; King Carlos, the Shah of Persia, the King of Siam, King Sissovath, of Cambodia, and the ex-Empress Eugenie.

I do not suppose that there is a single frontier station in France which M. Paoli does not know thoroughly, or where a royal or imperial train has not pulled up merely to take up or set down the amiable little special commissary. And his functions are by no means a sinecure. They demand boundless tact and incessant vigilance, but vigilance which, while it is severe, must be discreet and not hamper the august object of it. Many times has M. Paoli had to travel from end to end of France without respite, his eye and ear incessantly on the alert. In one and the same week he has had to accompany the King of Greece from Aix-les-Bains to Calais, then rush off to meet Alfonso on the Spanish frontier and escort him to the German frontier, only to speed away to Jeumont, on the Belgian frontier, and take King Leopold the whole length of France to Cap-Ferrat, in the Alpes Maritimes.

King Edward's Tribute.

In all those years never did so much as a single untoward incident mar the happy relations of the protector and his proteges. Well might King Edward VII.—then Prince of Wales—exclaim, when the youth Sipido attempted to kill him at the Gare du Nord at Brussels:

"If Paoli had been here, that youngster would have been arrested before he could even have fired a single shot!"

Not every sovereign, however, seems to have reposed such vast confidence in Paoli's omniscient watchfulness; at any rate, not at the outset. Take, for instance, the amusing meeting between his Siamese majesty, Chulalongkorn, and the special commissary in 1896. The Asiatic monarch had paid official visits to Russia, Denmark, Holland and Belgium and was on his way to be the guest of the republic. At the Franco-Belgian frontier the royal train stopped to take up M. Paoli, who was presented to his majesty by the Siamese Minister in Paris.

Chulalongkorn surveyed the little man in a frock coat and tall hat with undisguised amazement.

"Is it you, Monsieur, who is to guard my person?"

"I shall have that honor, Sire."

"But where are your arms?"

The Siamese Minister intervened at this awkward juncture and endeavored to explain to his majesty that M. Paoli did not go about armed to the teeth, but that his august person was none the less in safe keeping. A week later, when Chulalongkorn was bidding M. Paoli farewell, he presented him with the Cross of the Crown, a magnificent souvenir, and his hearty congratulations.

* * *

Knows Crowned Heads' Ways.

M. Paoli is a walking library of souvenirs and reminiscences. There is probably no man who knows more about the personal characteristics and habits of crowned heads than he. His memoirs, which will appear shortly, together with a separate volume of reminiscences of Queen Victoria, will teem with interest.

Queen Victoria was especially fond of the amiable and courteous special commissary, and when she created the Victorian Order, the first patent was made out in M. Paoli's name, and the Queen sent it to him personally with a gracious autograph letter, instead of forwarding it by the usual diplomatic channels. M. Paoli has also a splendid loving cup and numerous other souvenirs from her majesty. I fancy that it is Queen Victoria's memory that is most preciously treasured up in his heart. I noticed in his dining-room a whole series of water colors commemorating incidents of the Queen's visits to the Riviera. One shows her majesty giving clothing to a poor woman whom she met on one of her daily drives. Another, a French regiment standing at salute while the Queen, who has overtaken it on the march, drives by with a bow. Yet, again, it is a beggar in a little cart drawn by four dogs in full career and keeping ahead of the royal carriage, much to Queen Victoria's amusement. All these incidents are, of course, personal reminiscences to M. Paoli, who followed in another carriage.

It was at Nice, in 1885, when the King of Wurtemberg was making a somewhat prolonged stay on the Riviera that M. Paoli came to be the devoted guardian of Queen Victoria. M. Paoli was attached to the king's person as commissaire special, and in this capacity he showed such devotion, such vigilance and withal such tact that the Queen of England specially requested the French Government to allow him to perform a similar mission about her person. Other august personages were equally anxious for the same privilege, and thus it came about that, in 1887, the indefatigable little man was guarding three of them at one and the same time: Queen Victoria at Cimiez, the hereditary Grand Duke Nicholas at Cap d'Ail, and the King of Sweden at Cannes. He was quite equal to the emergency, which would have caused, in most men, a nervous breakdown.

Paoli comes of old Corsican stock. His great-grandfather was a historical personage and figures in English history, which fact doubtless accounts in some measure for his descendant's attachment to Queen Victoria and King Edward VII. Gen. Pascal Paoli was the leader of the Corsican Patriots and a resolute opponent of French rule in Corsica. Although he was Napoleon Bonaparte's godfather, he viewed the annexation of Corsica by France with alarm. The Emancipator and Regenerator of his country, as he was termed, desired to prevent this at all costs and headed a movement to place Corsica under the British flag. He finally had to seek refuge at London, where he died in 1807. He was buried in Westminster Abbey, where his monument may still be seen. His ashes were, however, removed fifteen years ago to his native land.

* * *

Reverses Changed Career.

M. Xavier Paoli, who was born in 1835 at La Porta, in Corsica, did not begin his official career until he was past 30. He was at that period already mayor of his commune and in easy circumstances. Financial losses forced him into the career which has now terminated. His services were so highly appreciated at the ministry of the interior that on the initiative of Duke Decaze he was made chevalier of the Legion of Honor in 1876. He is now officer of that famous order.

The anecdotes which M. Paoli has gathered in the course of his long career are, of course, legion. Here is one of the ex-Empress Eugenie. A few years ago at Cap Martin the ex-Empress, who has always held M. Paoli in especial favor, invited him to dinner. At table he found himself seated at his imperial hostess' left hand, and smilingly remarked that he was running the risk of incurring the wrath of the republican powers that be.

"Does your majesty think that there are many functionaries of the republic who would have ventured to accept your invitation?" he asked.

"Do you think, M. Paoli," retorted the ex-Empress with ready wit, "that there are functionaries to whom I should have addressed such an invitation?"

M. Paoli afterward told M. Waldeck-Rousseau, then president of the Council, what he had done, and the first minister of the republic expressed his approval of his subordinate's action.

The late Empress Elizabeth of Austria, who fell by the knife of the anarchist, Luccheni, took a great fancy to the amiable little commissary, who watched over her at each of her visits to France during a period of five years. By a strange coincidence—was it a presentiment?—the ill-fated Empress was speaking of M. Paoli almost at the moment of her assassination.

Queen Elizabeth's Death.

"On September 10, 1898," said M. Paoli to me, "on returning to Paris from one of my missions, I read in the evening papers the awful intelligence. Judge of my horror! I determined to start immediately for Geneva. As I was packing, the postman brought me a registered letter from Barker, the Empress Elizabeth's devoted reader. In it her majesty expressed her desire to have me about her person, if my duties permitted it. Her majesty added that she would arrive in Nice on December 1, so that, if I could not join her at Caux, near Geneva, where she was then residing, she hoped to see me at the Hotel Regina at Nice.

"The next day I reached Geneva. Princess Sztaray, the Empress' lady-in-waiting, said to me: 'M. Paoli, her majesty's last thought was addressed to you. As we were going from the Hotel Beaurivage to the landing stage of the quai de mont Blanc, the Empress remarked to me: "That good Paoli (ce bon Paoli) has received Barker's letter. I hope. How delighted he will be! I should be so pleased to see him here; but at all events, we shall meet at Nice." These were almost the last words that her majesty spoke. A few moments later Luccheni had plunged his murderous knife into her heart!"

Among the thirty autograph portraits adorning M. Paoli's walls, none is the object of greater veneration that that of the ill-fated Empress; nor is any keepsake more jealously guarded than a beautiful hunting-knife which belonged to her and which one of the Austrian archdukes gave to M. Paoli in memory of her.

Speaking of Queen Victoria, whom he served so devotedly, M. Paoli remarked: "My reminiscences of the Queen will be published at the moment of the inauguration of the statue which has been raised to her memory by the grateful people of Nice, who venerated her as much as did any of her own subjects. I venture to hope that I contributed to her popularity, for her majesty always deigned to consult me on a number of questions affecting her presence among the Nicois, and I was often able to suggest things which I knew would be especially appreciated by them. Before deciding such matters Queen Victoria invariably exclaimed: 'First of all, we must consult M. Paoli.'"

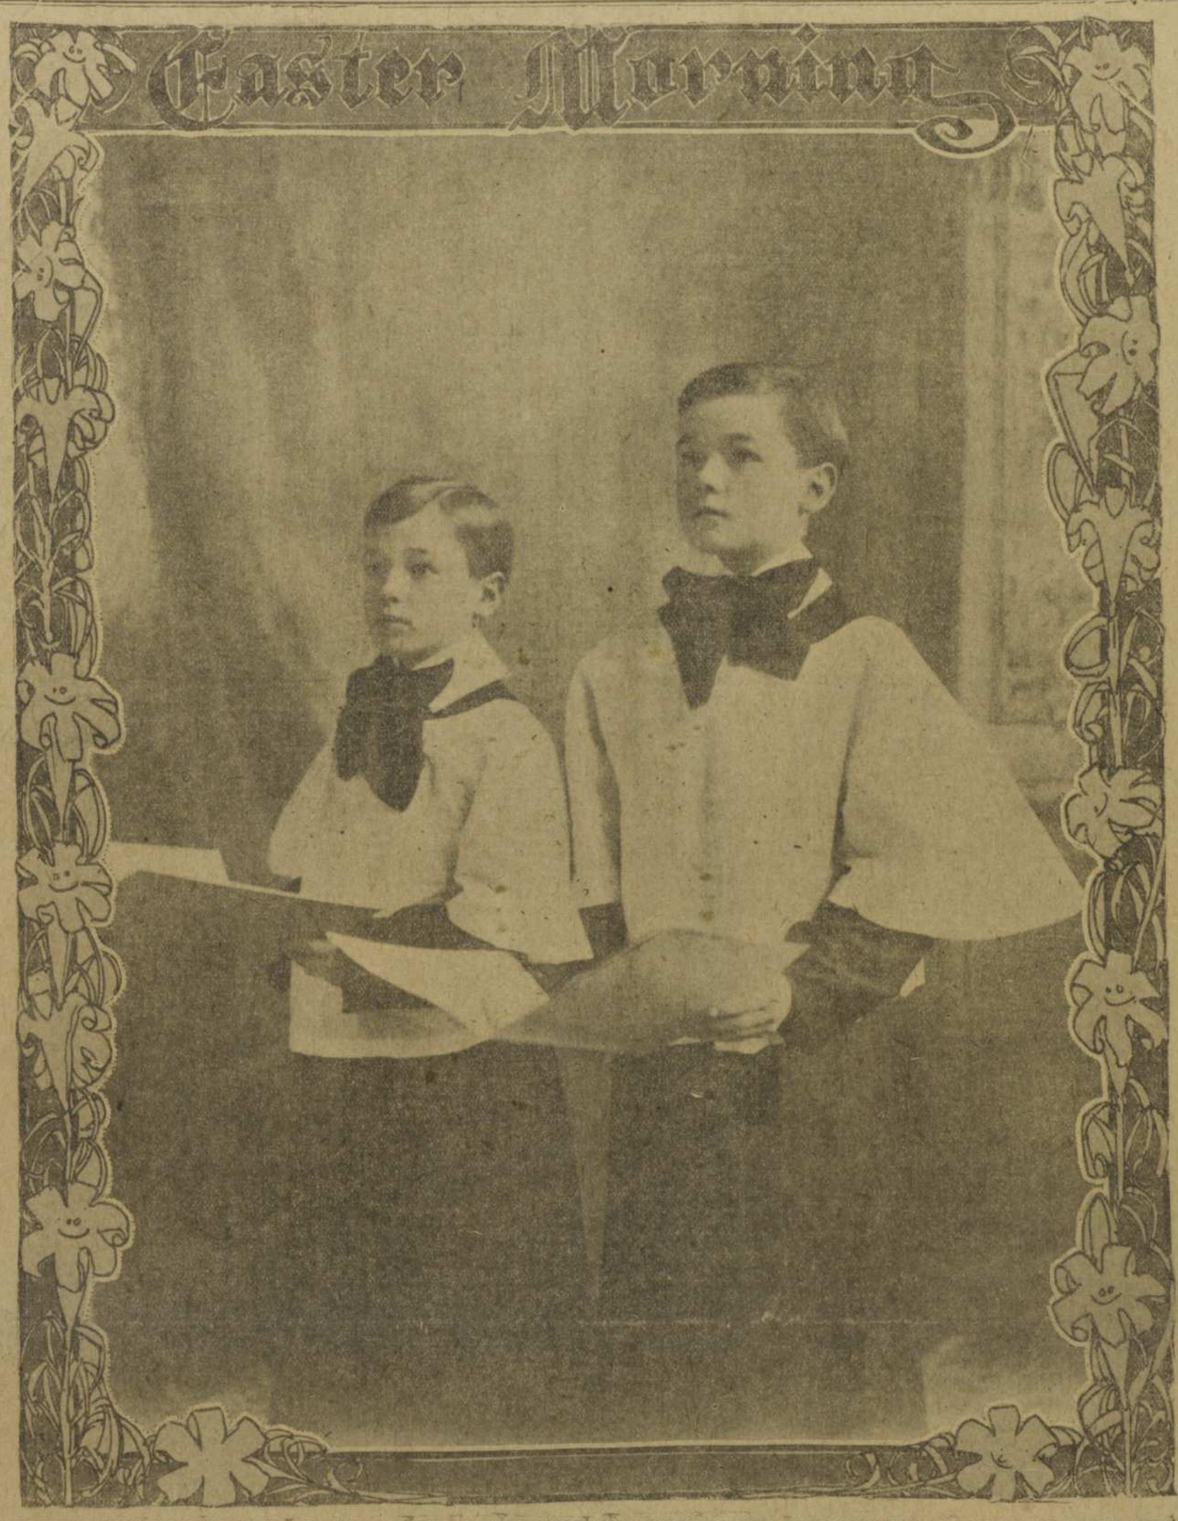

I have said enough to show what a wonderful old man M. Paoli is. To look at him, you would say he was barely 60, yet he has long left behind him the Psalmist's three-score years and ten. In spite of a more than ordinarily anxious responsibility he is as vigorous as many young men. He keeps a pedometer in his pocket, and is discontented when he has not covered his twenty kilometers (12 1-2 miles) before going to bed. King George of Greece, who is very fond of him, sends him regularly his New Year's wishes. His last message was characteristic. It ran as follows:

"My Dear Paoli: Take care of yourself so that you may preserve that astonishing vigor which I hope to see you display once more when you come to keep me company next August at Aix-les-Bains."

When he wrote this gracious message King George little thought that Paoli's official race was run. R. FRANKLIN.

THE MAGIC OF RARE METALS.

FOR thousands of years the world jogged along with only four metals—copper, tin, gold and silver. To-day we have fifty-nine or sixty, and are still adding to the list, writes Prof. J. Gordon Ogden in the Pittsburg Dispatch. Even iron, the metal which forms the basis of our modern civilization, was unknown for scores of centuries, and was impressed into the service of man 1,000 or 1,500 years before the Christian era. Lead and mercury were next added to the list, and then the world, tired out with its metallurgical exertions, rested for many more centuries.

Then, during the middle ages, antimony, bismuth, zinc and arsenic were discovered, more by accident than by systematic research. This masterly inactivity was partly due to lack of facilities on the part of those real, earnest seekers after scientific truth, and partly to the charlatanism and jugglery of frauds and fakirs of the time, who were seeking such impossibilities as the elixir of life and the philosopher's stone, which would transmute the so-called base metals, like lead or copper, into the noble metal, gold.

Superstition and trickery threw the study of metals and natural phenomena generally into disrepute, and an educated man during the middle ages was one who knew nothing of science, but who was able to read Latin, Greek and possibly Hebrew.

This notion of education has been exceedingly persistent, and even to-day we find some colleges and universities, fortunately not in our own country, to a large extent ignoring everything save the so-called "humanities" in their scheme of education.

The world has been exceedingly slow to recognize the fact that iron has done more for the world's civilization and progress than all the Greek verse ever written, and that the electric light has been of infinitely more value to mankind than all the odes of Horace, beautiful and sublime as they are in their hopeless pagan philosophy.

Within the last 200 years about fifty metals have been discovered. Most of them, it is true, have been looked upon by the world as curiosities, and they have been relegated to the chemical museums and shown in tiny little vials as samples of the wonderful achievements of modern scientific research. Occasionally they would be referred to by some writer with a vivid imagination, who would call to mind their extreme rarity and their fabulous value—but only as chemical curiosities and never as substances that would ever be of any possible use to mankind. Then the little vials would be put back on the shelves out of sight, out of mind, until the public wished again to hear the tales of gallium and germanium and radium, and to estimate what it would cost to make a pound of these rarities.

With the advent of the electric furnace and the use of temperatures hitherto unheard of these little vials have been taken down for another purpose. Oxides of the rare metal have been introduced to the fearful heat and reduced to the form of pure metals, and on account of the cheapness of reduction and abundance of ore, are taking their proper place in the sphere of industrial activity. The little dust-covered vials are looming up, and keen, hard-headed scientists are studying them with a view to their possibilities and the best means as to their utilization.

Take aluminum, for example. In 1883 aluminum first appeared on the market and sold for $8 a pound. It was still a curiosity, and here and there someone would get hold of an ounce or two and muse over its extreme lightness, its beautiful color and its acid and oxygen-resisting properties. But still a curiosity. Then comes the electric furnace. Aluminum drops from $5 a pound to 35 cents a pound, and the world suddenly sits up very straight and takes notice. A metal more useful than gold or silver, possessing more than iron, has joined the great procession of modern business opportunities, and immediately the business man frantically seeks the man of science and talks about "possibilities."

Aluminum has had a remarkable growth, commercially; but the next few decades will show its real value and use. It is popularly supposed that iron is the commonest of all the metals, but analyses of the earth's crust show that aluminum is the king of all the metals as far as quantity is concerned. There is just a little more than 8 per cent. of aluminum in the crust of the earth, or almost twice as much as there is of iron, and more than eighty times as much aluminum as there is copper.

Some time aluminum will be made for a few cents a pound, and it will eventually displace iron in many places where iron is now considered to be indispensable. It is about one-third the weight of iron; is about as strong in tensile strength as cast iron, and just as soon as the proper alloy of aluminum can be found it will be steel's strongest rival.

At present metallurgists are handicapped by the fact that aluminum can be made from only one ore, bauxite, and this ore is be found in few places and is rapidly being exhausted. There is no doubt, however, that in a short time we shall know how to extract the aluminum from ordinary clay, economically—then every clay bank will be a mine of high-grade ore, every bit of slate will yield its precious prisoner guarded for untold ages—and then iron, with its rusting, its crystallization and its eccentricities, as shown when in the form of steel, will be displaced by its peerless young rival, aluminum.

Another rare metal that has yielded to the magic of the furnace is tantalum. So called from Tantalus, as it was so elusive, it has finally been reduced by high temperature in the metallic form, and has found extensive use as a substitute for carbon in the manufacture of incandescent electric light filaments. Carbon is a very wasteful substance when used as a filament.

For the past two or three decades search has been made for a substance that would give more light and consume less current. The older a carbon filament gets the less light it gives and the more current used. It is, in fact, cheaper to discard an old carbon filament lamp and replace it with a fresh one on this account.

Tantalum, however, owing to its high melting point, 5,200 degrees F., is a very satisfactory substitute for carbon. It gives more light and uses only two watts per candle power, while carbon uses three and a half.

Another use for tantalum depends upon the fact that it is extremely hard. Various attempts have been made to drill through a thin sheet of this metal; a diamond drill, running at the rate of five thousand revolutions per minute, resulted in a penetration of only a small fraction of an inch, although the boring was kept up continuously for three days, and the sheet of tantalum was only one-third of an inch in thickness. No doubt it will eventually be used for bearings and dies and drills, or for any other purpose where extreme hardness is desired. Fortunately for us we have abundant supplies of this valuable substance in South Dakota and North Carolina.

Although tantalum is better than carbon for filaments, there has lately come into the field another Richmond. Tungsten, another rare metal, is even more valuable in this respect than tantalum. It has a higher melting point 5,500 degrees F., and gives a much more efficient light, with less expenditure of electric energy. It uses only one-third of the energy used in a carbon light, and, working at such a high temperature, gives far more candle power. It is true that the first cost of a tungsten light is almost prohibitive, but that is now. Wait until the magic work of the furnace is completed, and we are able to obtain tungsten cheaply. Then a carbon lamp will be a curiosity on account of its rarity.

Large quantities of tungsten ore have been found in Montana and California, and there is no lack of raw material for the future development of this industry.

Tungsten has other possibilities than the one indicated, and is employed in fire-proofing cloth for curtains, etc., and is invaluable in its use in dyeing, being a powerful mordant, a substance that forms an insoluble compound with any coloring matter and holds it within the tissue of the fabric.

Cerium and thorium are rare metals, and were until recently regarded as curiosities. Now they are looked upon literally in an entirely new light, as they form the basis of the chemicals used in impregnating the meshes of the Welsbach mantle, so common now as an illuminant in our houses. And these rare metals furnish us with the radiant, powerful light that enables the man of moderate means to illuminate his house better and cheaper than if he used the more costly electricity.

Chromium, whose melting point is beyond that of platinum, is another rare metal that has done marvelous things in the way of bettering steel. By its wonderful magic it has almost transformed this useful metal and has greatly increased its value and reliability.

Molybdenum and uranium are also of high value for the betterment of steel, and the future alone can reveal the possibilities that lie in this direction.

And now comes vanadium, the most wonderful of all the rare metals. Vanadium, known to the world for about eighty years, was little more than a chemical curiosity until quite recently. Then some wise experimenter added a mite of it to steel, and found that its effect was almost marvelous, wonderfully improving the quality of the steel. It increases the tensile strength of the steel about twofold, and at the same time acts as a scavenger and rids it of nitrogen and certain obscure oxides. Vanadium steel is not only statically stronger, but dynamically stronger than ordinary steel. In other words, it will not only carry greater loads, but will withstand heavier shocks. A bar of steel of high tensile strength would make a poor axle for an automobile if it could be fractured by a sudden jar against a cobble stone, and vanadium seems to strengthen steel remarkably in this respect. Vanadium steel seems to be less liable to what is commonly known as "crystallization," or, more properly speaking, the molecular disintegration which in some mysterious way changes fine steel into a substance but little better than cheap pot-metal. It has been recently reported that vanadium steel has been made in the form of wire having the tensile strength of 400,000 pounds to the square inch! One remarkable property possessed by vanadium steel is that of self-lubrication, an immense advantage in the case of high-speed tools. Until recently there was very little known of vanadium, and it was obtained with great difficulty and expense, owing to its extreme rarity. Within the past few years an immense deposit of it has been found on the top of the hitherto inaccessible Andes, and now long strings of llamas are carrying this precious ore down the steep slopes to the seaports and the marts of the world. Nature has again demonstrated her wonderful power of always providing for our needs, when these needs arise. If vanadium has this wonderful effect on steel, what may it not have on other metals, aluminum, for example? It may, possibly, be the one element that aluminum needs to give it the tensile strength so much desired.

Another use of vanadium has already been indicated as a mechanical agent. If reports from Paris, where Dr. Helouis has been using it for the cure of tuberculosis, cancer and kindred diseases, are trustworthy, and they seem to be, then the greatest medicinal agent the world has ever known has been discovered. The "white plague" will cease to be a menace, and happiness and joy will enter many an abode where grief now abides owing to the fact that this wonderful monster has laid its skeleton hand on some loved one therein. The whole world is intensely interested in this phase of vanadium, and if it proves to be the panacea that is claimed, we shall be everlastingly indebted to "The Magic of Rare Metals."

CAMERA SHOTS AFIELD: BABY SCAVENGERS AT HOME

By JAMES SPEED.

LIE down in the tangled mass of the bluegrass, dotted white with clover, and allow it to hold you snug and close to the bosom of old Mother Earth. Pull your hat over your eyes and look far away across the hills that push high against the blue of the sky line; fill your lungs full of the odor of the mellow plowed fields and the breath of the white clover, listen to the insistent drumming of an ardent woodpecker and the drowsy hum of hurrying bee wings; watch the clouds, the soft, fluffy clouds that look like a flock of huge, lazy, hump-backed sheep in a strange blue pasture. No camera can catch or hold these beauties of a perfect June day, and you settle your hat still closer over your face, for the sun on the clouds makes the light dance fiercely white.

A pair of dots swing across the swelling tops of the white clouds. They gradually grow larger, and as you follow their swing they become a pair of huge turkey buzzards quartering low over the wide fields. In huge, graceful circles they swing with widespread wings, held almost rigid. They rise and fall as lightly as a boat on the swell, and you sit up to reach for your camera only to realize you cannot secure a photo against such a glaring sky for a background. You lie back again in the grass and follow them with your eye as they sail immediately overhead, turning their slender heads to one side to obtain a good look at you. Then they swing sharply and lift themselves above the green tree tops on the hill slope that rises abruptly to the broken face of the limestone cliff.

One of the huge birds swings close over the trees and drops into the mass of greenery. I am on my feet at once, hoping the bird has found a dead rabbit or squirrel to eat, that I may have a chance to creep close enough for a picture. It is a steep, heavy climb up through a tangle of saplings, blackberries and wild grape vines. I move cautiously toward the point where the vulture disappeared, but a fragment of loose limestone under foot rolls noisily down the hillside.

There is a sudden rustle of wide, strong quills and I see the bird rise with slow flapping wings from a high ledge of limestone on the face of the cliff. When it is again above the trees it swings smoothly in increasing circles. While I stand there watching I suddenly wonder if I may after all have a chance for a picture; there may be a nest somewhere on that ledge.

I scramble up, holding on to the small trees that grow in the split in the stone, and the long, hanging grapevines, until I reach the face of the cliff. Once upon the ledge I work along cautiously until I find two large, speckled eggs upon a bare, well-trodden space close under a wide, projecting piece of limestone. Certainly an odd nest, but perfectly protected from rain and storms. The sun shines brilliantly over the face of the cliff, throwing the eggs into the deep shadow, so there is no use trying to take a good photo. As the cliff faces the east it must be a morning picture with the sun shining in upon the eggs. I must come back and try it early in the morning.

INHOSPITABLE TO CALLERS.

Just as the sun slips over the trees that top the distant ridges I scramble up the cliff. There I wait until the light coming through the trees illuminates the eggs. I focus my camera and am able to get a rather satisfactory photo.

I had hoped for a day with light, high-flying clouds that I might get the drive me away each youngster suddenly bends his back, places his head, upside down, upon the ground and disgorges some of the food its parents have brought it. As all of the family have a very Frenchy taste for "gamey" meat I usually beat a hasty retreat.

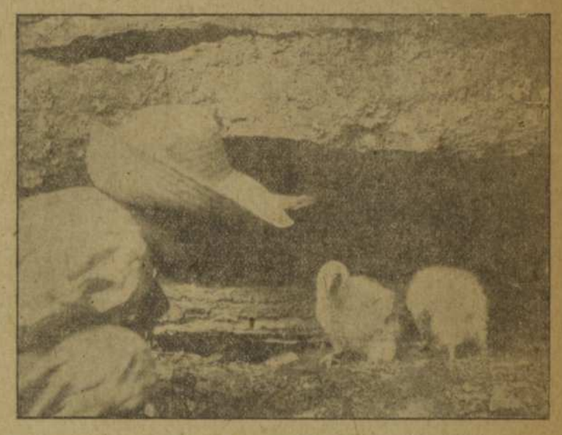

The greatest difficulty in obtaining good pictures of these baby scavengers was to select days when the light was bright but was not direct. Frequently I would have to wait hours, but was always amply repaid when a plate was developed. I found something worth while.

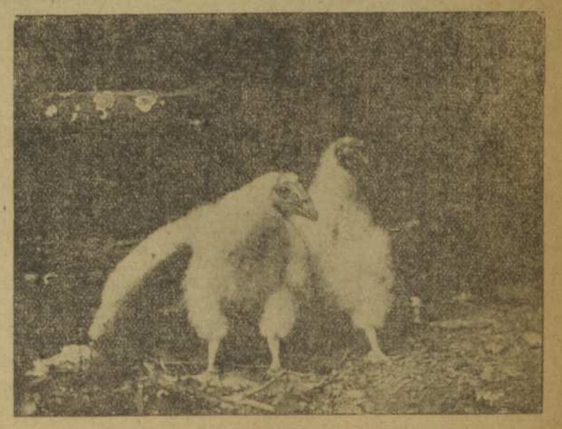

THE BUZZARD NEST.

Usually they crouch well down upon their heels with their bills almost touching the ground in front of them. It is interesting to visit them day after day and watch how rapidly they develop.

The little birds never appear to become accustomed to me about their nest nor the wide-staring eye of my camera. As they grow larger and somewhat steadier on their legs they spread their funny downy wings and throw themselves at me. At such times they force the air from their mouths and nostrils, making a peculiar hissing noise very much like an angry gander. If this performance does not

THREE BOYS IN A BOAT.

By RHAME HARRISON.

Monsieur laughed. "Its a pretty good disguise, is it not? You see he is compelled to go to Miami once or twice each year for our supplies, and it creates less suspicion to go disguised as an Indian than in his real identity. He gets the supplies as though representing a whole tribe of Indians. Then a great many things that Indians would hardly purchase, I order from New York, so its in boxes and no one knows what it is."

Pedro did not at first seem to relish our intrusion, but was sulky and stolid until Monsieur had a whispered consultation with him, and I suppose relieved his mind regarding our non-discovery of their secret entrance, then he became friendly and hospitable. The boat seemed to contain some of everything imaginable, and reading matter—magazines—politic, scientific, mechanic and every other description to last a year.

In the evening as Ernest and I strolled in the garden he ventured:

"Harold, I have never in my life had my curiosity so pricked as now. There is something significantly strange connected with Monsieur. He must be vastly rich in the first place, to live like the king he does and make absolutely nothing. But the most singular part is—how long has he been here? and what of his life? Even Frank's quizzing can't pry into his reserve. He talks enough, but not of all I'd like to hear.

"Do you think it would be wrong for me to wrench the secret from him? Don't you candidly think we are due that much to our fellow-man? I mean so as to make the revelation to the world when we get back to it?"

"Of course I'd find out if I could, but I don't see how you'll ever wrench any secret from him. He's too cautious. He tells absolutely nothing."

Ernest said no more, but after tea I observed him in apparent earnest conversation with Pedro, who, by the way, after having exchanged his Indian garb for that of a well-regulated Spanish serving man, did not in the least resemble a warrior.

"I wonder if he is several centuries old, too?" queried Frank. "He doesn't look a day over 40."

Presently Ernest came into the dining-room to join the party, leaving Pedro out on the veranda; and upon glancing out through the open window I perceived that he was in a profound slumber, occupying a reclining posture upon a huge armchair.

"Pedro seems to be fatigued from his journey and no doubt he has lost rest, too," observed Ernest carelessly.

"No doubt, no doubt," reiterated Monsieur, puffing away at his most excellent meerschaum pipe.

Ernest seated himself directly in front of Monsieur and began to engage him in conversation. I was busily occupied with some new magazines and do not know how the conversation progressed, but when my attention was directed Ernest was standing over Monsieur, making singular motions and passes over him with his hands. Monsieur was audibly asleep, beginning to snore, and Frank sat spellbound, speechless with emotion and well-directed attention.

Presently Ernest began in a modulated, crooning voice:

"You are unconscious of all surroundings. You hear nothing but my voice. You will now proceed to relate the history of your life down to the minutest detail. After you have finished you will retire and sleep soundly until morning, not remembering anything that has occurred."

I had never witnessed any such proceedings, but it flashed into my memory that I had heard that Ernest was a hypnotist of rare ability, a prodigy in the phenomena. I was then aware that Pedro was in an hypnotic trance also.

As Ernest's voice ceased, Monsieur began, and talked volubly for two solid hours. I wish I could repeat verbatim all that he said, but space forbids, even had I the power, but the substance was this.

He was a first cousin of Ponce de Leon, his name being deLeon also. He was with de Leon in all of his daring exploits, many of which he related not chronicled in history, and he was as fanatic over the Fountain of Immortal Youth as de Leon himself; heard descriptions of it from natives and resolved even after de Leon's death to find it. Upon one occasion the ship on which he sailed carried a vast treasure, plunder from the sea coast towns of South America. It was in reality a pirate's ship, but with him as the leader a band of sailors, eight or ten in number, mutineered, took the ship with the treasure of course, after making way with the Captain and crew, to the coast of Florida.

They had just succeeded in secreting the treasure and were having a hilarious time aboard the ship, dancing, drinking and carousing generally, when they were surprised by a band of savages and all murdered excepting himself and Pedro, who by some miraculous means made their escape. After pilfering their ship, the savages set fire to it and left it, but Monsieur happened to have one of the ships yawls hidden off in the bushes, so the next day after peace and quiet reigned supreme, they slipped back and got the yawl, unearthed the treasure, which consisted largely of jewels besides much gold, and made for the interior.

They happened by chance to find a secret cave or passage leading to the river that surrounds this high and beautiful island. Here they found wild fruit and game in abundance, but, best of all, the long-sought fountain.

That was 375 years ago, but here they had elected to remain and, with his boundless wealth and splendidly active brain, Monsieur had kept abreast of the times. That was wonderful, but he had studied and read and experimented upon every known subject, every current event.

"Would you mind showing us your treasure?" interrupted Ernest at this juncture.

"Not in the last. It would give me pleasure," assented Monsieur, rising gallantly and lighting a candle that happened to be at hand.

"Follow me," he commanded, and we were by no means reluctant. In his bedroom he removed a rug and then merely touched a tiny spring and a trapdoor rolled noiselessly back, revealing a staircase that led downward.

We followed Monsieur and were ushered into a room about twelve feet square. It contained nothing save an ingeniously contrived iron safe. After manipulating the combination the door opened and revealed to our entranced vision a brilliant, dazzling display of sparkling jewels. Diamonds, rubies, sapphires, emeralds, pearls. Oh! such a bewildering amount of magnificent gems; and gold! Tier upon tier of old gold coins piled and heaped one upon the other.

It we hoped Monsieur might just for a token of remembrance present each of us a gem we were doomed to disappointment, for after allowing us to feast our eyes upon the display he carefully readjusted the combination and preceded us up the stairs.

"Now you will retire to your bed and never remember what has transpired," said Ernest. He then proceeded to the veranda, where Pedro still snored.

"You will now go to your bed and sleep soundly until morning," he said to Pedro, who arose and went to his room in a dazed sort of way.

We were to leave on our homeward journey the following morning. Monsieur having proposed to fit us up for the trip, so after an early breakfast we were to start. We had partaken of a bountiful repast when Pedro served to each a dainty cup of most delicious coffee, which we all unsuspiciously drained, and that was the last thing we remember.

I felt a drowsy, benumbed sensation overcome me, and when I regained consciousness the sun was sinking in the west. We were away out in the glades. We three boys in our boat. I soon succeeded in arousing the boys and we found that our boat contained an abundant supply of everything necessary.

A compass with minute written directions was at hand, and an ample supply of gasoline. We were evidently many miles from Monsieur's, as no high timber was anywhere in sight. Pedro had no doubt towed us a great distance with their small launch, after escorting us, all unconscious through the Secret Passage.

"I believe it's all a dream, anyway," said Frank.

"But how do you account for the supply of food and gasoline? That's rather too tangible for a dream," interposed Ernest, the logic of which we were compelled to acknowledge.

OLD JACKSON'S MONEY;

Or,

Some Chapters In the Life of a Waif.

CHAPTER X.

WHAT changes two or three days may bring about in our lives! Tommy Clark left Glenwood in irons and looked upon as a murderer, and he returned a free lad and with people ready to welcome him as a young hero. You and I wont blame him if he lost his head over it a bit—and had a good opinion of himself. One of the friends that returned with him was the prison detective. He had sent telegraph and telephoned messages all over the State in regard to the red-whiskered man, and he went back to make Glenwood his headquarters for a few days.

Being a minor, Tommy must have a guardian appointed to hold his property for him. Every house in Glenwood was open to him, and every man was willing to take the guardianship. Under the advice of the detective, he petitioned that the doctor who had been a witness for him should be appointed; in time this came about, and I may say now that he was honest and faithful to his trust.

The boy could not go back to the old house with its memories and its horrors, and so the place was not only closed up, but pulled down. The village has grown a good deal since those days, and a fine brick schoolhouse now stands on the site. It was our boy who donated the site to the town as a free gift.

For three days after returning from the county seat the prison detective expected almost hourly to hear that the convict had been arrested, but there was even no news of him. He seemed to have disappeared as completely as if the ground had swallowed him up.

"I think he must be lurking in this neighborhood somewhere, said the detective, as he and Tom talked the matter over. "If he had had money he would not have come here to his brother. He got none here, and he can't make his way very far as a penniless man. I think I shall make a search of the haystacks for two or three miles around. The fellow must be half-starved by this time and lost his desperation."

With the assistance of a dozen men such a search was made, but it was without avail. It was left to Tommy Clark to solve the mystery. He had taken no part in the search, but in going into the woods in the rear of the old house to cut a pole he wanted he came across a sight that made him cry out and set him to running away. He had come across the body of Henry Johnson hanging to a limb, and the man had been dead several days.

After choking his old brother to death that night he had made a hurried search of the premises for money. Perhaps he was still searching when he heard the footsteps of the boy returning. At any rate, he found no money and left the house in a hurry—in such a hurry that when his false beard fell off he did not stop to pick it up. He may have taken shelter in a farmer's barn that night, and he may have returned to the old house next day to see if his brother was really alive, and to make a new search for the money. If so, he found a dead man and no cash. Then, penniless and discouraged, and feeling that the chances were all against him, he picked up an old rope and went to the woods and hanged himself.

As soon as Tommy had given the alarm, the suicide was cut down, and the detective fully identified him as the escaped convict, and he was buried at the expense of the village. It was just the end that a bad man might have expected to come to, and there was no one to grieve over it. No headstone has ever been placed at his grave, but after Tommy Clark got his money, he saw to it that the old man Jackson had the finest monument in the cemetery.

Well, I have only a little more to tell you. Last summer I went camping with five or six persons I had long known, and among them was Tommy Clark. Perhaps I should not speak of him by that name, but as Mr. Thomas Clark, for he's a young man of 23 now, his college education finished, and a new sign hung out over the door of a new law office. Old Jackson's money not only helped him to get an education and come up a useful member of society and industry, but the good doctor who stood at his back as guardian was as good as a father to him.

It may look like a long road to you from the pauper boy in the poorhouse up the hill to the spot where Tommy has reached, but things like that are happening all the time. Most of our rich men and great men started out in life as poor boys, and the road is open to you the same as it was to them. You may meet with many discouragements on the way, but pluck, honesty and industry are the three great things that lead on to place and fortune. They will always bring your friends, and friends will push you along until you can stand alone.

[The End.]

A WARNING.

"Since one in ten of us, if we weather the age of 35, are doomed to die of cancer," said a physician, "it is good to know the most prevalent cause is pressure—local irritation.

"Certain Eastern women wear a belt about the waist with a tight and heavy clasp of metal in front. Where this clasp presses these women contract cancer.

"Turkish porters carry very heavy weights on their shoulders. When these men fall victims to cancer it is on the shoulder that the disease appears.

"Here with us cancer to often attacks men's tongues. The cause is the cigar or pipe, which, with its pressure and heat, sets up the irritation which is certainly, so far as we know, cancer's chief cause."

A Poem For Her Name.

—[Photograph by Steffens—Klauber Studio.

Your Name, as your great-grandmother's bequest,
Carries me back to my childhood again;
Out of the turmoil of women and men,
Brings back the tenderness, beauty and grace
I saw in your great-grandmother's face.
She was a woman of heart and of brain;
With purpose direct and speech that was plain.
Wherever she found the poor or oppressed,
Her tenderest help came quickly to bless.
Whatever she saw to love or admire,
She offered the best her heart could inspire.
No murmur at Fate, no greedy demands;
She came, not to beg, but to give with full hands,
Helpful and loving, yet iron to wrong.
Her life was a sermon, her mem'ry a song.
And so evermore she stands for the best,
Little Lucinda Elizabeth Quest.

SPRING.

Oh, Spring! we welcome thee again,
For after cruel Winter's ice and snow.
Thy warm South wind from zephyr's realm—
We feel once more so softly blow.

Come, O maidens with your harps of gold,
And beautiful anthems sing;
Bedeck yourselves with flowers, fair,
To welcome the balmy Spring.

The scent of violets, wild and sweet,
Is wafted on the breeze,
And dainty leaves, of a pale green tint
Once more, clothe all the trees.

Sing, O children, gayly sing—
For 'tis the happiest time of the year;
May your glad, happy songs echo over the world,
Because Winter is gone and Spring is here.

How Easter Came To the Little Nuremberg Maids

By AMANDA B. HARRIS.

LITTLE Hildegarde, the burgomaster's daughter, came down early to breakfast. What a wonder!

And with her beautiful hair nicely braided, her dark blue velvet bodice on, and her gay street petticoat with the band of embroidery around the hem, and her velvet cap in her hand. She was all ready to go abroad.

She was in such haste to see the family that she slid down the balusters—children did that two hundred and twenty-five years ago, as they do now. Then she went skipping and whirling on her toes into the morning room, where the great carved table was set out, laden with savory, steaming things, and her father and mother and the rest were ready for breakfast.

"It has come, come, come," she cried; "the spring has come; truly, surely come. Gretchen brought me some violets and Andreas has seen a cockchafer."

The stald burgomaster of Nuremberg and his gracious wife looked lovingly at the beautiful young face, all flushed and eager, and they knew what was coming.

"And you know," continued Hildegarde, in dancing excitement, "you know the girls must be told. Oh! may not Andreas go, and Wilhelm and Conrad? It will take them all—all over town and ted? And let me go! Oh! may I, to Philippene and Katharina and Lenchen? I must! I must!"

"Now, what was it all about? Why, spring had come to the quaint old German city of Nuremberg. It has come, indeed, after the cold, northern winter. You should have lived there to know what spring meant to the people, especially to the children.

Two hundred and twenty-five years ago, when little Hildegarde, the burgomaster's daughter, lived there, Nuremberg was a fortified city. It had high double walls of solid masonry, with great massive gates that were open through the day, but closed and barred at nightfall. To be sure, no walls, however high, could keep out the spring; but in those severe winters, not a child but felt shut in. Right through the city flowed the river Pignitz and outside the walls were broad plains and beyond the plains were green hills, pleasant places to wander over in warm weather, but seeming so far away, so inaccessible till spring came! And yet so longed for! Violets grew there, starflowers, gentianellas — beautiful things without number; birds sang, butterflies were everywhere—when spring had come to stay.

To the little maidens of Nuremberg it meant something more, for they had a festival day of their own. Not dancing round a Maypole or observing any custom ever known on this continent, but they went in a procession, and drowned, or burned, or buried the winter.

How it was done shall be told presently.

Hildegarde had until now been thought too young, but to-day she was not only to have a part, but to be the chief personage. She could hardly eat her breakfast for joy, and by the time the sun had begun to flood the narrow streets with warmth and brightness, she was skipping along from house to house, and Andreas and the other menservants were going all over the city.

By noon the gray town seemed to have blossomed out with little girls. All dressed in white, they came tripping down the stone stairs, and on to the burgomaster's house. The streets were full of them. They kept coming and coming; from the baker's house and the barber's, from the brauser's and the seamstress' and the wood carver's, just the same as from the wealthy burgher's; rich or poor, it made no difference.

At the burgomaster's the double doors at the portal stood wide open, and in the long hall there was a blazing fire, for however genial it might be outside, in those houses of stone it was still chilly.

The mistress stood waiting to receive the little maids; a stately but most gracious lady, sweet of face and with such loving ways. How noble she looked in her handsome attire, with gold coins in the meshes of the netted cap on her head, a high ruff of costly lace about her neck and a richly-wrought chain of gold falling like a chatelaine over her velvet gown. She mothered the little girls as they came flocking in. She tied Gretchen's necklace and fastened the buckle on the shoe of the barber's little daughter. Mignon's hair she braided over, and she set a stitch where Katharina had torn the embroidery on her skirt. She smoothed down the dainty bodices, she put a deft touch here and another there, until all the flock were ready.

Scores of rosy faces, sparkling eyes

On and on went the maidens singing:
And now we have chased death away,
And brought in the summer so warm and gay—
The summer and the month of May.
And bring sweet flowers, many a one
We bring the rays of the golden sun,
For the dreary Death at last is gone.

Twice they cross the river which flows through the town and as many stone bridges, and by mid-afternoon they arrived at a third bridge, and there they threw the casket into the deep water, and so drowned the doll.

Winter was gone; it was dead; it could return no more.

Then, with Hildegarde and Philippine still at the head, the procession marched back to the burgomaster's house. Though a company with rumpled hair, and raiment disordered, the bright eyes were brighter, and the rosy cheeks more glowing; and everybody from the porter to the mistress, had a welcome for them.

A table was set in the banqueting hall, where they all sat down and had a feast of holiday things; seed cakes, plum cakes, cakes with marvelous frosting, cakes trimmed with flowers, cakes holding the most toothsome jellies, sweetmeats, tarts—every dainty that the Nuremberg bakers could make.

Then the blind old fiddler Anselm, came and played the most delightful marches, the airiest, gayest dances, the merriest, best of all he knew; and the little maids joined hands and sprung to the music. They said they were dancing the spring in. Their little feet went skipping in and endless chain; then round and round they went in a whirl of pretty skirts, blue eyes sparkling, and fair young cheeks aglow with roses, and the house merry with their sweet voices. For spring had come.

At dusk servants arrived from all over the town to take the little guests safely home. Hildegarde stood in the door echoing "good night! good night!" till all were out of sight.

And she said: "Oh, it has been the happiest day in all my life!"

Japan's Cotton Manufactories Big Money-Makers.

By FRANK G. CARPENTER.

KOBE, Japan, March 12.—If you want to see how wide-awake the Japanese are, come with me and take a look at the Kanegafuchi cotton mill, which lies on the outskirts of Hiogo. It is the biggest spinning establishment of the empire, and it belongs to a company which has a capital of seven million gold dollars and paid last year a dividend of 22 per cent. The company has altogether nineteen mills in operation and in course of construction. It has already more than 200,000 spindles at work; and the four new mills, now building, will add to this 98,000 more. It is putting up mills for weaving as well as for spinning; and when all are completed it will still have a million dollars' worth of working capital to go on.

The company began its work twenty years ago by erecting a spinning mill at Tokio. It has now two there and is building a third. It has silk mills at Kyoto, which are rapidly approaching completion, and it will soon have sixteen thousand spindles in operation there.

Of all the establishments of this big corporation the one here at Hiogo is the largest. It covers many acres and employes 4,000 hands. Its works run day and night, and they turn out cotton yarn by the thousands of bales annually. Much of the product is consumed here in Japan, but a great deal goes to the rapidly developing market of China, where it competes with that from our country.

Hiogo is the native city for which Kobe is the port. It has, all told, more than 300,000 people; and in going to the cotton mill our jinrikishas take us through several miles of Japanese stores, over the bridge which crosses the river and almost into the country. We can see the great smokestack of the works long before we come to it. It rises high above the low warehouses and spining mills, and its dense volume of black smoke poisons the air. The smokestack is made of iron, instead of brick, as in the United States. This is that it may better withstand the earthquakes which occur here every few days, and which at times are so great that they might send a tall brick stack to the ground. For the same reason the large mills are almost all of one story. They are built of brick and are so walled with glass that they are splendidly lighted.

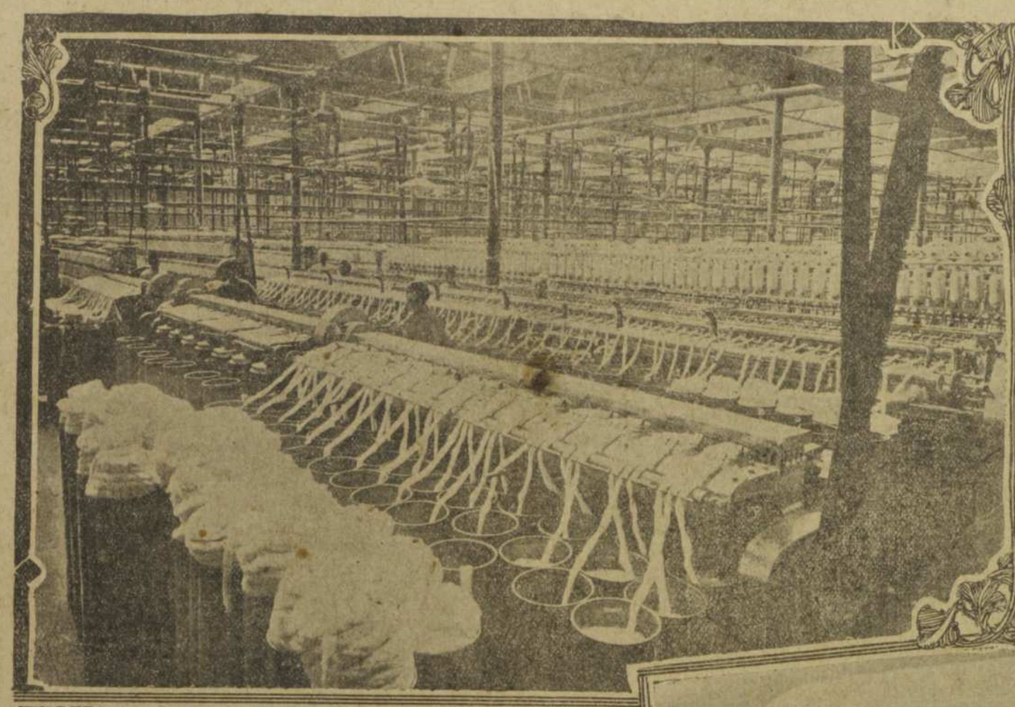

* * *

Wilderness of Machinery.

I do not know the acreage, but I went through a wilderness of moving pulleys, whirling spindles, cotton opening machines and other works of various kinds, which took more time than a Sabbath day's journey. Single buildings seemed to reach on and on till one could hardly see the end, and in all was the busy hum of machinery and of Japanese men, women and children working away.

I have seen many of our great mills in the United States, but none in which the cotton is more rapidly and efficiently handled than here. I doubt if we have any in which the work is done with less labor. The finest of up-to-date machinery is employed, and when it wears out it goes to the scrap heap. In some rooms, covering an acre, no more than two score men were at work, and one little girl was tending to every machine. In the spinning and reeling rooms there were more, and in some I saw hundreds of girls and women at work.

I asked whence the machinery came and was told that some was from the United States, but that more came from England. Japan has not yet begun to manufacture cotton machinery, although it is experimenting with work of all kinds. For instance, the engines which run these big works were constructed at Tokio. One of them is 1,500 horse power, and it is as fine as any engine of the kind anywhere.

WILDERNESS OF WHIRLING SPINDLES IN JAPANESE MILL.

BREAKING COTTON AT THE KANEGAFUCHI MILLS

Connected with the establishment is an experimental weaving mill, which will soon be increased to 400 looms. As it is now the cotton comes into the mill in bales, being imported from China, India and the United States, and it goes out in smaller bales of cotton yarn, ready for weaving. In the near future much of it will go out in the shape of cotton cloth for the markets of Japan, Korea, Manchuria and China.

During my visit I went through twelve great cotton warehouses which are packed full of bales, from the ground to the roof, and the manager tells me that at certain times in the year he has as much as three million worth of raw cotton on hand. The greater part of the cotton used comes from India, although much is from the United States. Kobe, which is one of the chief ports of the empire, lands about forty million dollars' worth of cotton every year; and of this twenty million dollars' worth comes from India, six million dollars from China and over ten million dollars from the United States. Our cotton is the best; but the Indian product is cheaper, and the two are mixed in the making of these yarns. The manager complained to me about the bad packing of our American bales, and showed me some of them side by side with bales from Bombay. The latter were beautifully put up and so wrapped that no cotton could be lost. Our bales were broken and torn and the lint was falling out.

As I walked through the mills I asked as to wages and hours of work. There are two shifts, one during the day and the other at night. The hours of actual work are ten; and there are rest hours at 9 a. m., at noon and 3 p. m. The rest times consume about two hours, and with them the working day is twelve hours long. This company does not work its hands on Sundays, as is common with many of the industries of Japan. It believes in night work. Its managers tell me that almost all the cotton mills work both day and night, and that this custom is a great benefit to the spinning industry. As it is now, the demand for cotton yarns is so great that night work is a necessity, but in times of depression it is possible to stop the night work until the demand requires it again. By this double work the Japan mills are producing twice as much, per capital and machinery, as mills of other countries where day work only is used. This fact may be one of the reasons for the big dividends which nearly all the companies are now paying.

I asked as to wages of the mill hands, and was told they are from 22 to 60 sen a day. This means from 11 to 30 cents of our money; or from a little more than 1 to 3 cents for each working hour. The general wage of cotton spinners throughout this district is about 21 cents for women, 30 cents for men and 6 cents for children.

As I went through the mills I saw a great many children at work, and many of the child workers were under fourteen. I stood beside some little almond-eyed tots who could not have been more than ten.

According to the Government reports, there are now 365,000 hands in the textile factories, and of these almost 290,000 are females. There are also 26,000 girls and 2,000 boys who are under 14 years of age. This is not a large proportion of children, and the number grows less from year to year.

* * *

Girls' Dormitories.

The Kanegafuchi Company is about the most advanced of all in Japan as to its methods of handling its employes. It has tenement houses which it rents out at low rates, and also dormitories for men and dormitories for women. I visited one of the latter buildings. It was a two-story structure surrounding a beautiful garden. Its walls were of framework covered with paper, with outer walls of pine wood. It has accommodations for 800 girls sleeping in Japanese fashion on the floor, with several girls in each room. As the night shift was sleeping, I was not able to look at many of the rooms, but the few I saw were carpeted with the whitest of mats and warmed hibachis or Japanese fire boxes. Outside this, they had practically no other furniture. The bedding consisted of futons, or thick-wadded comforters, which were packed away in cupboards when not in use. The girls have neither bedsteads, tables nor chairs, and they sit and sleep Japanese fashion upon the floor.

From here I went to one of the large dining-rooms which the company has established for its employes. Here several hundred men and boys were eating with chopsticks steaming rice, vegetables and fish. They were enjoying the meal and were apparently satisfied. As I looked, the manager told me that they furnished board at a little less than cost price, and that the men were given three meals for 5½ cents per day. This is not quite 2 cents per meal. The manager told me that they lose about 2 cents per day on each man in thus feeding them, and when asked whether the food was uniformly good, the reply came quickly: "Of course, it is, and we have to keep it so or we should soon hear from the men."

The company has also a store where it furnishes its employes such merchandise as they want at cost price. This store handles all sorts of Japanese goods, though the men may buy elsewhere if they will. It has food, clothing, notions and everything that appeals to the taste of such people.

* * *

Workmen Well Treated.

This company is anxious to keep its men in a good humor. It trains its employes for its work and does all it can to make them loyal to the establishment. It takes great pride in the fact that it has some of the best workmen in Japan, and leaves no stones unturned to increase its reputation in this regard. Among the special institutions at the mills is a theater with a large stage and a full equipment of scenery. The house will seat, I should say, about a thousand, the audience sitting on white mats on the floor. There are galleries with similar seats, and the floor inclines so that the people can see uniformly well. The company brings actors and lecturers here at its own expense, in order to amuse its employes.

There is also a two-story school building in the works, a large part of which is given up to a kindergarten for the little children whose mothers are employed in the mills, and there is a technical school, where picked boys are taught the scientific theory of cotton spinning and practical mill work under competent teachers. This is with the object of supplying intelligent overseers and foremen for the future.

Another institution which all the Kanegafuchi mills have is a first-class hospital with a corps of physicians and nurses, who attend the sick without charge. The hospitals have spring beds and are thoroughly ventilated and lighted. The one here had a laboratory connected with it for the study of microbes and the investigation of special diseases. The company proposes to build a sanitarium at Takasago, one of the seaside resorts, for its convalescent operatives; it has appropriated $15,000 for the building, and this is now under construction.

In addition to the above these mills have a pension fund which now amounts to $142,000, a fund for the welfare of the employes of more than $100,000 and a sanitary fund of $25,000. The workmen have also societies organized under a company for mutual relief and for the promotion of the general interest of the members. One of the societies has a large income from its members' fees, including a subsidy from the company, and another has a capital of $100,000.

* * *

Pay Big Dividends.

I am told that all the cotton mills of Japan are doing well. In addition to the establishment which I have described there are many others which work day and night and which propose to increase their capacity and to extend their trade throughout the Far East. They look upon China as their especial market and say that they have the advantage of all other peoples in understanding the written characters used in the languages of the two countries, and also in their general knowledge of the Chinese people and their customs. There are now Japanese going over China investigating the markets for cotton; and there are steamship lines which connect Kobe with the big cities on almost all the Chinese rivers. The demand for cotton goods at home is steadily increasing, and there a great effort will be made to push the trade in Korea and Manchuria.

At present there are 118 mills in the country devoted to spinning alone; and these have more than 1,500,000 spindles. They make almost a million bales of cotton yarn annually; and have a profit therefrom of $9,000,000 or $10,000,000. I have before me figures showing some of the dividends paid. In 1905 every cotton mill in Japan paid from 10 to 40 per cent., and in 1906 there were ten companies which paid all the way from 16 to 45 per cent. In 1907 there were two which paid 50 per cent.; and the Tokio Grand Yarn Company has paid as high as 70 per cent. Nearly all these companies are adding to their surpluses and are charging off good amounts to the depreciation of their buildings and machinery.

* * *

Some Cotton Weaving.

So far the Japanese have not done a great deal in weaving cotton, but they are now making enough sheeting every year to carpet a road as wide as Pennsylvania avenue, in Washington, for a distance of 60,000 miles. Such a carpet would reach twice around the world at the equator and leave more than enough over to cover a similar pathway through its center. There are now a number of large mills with something like 10,000 looms. They grew rapidly during the war with Russia, for the army then needed quantities of goods and the prices rose. The cost of blankets went up 100 per cent., and some of the mills were kept busy making khaki. Of what the war required it is estimated that Japan supplied 70 per cent. and imported only 30 per cent.

In addition to the work of the weaving factories, an enormous amount was done in the houses on hand looms. There are now almost a million homes in which weaving is carried on, and there are hundreds of people who work these. The number was more than a million ten years ago, but it is gradually decreasing, and more and more of the work is being done in the factories. It is this houseweaving industry which consumes a great part of the cotton yarn manufactured here, and it is on hand looms that the most of that which is exported to China and Korea is woven. Many small mills are springing up, some worked by steam and others by water power and electricity. The center of the weaving industry is about Osaka, which is also the center of the spinning industry. That city has more than 20,000 houses in which weaving is done. It has scores of large factories, and the smoke from their stacks makes the town seem more like Pittsburg than any in Japan. Osaka is now as big as Philadelphia, and it has grown greatly within the past few years.

* * *

Japanese Matting.

This region is the center of the matting industry. There are many factories about Osaka Bay and here in Kobe which make millions of yards of matting for export and millions of mats for home consumption. The Japanese do not use matting like that exported to the United States. The most common carpet here is made up of white straw woven into mats an inch thick, a yard wide and two yards long. These mats are the unit of surface measurement for almost everything. The rooms of the houses are rectangular and their sizes are estimated at the number of mats it takes to cover them. When a man orders a house built he directs that it be one of so many mats, and the cost of construction is based upon that estimate. These mats are bound with black cloth, and as they fit closely, the floor is covered with a number of these white rectangles surrounded by black. Japan uses over fourteen million such mats every year, and also three or four million pieces of ordinary matting of the same shape. The value of the whole is several million dollars.

As to matting for export, the manufacture of that began less than twenty years ago, and it now brings in something like $5,000,000 a year. Almost the whole of this export is to the United States, our purchases of Japanese matting annually amounting to something like twenty million yards. The most of this is cheap and coarse, but other varieties are as fine as a Panama hat. They are now making new patterns with raised figures. I have just ordered a roll sent home, which looks like brocaded silk woven of straw.

This matting is made out of a reed which grows about here. It has no knots and is much like rice, although its seed has no value. It is planted and cultivated in the same way, and is well dried and bleached before it is sold. The matting is dyed with analine colors. It is woven like cloth, but all the pieces have to be put in by hand. The work is tedious, and of the finer varieties two men and an assistant can make not more than three rolls per month.

* * *

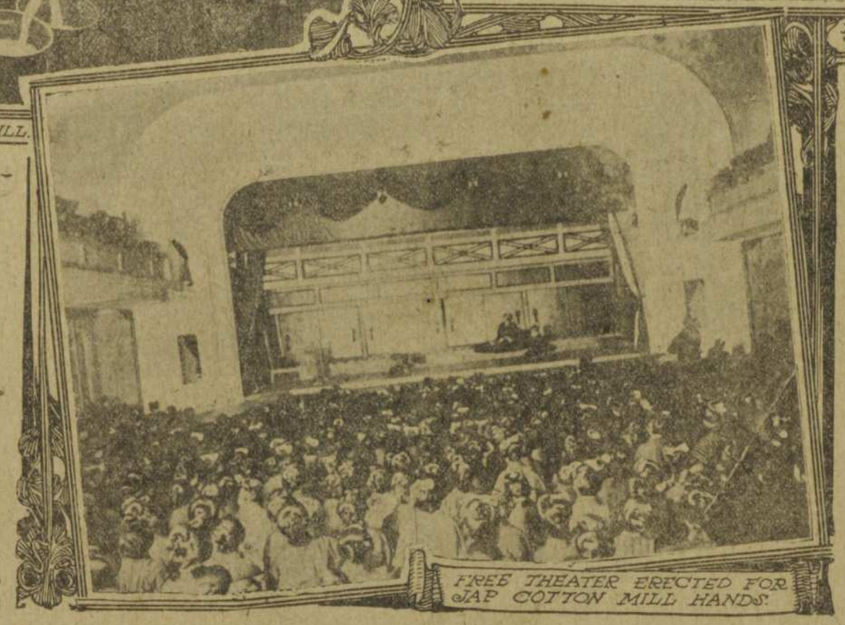

Cheap Straw Rugs.

The Japanese are now weaving beautiful straw rugs in flowers and other patterns and these are exceedingly cheap. I have bought some about six by ten feet in size at 50 or 60 cents each and the highest price I have paid for any matting is less than 20 cents gold per yard.

The most beautiful cottons made here are intended for native consumption. They are not much more than a foot wide and are artistically printed in designs far different from the loud figures used on goods intended for the United States markets. The cotton crepe for home use is beautiful and it would have a big sale in the United States for curtains if it were sent there. The Japanese use it for every-day summer kimonos.

Another interesting manufacture of cotton is that which the native people employ here for toweling. These have gay figures printed in white and blue. Every firm has its own design and not a few of the native hotels give away towels of this kind to their guests. Within the past few years quite a craze has sprung up among the foreign ladies visiting Japan to make collections of these towels, and I know many who buy pieces of them for use as fancy tablecloths and napkins.

FREE THEATER ERECTED FOR JAP COTTON MILL HANDS.

FITTING THE SCHOOL TO THE IMMIGRANTS.

By PETER ROBERTS.

[Industrial Department, International Y. M. C. A.]

MICHAEL NOVAK, a young Russian, had heard of the United States, and had come to America with two strong arms and a stout heart. When he looked for work he had only three words at his command, "job" and "how much." But three years ago that was enough, for employers then hired thousands of men who knew not a word of English. Michael began with $6 a week. He realized the advantage of English and immediately began to study. As his knowledge of the language increased his wages rose, and when last I heard of him he was earning $3.50 a day.

The foreign-tongued men in the industries can rise to the maximum of their efficiency only when they speak the language of the country, and now where is the knowledge of a language so important an asset as in the lives of these men in America. Both employers and employes know this. Slavs, Magyars, Italians, Greeks, Syrians and Persians are anxious to learn English, but the opportunities offered them are not many. Some public schools are doing good work, but they are cases in the desert. The general equipment of schools is ill-adapted to the needs of foreign adults, and the teaching is still more wide of the mark. To squeeze a six-foot Austrian into a child's combination desk, give him a primer, and have him wrestle with the sentence, "Sophie has a little doll," is incongruous to say the least. If the desire of the foreign adult to learn our language is to be properly met we must devise an equipment wholly different from that in use to teach the child elements of his mother tongue.

I have known many immigrants to plod over books, printed in their native tongues and designed to instruct them in our language. It is safe to say that no one ever learned a foreign tongue by studying disconnected words, grammatical rules and directions for pronunciation. The men are in a hurry to learn the English of the shop and the mine, the mill and the forge, the factory and the dock. They do not want book English. Most of them will continue to write their mother tongue, but they want their ears trained and their tongues accustomed to the sounds of English. They should be aided to this knowledge by the easiest and quickest way. This can best be done by helping them clothe the experience of daily life in an English garb.

The foreigner lives and moves in a small world, of which he is the center and about which he can freely converse in his native tongue. But English lets him into the larger life of America, raises his wages, calls him to a higher standard of living, and is the medium of better communication with his fellow-workers. A vocabulary of eight hundred words will suffice, if acquired in the form of simple sentences pertaining to every-day occurrences. These words cannot be acquired from books. Language is not to be practiced in the seclusion of a room, nor used in monologue, but in the relation of men with men. It is the medium by which to express the intelligence, the activities, the necessities of life in the interdependence of modern society.

A knowledge of English is also necessary to protect the foreigner in life and limb. Shadwell in his recent book on "Industrial Efficiency" declares that employer and employe must co-operate if the horrifying accidents of modern industry are to be eliminated, and that no man should be employed in dangerous trades until he is made thoroughly conversant with the dangers incident to the work. But mining, the steel and iron works, the white lead and grinding trades employ thousands of foreigners who do not comprehend the simplest warning given in English, and who cannot read the warning even if printed in their native tongues. Again and again men are injured who would have been saved if they had known a dozen English words. And the terrible casualties, the disgrace of our industrial records, will not diminish until our language is taught to foreigners employed in dangerous trades that they may become familiar with the simple rules laid down for their protection.

HOTEL THAT HELPS MAN SHY ON COSTUME.

"STORMBOUND, eh?" laughed the clerk, as the tired-out New York business man registered at the desk. It was after midnight, says the New York World. He had been kept late at his office; it was raining cats and dogs with sleet in between; and, furthermore, he couldn't get home to Atlantic Highlands.

"Yes, and trainbound, too!" answered the business man.

"Oh, we'll take care of you, I guess," answered the clerk.

"You can't," answered the business man. "I haven't even got a bit of baggage. I want a room and bath. How much?"

"Wait till you leave us, sir," laughed the clerk with a confident air.

"But I haven't any baggage," insisted the business man, "and you don't know me. Besides, I want to get out in the morning in a hurry and I might as well pay now."

So he handed over the regulation amount for a room and bath and went upstairs to his room. Ten minutes later there was a knock on the door and a bell boy appeared carrying a silver salver in his hand.

Several articles lay thereon, each one in a sealed paper package.

"Toilet things, sir," said the bell boy.

The astonished no-baggager thereupon learned the newest wrinkle in hotel life—the wrinkle of looking out for the man without a bit of baggage.

The first package contained a new tooth brush, marked "with the compliments of the hotel." Another held a miniature tube of tooth paste and a third was a miniature tin box of talcum powder. In the largest package was a freshly-laundered night shirt and in another, a brush and comb.

"It was something so new to me," explained the business man afterward, "that I couldn't understand it. I thought I had to pay and asked how much. It was gently explained to me that it was all on the house; that such stuff as was marked with 'Compliments of the hotel' was mine to keep; that the rest, marked as the hotel's property, I was to leave in the room when I vacated it.

"Well, of course, with all these little luxuries I felt more comfortable. Then I looked around the room and I found a card saying that the hotel would hire me evening clothes, a high hat, evening pumps and silk socks and a shirt. I could have gone there without a thing and in half an hour have been dressed to the minute.

"I turned in and next morning when I was called another bell boy was on the job again, this time with clothes and hat brushes and a request for the size of my neck that he might get me a clean collar. That looks pretty nearly like running a hotel up-to-date.

"I spent just as comfortable a night as if I had gone there with a trunk and suit case, and it didn't cost me a cent more than the same room would have cost a man who came with a van load of trunks. A man always feels uncomfortable when he goes to a strange hotel with no baggage and always feels called upon to explain.

"I suppose the average hotel clerk can't understand why a man should be stuck in town with nothing. And if anybody should ask you, there are some clerks who can't understand that the ordinary hotel beat always goes to a hotel with a trunk or a suit case. It may be filled with bricks, but he has something to get away with it. Somebody must have gotten wise to the fact that decent people sometimes get caught in town without a thing. I know I was.

"New York is waking up. Everybody isn't a beat. There are men who pay their bills and these little wrinkles which add to their bodily comfort mean a lot."

All of which goes to show New York isn't the country village that Chicago and Philadelphia would like to make it appear.

How to Entertain the Gift of Flowers

"Flowers for the invalid"

"Brought by the darling on her way from school"

"The tasteful gift"

THE title was laid before me for my choice or rejection.

"How to Entertain Gifts of Flowers." And, as if whispered in my ear, a bit of rhyme I learned in the "merry, merry May" of my own life:

Mine is the old belief
That, midst your sweets and midst your blooms,
There's a soul in every leaf.

The "entertainment" of souls symbolized by what another poet tells us are—

Stars that in the earth's firmament do shine,— is, then, a dignified and a lovely duty.

I decided forthwith to let that line stand as it was written.

Is there another reader of this page, I wonder, who ever studied the Flora's dictionaries that were in our foremothers' and maiden great-aunts' libraries, and consulted more frequently than they turned the leaves of Johnson and Walker's Lexicon of the English Language? I have not seen a copy of "Flora's Dictionary" in fifty years. Or of another bethumbed manual, compiled, if my memory does not play me false, by Frances Osgood. It bore the flourishing title of "Flowers of Poetry and Poetry of Flowers." An admirer of the popular cousin for whom I was named gave it to me on my twelfth birthday, and she and I used to con the flowery pages together. That the language of flowers therein expounded differed often, and at times seriously, from the authorized and more business-like work I have twice mentioned, sometimes gave rise to laughable "happenings." Will the modern girl reader be patient with the telling of one of these?

Both volumes were in use in a quaint old homestead "away down South in Dixie," where a gay house party was assembled for a week in July.

There was the usual number of alleged and suspected lovers, and much wooing and being wooed going forward that I, though a child, could not err in the understanding of the signs thereof. One determined suitor of a co-guester of the house put his fate to the test in the white, high noon of a summer's day, catching his Dulcinea at the piano in the shaded drawing room, and proceeding, then and there, to enter ardently upon an exposition of the business that had drawn him thither. He was in the full flood of protestation when the rest of the party, unwitting of the imminence of the crisis, fluttered into the room from verandas and lawn, seeking coolness and shadow and declaiming against the fervent heat of the outer world.

The luckless swain had not another opportunity to press the unfinished suit for the rest of the day, seek it though he did with assiduity that awakened the suspicions of the initiated. His guardian angel was assuredly off guard that season, for he was so far left to himself as to bring a bunch of sweet peas from the garden late that afternoon and present it to his Amaryllis as she sat on the porch surrounded by a circle of mischief-loving lookers-on. A stifled laugh rippled through the party, swelling into a burst of merriment as the girl looked up from the offering, her cheeks scarlet and her eyes flashing indignant amazement upon the poor blunderer. For everybody there except himself knew the definition set over against "sweet pea" in Flora's Dictionary:

"An appointed time and half disclosure!"

As the discomfited donor explained to a friend who afterward took him to task for the awful faux pas—he had consulted a floral calendar (I think it was my "Poetry of Flowers") that gave the sweet pea quite another language.

"It was, 'Your qualities surpass your charms,'" stammered the worsted wooer to his confidante. "But nothing will convince her that I didn't intend to tell the other story!"

STREET FLOWERS

The moral of the true anecdote was more apparent in that day than now. Floral lexicons have gone so far back out of fashion that young people under 30 who condescend to read this talk now hear of them for the first time. Yet Bulwer-Lytton had not then written:

Who that has loved knows not the tender tale
Which flowers reveal when lips are coy to tell?

A couplet which, by the way, would have lashed the mortification of our awkward swain of Lang Syne to madness.

I heard a gallant of this generation say the other day that "flowers are such a safe offering, don't you know? They express appreciation of a woman's charms and admiration and all that, of course, but they are too perishable to be used as 'Exhibit A' or 'Exhibit B' in case of complications."

The idea crossed my mind that the florist of today may be in collusion with the up-to-date man about town in hastening the effacement of "exhibits." The arrangement of the "set bouquet" affected by a fast set of pleasure-makers is sheer barbarity. The attenuated wires wound about the stems check the circulation of the tender blossoms as truly as a tourniquet arrests the flow of blood in your limb or mine. When taken apart, the manufactured bouquet betrays other cruelties and shams. Rosebuds with but an inch or two of stem are lashed with the thin wire to sticks that simulate stalks, and the apparent freshness of flower and leaf is induced by some such process as horse dealers resort to to freshen up and inspirit the wretched hacks they would sell. It is an unexplained mystery of iniquity to the buyer that the flowers he selects at 5 o'clock P. M., all glowing and crisp as with the dew of the morning, are limp and miserable within half an hour after he has passed them over to Camilla or Sylvia at 6. If they hold their freshness until she can pin them on her bodice as the finishing touch to her evening toilette, he is lucky.

The evanescence of the bloom of "street bouquets" is too notorious to need more than a word here. Yet we have the boy whose shrill cry of "Flowers! fresh flowers!" at the top of the subway steps or the foot of the "L" stairs imposes upon none except the very young and the very ambitious and penurious.

"A beauty rosebud to surprise grandma"

"Flowers! fresh flowers!"

To attempt "entertainment" of street flowers, by whomsoever presented, is a pitiable farce. When they are brought to me by the darling who, on her way from school, is betrayed into expending 10 cents of her weekly allowance in the purchase of mignonette or a "Beauty" rosebud "to surprise" grandmamma," I go through the form of cutting the wicked wire, and clipping the ends of the stems in the forlorn hope of coaxing back some semblance of life and bloom. When the doomed blooms are the gift of a misguided adult, I get them out of sight with merciful speed, by the time his back is turned.

Nobody, nowadays, makes up or presents a "mixed bouquet," such as was esteemed en regle less than thirty years ago. I read but yesterday in a novel the description of such a love gift: "The heart of the collection was a single Cape jessamine. This was surrounded by moss-rosebuds, and these by modest mignonette. A fringe of stephanotis inclosed the fragrant beauties." Nobody laughed at the picture when the book was published. It would be reckoned a monstrosity today.

BRIGHT FLOWERS

To our modern flower-lover there is but one way whereby the gift of the fragile and eloquent treasures may be offered with a fair hope that judicious "entertainment" may protract their period of loveliness, therefore their ministry of the beautiful. Long-stemmed and fresh, they are laid upon waxed paper that will prevent evaporation of the vital essence—or sap—which is the life, and inclosed in a box with a close cover. Thus conveyed to friend, lover or invalid, they hold color and crispness. If we would keep them yet longer that they may grace some special "occasion," we fit on the cover without disturbing the contents of the box and put them away in a dark, cool place, to await the moment of display. Before arranging them in a vase or bowl of water, clip the ends of the stems to encourage capillary attraction. Water is not sap, but it will lengthen plant life. A bit of charcoal in the bottom of the vase is a sanitary measure. Also, the admixture of a teaspoonful of ammonia in a pint of water. Clip the stems daily while the flowers last.

I have spoken of the always welcome gift of flowers to the invalid. One word of caution here may not be amiss. Never send flowers that are altogether white to the sickroom. Your florist ought to indorse this admonition, backing it up by incidents from his experience of the whims and fancies of this or that customer. The aversion to the receipt of a box of purely white flowers when one is laid upon a bed of languishing from which he may never arise may be absurd. Respect the fantasy. White flowers are for the casket and the tomb. The association in the distempered fancy of the patient may do actual harm.

One can hardly send a prettier and more tasteful gift at this season than a pot of Easter lilies. With intelligent care ("entertainment"?) they may last for several weeks. Keep them in a moderately warm room, apart from furnace heat and gas fumes; water them daily and give them all the sun you can secure for them. Under these influences the youngest buds will expand into symmetrical bloom. Cut off the dead flowers as they fade and darken into decay.

Marion Harland Recipes.

Scotch Scones.

[By Request.]

MIX together a cup of white flour, three cups of oatmeal, a teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bring three cupfuls of milk to the scalding point, but do not allow it to boil, cream two and a half tablespoonfuls of butter with a tablespoonful of sugar and stir these into the scalding milk, and when melted, turn the liquid into the oatmeal and flour mixture. Mix with a wooden spoon to a soft dough, but do not touch with the hands. Turn out upon a floured pastry board and roll into a sheet less than half an inch in thickness, cut into rounds, and bake on a soapstone griddle, turning when brown on one side. Butter while hot.

* * *

Lemon Cream Pie.

[Kindness Mrs. A. K.]

Line a pie plate with rich pastry, and bake it, first pricking the crust in several places to prevent blisters forming on it.

Squeeze the juice from two lemons and grate into it the rind of one, add a cup of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch. Stir until dissolved, then pour on slowly a pint of boiling water, put over the fire and stir until clear. Take from the fire, and while still warm stir in the beaten yolks of two eggs. Fill the pie crust with this mixture and bake. When set, draw to the door of the oven and cover with a meringue made of the whites of the eggs, beaten light, with a little sugar. Return to the oven until a light brown in color, then set in the warm kitchen until the pie is cool. Keep out of cold draughts while hot.

* * *

Lentils.

[Kindness of German Housekeeper.]

Pick the lentils over very carefully and soak in cold water for eight or ten hours. Two hours before you wish to eat them put on the range to boil with fresh, cold water. When boiling, drain and add boiling water and salt. When so soft that you can mash them between the fingers, drain, add butter and serve. You may cook enough for two meals, saving the liquid and a part of the lentils for soup the next day. Heat it, add rich stock and thicken with a little flour.

* * *

Oysters and Bacon.

[Kindness Mrs. G. P.]

Fry the fat out from several slices of bacon. Lay the bacon to one side and in the piping hot fat in the pan fry oysters that have been seasoned with salt and dipped with a fork in cracker dust. Fry to a golden brown. Serve with or without the bacon. This is an excellent recipe, as the bacon gives a delicious flavor to the oysters, while the quick frying keeps them plump and preserves their juices.

* * *

Oyster Omelette.

[Kindness Mrs. G. P.]

Make a light omelette, allowing one egg for each person. Beat the yolks and white separately, seasoning with pepper and salt to taste and, while cooking the omelette, put into a separate saucepan with a little oyster liquor six oysters for each egg. When these are ruffled, keep hot over boiling water and just before folding over the omelette pour on the oysters and serve immediately.

* * *

Heavenly Hash, No. 1.

[Kindness of Correspondent.]

Peel and slice into very small pieces six oranges, eight slices of pineapple, chopped, one pound of Malaga grapes, seeded, and cut into halves, and one cupful of kernels of English walnuts. Sprinkle over all a pint of powdered sugar, dissolve a package of gelatin in a little water; pour this over and through the fruits, and set on the ice to cool. Serve with whipped cream.

* * *

Heavenly Hash, No. 2.

[Kindness of Mrs. H. C. P.]

Chop one onion and fry it in a plenty of butter until tender and brown. Add to it two cups of cold mutton, diced, a cup of diced cold boiled potatoes and pepper and salt to taste. Stir in four tablespoonfuls of tomato sauce and sprinkle chopped parsley over the dish when serving.

* * *

Divinity Candy.

[Kindness of M. G. U.]

Three cups of granulated sugar; a half cup of golden drip syrup; one cup of sweet cream; one cup of English walnut meats, broken into bits. Boil the first three ingredients to a soft ball, stirring all the time. Take from the fire and stir until thick. Add nut meats and pour into an oiled tin to harden. It should be nearly an inch thick. When cool, cut into squares.

* * *

"My Salad Dressing."

[Kindness of "Mac."]

Two eggs, beaten very light; a gill of sweet cream, a teaspoonful of mustard, a tablespoonful of salt and a little sugar, butter the size of an egg. Boil all together until it thickens, stirring constantly. Take from the fire and add vinegar until of the desired consistency.

* * *

Uncooked Fondant.

[Kindness of Correspondent.]

Measure the unbeaten white of an egg and add to it an equal quantity of cold water. Mix in XXXX confectioners' sugar until of the right consistency to mold. Flavor or color as one would cook fondant. It is much less trouble than the cooked variety, but more expensive.

* * *

Cheese Cake.

[Kindness of Correspondent.]

Yolks of four eggs; one cup of sugar; one-half cup of butter; three teaspoonfuls of sifted flour; one-half cup of sweet milk. Heat the milk and butter together, and, stirring constantly, the other ingredients, and when well mixed bake in an open crust of rich pastry.

* * *

Oatmeal Custard.

[Kindness of German Housekeeper.]

Rub two large cups of boiled oatmeal through a colander with a pint of milk, add two well-beaten eggs, salt, sugar and flavoring to taste. Bake for a half hour.

A Few Hints

I should like to "butt in" with a few hints to the housemother. I am not an experienced "hausfrau," but a young one who is always looking for the easiest way of doing things. Not that I dislike housework, but I don't like drudgery, and so I try to make housework pleasant.

"Count the chimney."

"As you say—" If grape jelly won't form, let it stand uncovered in the sun for a few days.

I put up gallons every year out of my own garden. Last summer I had 150 quarts of peaches, thirty quarts of rhubarb and the same of tomatoes and beans. I had also strawberries, red and black currant jelly—all from my garden.

2. For a layer cake: Beat together two tablespoonfuls of lard (or butter), two cups of sugar and two eggs. Sift this mixture for two minutes and leave it for half an hour while you do your dusting. In this way the sugar is dissolved without the tiresome stirring and your time is spent to better advantage. Then add a teacupful of flour, one tablespoonful of baking powder and enough milk to make a thin batter. If less milk is used it will make a good loaf cake.

3. One reason why cake falls is that the sugar is not dissolved. Another is because too much butter is used.

4. After greasing the cake tins, powder them with flour, and the cakes will come out whole.

5. Use dissolved borax instead of bluing in your rinsing water.

6. In a large family it is well to save time and labor by folding sheets and towels as soon as they are dry and running them through the wringer.

7. In scrubbing the kitchen, use hot water and a little kerosene. The secret of a mess of clean floor lies in changing the water often.

8. A bicycle pump is good for cleaning tufted furniture.

9. Use dampened newspaper for polishing nickel stove trimmings, rubbing vigorously.

10. Woolen blankets are best washed in warm soapsuds, rinsed in warm water and hung out in a warm, windy day.

11. I have never seen spinach cooked in this way except in my kitchen, but it is very delicious.

Boil the spinach tender in water slightly salted. Drain, and press out the juice into a saucepan. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter for a peck of spinach, and when it hisses stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour. Stir until it is of a golden brown, and thin with the reserved juice to the consistency of cream, stirring to smoothness. Add a third of a teaspoonful of sugar and take from the fire. When it has cooled somewhat, beat in two eggs and grate in a little nutmeg.

Pour this sauce over the spinach (which should have been kept hot). There will be no spinach left in the dish when dinner is over.

I think you can get me a formula for making a hektograph. M. B. (Chicago).

The rest of our generous member's letter is laid away among papers labeled "For summer use," pertaining, as it does, to the fruit season. I have it in my mind to try her spinach recipe in my own kitchen. Spinach, as I have said before, is aptly named by a shrewd writer upon dietetics "the broom of the human system." It is especially healthful in the spring, making way gently with accumulated bile and other remnants of the mischief wrought by winter, sharp changes from heat to cold, much flesh food and lack of exercise in the city. The excellent vegetable should appear upon every table at least twice a week, and be eaten freely during the early spring months.

About Leeks

Seeing an article on the subject of leeks, let me say that I lived in Chicago seventeen years and was in the grocery business at that, without ever seeing a leek. I think if you handled the leaf of a leek once you would never care to touch one again. They are as much worse than garlic in odor as garlic is worse than onion. You could smell it a block off. And then leeks die with cultivation. If you buy those that look like onions with a green stalk, they are nothing but old onions just starting to grow.

2. Do you know that to use just plain white soap with gasoline will spoil the material it is used upon? It will turn white silk yellow and take the color out of other goods. I can make a nice white soap, but it is not fit to wash white goods in, with or without gasoline.

H. F. (Appleton, Wis.).

I am sorry to seem to differ diametrically with an esteemed correspondent, but facts, as they have come to me, are stubborn, and I cannot get over them. As, for instance, that I yearly cultivate leeks in my country garden and find them the mildest-mannered of the onion family. Furthermore, that I have bought them all winter long, about once a week, in the city market, and that they are a favorite green vegetable in my family. They are small white tubers with long green blades rising from them, which are cut down a few inches in preparing the leeks for cooking.

We boil them—the shortened blades and all—in salted water, and when they are tender, drain and serve with white sauce poured over them. They are sweet, and taste almost as much like young asparagus as like young onions. They are, evidently, quite another vegetable from the malodorous tuber you describe.

I suspect that inquiry in the Chicago market now would confirm my statement. I consider the leek such a toothsome and nutritious addition to the family bill-of-fare that I am the more anxious to soften your judgment of it.

2. I like bad occasion before this to warn housewives against the use of soap in washing white silk. Forever compline anything with gasoline in cleansing fine fabrics.

Thanks are due to you and to five other members for recipes for French uncooked candy. Having already published the same in substance several times, we have not space for more of the same kind.

Saving Worn Doilies

My fringed doilies began to look shabby because the fringe was partly worn away, and yet the body of the damask was perfectly good. I cut off the fringe and hemmed the doilies neatly (even the round and oval) and sewed on fine torchon lace, being careful not to "full" it in the least. They have been much admired and have been in use for two years since they were thus renewed. Had I not done it I should have been obliged to throw them away.

Try cutting up pineapple and mixing it with new plant, either for immediate use or to can for the winter. The combination is fine.

Cut pineapple without taking off the outer skin, into pieces a finger in length. Pour boiling water over it and let it stand five minutes. Do this twice. It removes the sharp acid taste. Then put into a double boiler (a tin-lined pail without the addition of water). Add half as much sugar as is usually put into stewed ripe plant and cook tender. Serve as an accompaniment to a meat course. The slices retain their shape and have not the sickly quality common to preserved rhubarb. Each piece may be fitted out separately.

Mrs. G. B. (St. Charles, Ill.).

I account myself happy in being able to lay before my readers the foregoing extracts from an admirable series of "helps" donated by a member I am proud to enroll as a contributor. Other things as good, if not better, from the same pen, will follow in due season. I have not room for more in this issue.

Apropos of her suggestion respecting worn fringes, I may add that more than one handsome fringed tablecloth in my own stock was thus rehabilitated when fringes went out of fashion. A neat hem restored it to favor, and no one was the wiser for the temporary banishment.

"Demoralized" Potatoes

I tried the recipe for "Pommes de terre soufflés" that appeared in the Exchange a few weeks ago. I thought that I obeyed directions implicitly, but the potatoes failed to "etherealize." My husband will have it that they were "demoralized." Instead, I suppose it was because I sliced the potatoes across the grain. However, I have not given up trying.

Can you make room for an

Eggless Cake Recipe.

I warrant it good.

One cup of sour milk; one cup of granulated sugar; one cup of raisins; half a cup of butter; two and a half cups of flour (sifted); one level teaspoonful of soda; a full teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon and a little vanilla.

Cream butter and sugar; add raisins and spice, dissolve the soda in the sour milk, and beat in last; lastly, the flour and vanilla.

A Swedish friend gave me the recipe for

Fruit Pinwheels.

Mix together and rub through a sieve one pint of flour, one tablespoonful of sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of soft; two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Rub into this mixture two liberal tablespoonfuls of butter, wet all with a scant half-pint of milk. Sprinkle your pastry board with flour, and putting the dough upon it, roll out into a large square about an inch thick. Spread upon this a heaping tablespoonful of half-melted butter, and one each of sugar and of dried and cleaned currants; grate nutmeg or cinnamon over all, roll as you would a jelly roll or a "valise pudding," cut into slices three-quarters of an inch thick with a sharp knife, and arrange in a well-buttered baking pan. Do not let the slices touch one another. Bake about twelve minutes in a very quick oven.

Can you tell me how to make buttered toast soft and not soggy?

And how to cure the bulbs that have bloomed in water?

M. R. B. (East Saginaw, Mich.).

1. To begin with your ill-success with the potatoes. Did you drain and cool them as directed? We have tried the recipe most satisfactorily since the publication in the Exchange, cutting the potatoes crosswise. I do not know that this is essential to the puffiness, but try it next time.

2. Toast very quickly and butter immediately. Then keep in a covered dish until it is served, which should be promptly. Soggy and chilled toast is "tolerable and not to be endured!"

Your "pinwheels" are spandy-new to me. I wish you would tell us if they are to be eaten hot or cold. And if hot—after the manner of a roly-poly—are they served with or without a sauce?

Your letter is delightful throughout. Will you not favor us again?

THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

THE following recipe is sent in response to the request of "A. B." (Peoria, Ill.) for a recipe for

"Divinity Candy."

Put a quarter of a pound of sugar (granulated) into a saucepan, pour in enough water to cover it—barely—and cook until it forms a soft ball when dropped into cold water—about the consistency of frosting. Put into another saucepan one and a half pints of granulated sugar, half a pint of Karo syrup and a little water. Cook until it cracks into brittleness when dropped into cold water. Beat the whites of three eggs very stiff, and into these add the first-named mixture, and, when well incorporated, the second. Season with vanilla. Put into the whole mixture a heaping pint of English walnut meats—then beat! beat!! and BEAT!!! until you can beat no more. The candy should be by now ready to lay upon greased plates. Cut into blocks.

You will find it delicious.

Mrs. S. H. B. (Philadelphia).

Thank you for the recipe and for the merry vein in which it is penned. We are still tacking the other formula called for in the communication from "A. B.," to wit, "Heavenly Hash." They should belong to the same family.

They are sweet, and taste almost as much like young asparagus as like young onions. They are, evidently, quite another vegetable from the malodorous tuber you describe.

I suspect that inquiry in the Chicago market now would confirm my statement. I consider the leek such a toothsome and nutritious addition to the family bill-of-fare that I am the more anxious to soften your judgment of it.

2. I like bad occasion before this to warn housewives against the use of soap in washing white silk. Forever compline anything with gasoline in cleansing fine fabrics.

Thanks are due to you and to five other members for recipes for French uncooked candy. Having already published the same in substance several times, we have not space for more of the same kind.

Saving Worn Doilies

My fringed doilies began to look shabby because the fringe was partly worn away, and yet the body of the damask was perfectly good. I cut off the fringe and hemmed the doilies neatly (even the round and oval) and sewed on fine torchon lace, being careful not to "full" it in the least. They have been much admired and have been in use for two years since they were thus renewed. Had I not done it I should have been obliged to throw them away.

"Demoralized" Potatoes

I tried the recipe for "Pommes de terre soufflés" that appeared in the Exchange a few weeks ago. I thought that I obeyed directions implicitly, but the potatoes failed to "etherealize." My husband will have it that they were "demoralized." Instead, I suppose it was because I sliced the potatoes across the grain. However, I have not given up trying.

Can you make room for an

Eggless Cake Recipe.

I warrant it good.

One cup of sour milk; one cup of granulated sugar; one cup of raisins; half a cup of butter; two and a half cups of flour (sifted); one level teaspoonful of soda; a full teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon and a little vanilla.

Cream butter and sugar; add raisins and spice, dissolve the soda in the sour milk, and beat in last; lastly, the flour and vanilla.

A Swedish friend gave me the recipe for

Fruit Pinwheels.

Mix together and rub through a sieve one pint of flour, one tablespoonful of sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of soft; two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Rub into this mixture two liberal tablespoonfuls of butter, wet all with a scant half-pint of milk. Sprinkle your pastry board with flour, and putting the dough upon it, roll out into a large square about an inch thick. Spread upon this a heaping tablespoonful of half-melted butter, and one each of sugar and of dried and cleaned currants; grate nutmeg or cinnamon over all, roll as you would a jelly roll or a "valise pudding," cut into slices three-quarters of an inch thick with a sharp knife, and arrange in a well-buttered baking pan. Do not let the slices touch one another. Bake about twelve minutes in a very quick oven.

Can you tell me how to make buttered toast soft and not soggy?

M. R. B. (East Saginaw, Mich.).

1. To begin with your ill-success with the potatoes. Did you drain and cool them as directed? We have tried the recipe most satisfactorily since the publication in the Exchange, cutting the potatoes crosswise. I do not know that this is essential to the puffiness, but try it next time.

2. Toast very quickly and butter immediately. Then keep in a covered dish until it is served, which should be promptly. Soggy and chilled toast is "tolerable and not to be endured!"

Your "pinwheels" are spandy-new to me. I wish you would tell us if they are to be eaten hot or cold. And if hot—after the manner of a roly-poly—are they served with or without a sauce?

Your letter is delightful throughout. Will you not favor us again?

THE COMPLETE HOUSECLEANER.

[McLandburgh Wilson in New York Sun.]

When April cleans her house
We can but vainly yearn
That all the wives of men
Her methods sweet might learn.

She puts a carpet down
As green as heart could wish;
She doesn't ask your help
But tells you to go fish.

She stirs up clouds of dust,
Yet calls you not an ass;
You are not in her way
If you but sit and loaf.

She washes all the ground,
With floods she does her best;
Yet all she asks of you
Is that you sweetly rest.

She hangs her pictures up
Upon the sky to gleam,
Yet asks you not to climb,
But just to sit and dream.

FIG. B—A DASHING 1909 WALKING SUIT.

Easter Parade Will Determine Styles.

NEW YORK has long bloomed with spring styles, but the costumes which will air themselves on Fifth avenue to-day will demonstrate the ones likely to rule.

At the various private places where fine garments are turned out, the choicest cuts for elegant gowns lean largely to Empire effects. With these charming draperies—for the delightfully skimp designs are scarcely more than coverings for graceful figures—pale tints accommodate themselves. Tones in tan, ranging from a brown to a salmon tinge, are displayed by a number of frocks. The grays, though lighter, are still suggestive of the smoke tint worn in the winter, and the gamuts in violet and green include too many shades to be counted.

Indeed, it looks as if every color, and every change of which it is capable, will be worn, though a species of sage is a specially smart green, and plum color and amethyst intrude among the violets. Black and definite white, though seen, stand behind color.

Fashion's window presents the look of an aesthetic rainbow. Which means that, though colors rule, they are never strident. Over all is flung a gentle dimness, as if brilliant hues were veiled with a misty gray or stuffs had wept themselves pale somehow. In truth, all of Dame Fashion's moods lean to the sentimental this season. It is a pleasing quality and one always suited to elegant and fair womanhood.

The material of a gown is biased entirely by the model chosen. All Empire effects call for textures soft in finish, the silks, satins and cloths used hanging with the limp suppleness of chiffon. A high satiny gloss is a luxurious feature of many of these materials, and with such rich textures go handsome laces and bead passementeries of a superb sort. On the bodice of a sage green Empire dress, which showed the inevitable lace guimpe and undersleeves, was a passementerie which imitated the raised bunches and foliage of small white grapes. The dress itself of chiffon over a slip of sage green messaline.

Actual and simulated princess effects are countless, these permitting more trimming of the skirt portions than the Empire models allow. It is only rarely, in fact, that the skirt of an Empire dress is trimmed, the general preference being for the plain effect, which increases the elaborateness of the bodice and accentuates the height of the wearer. To look tall and slim, if not truly so, is Fashion's first requirement, and after that, it must be confessed, magnificence rules the hour.

Splendid passementeries of this grape sort and others in contrasting silk, or in the tone of the gown, are the newest trimmings. Narrow ball fringes and plain silk ones of considerable depth also have enormous vogue, while soutache, straight braid, and velvet and ribbon bands all have their usual place.

For practical use the suits with beetle-back coats are very smart. These are made in plain cloth and ribbed, striped, mottled and checked wools, and though a number of such suits show soutache or wider braid trimmings, when well made and set off with suitable accessories, they are invariably smarter when only stitched.

The most dashing of these suit dresses may fit itself to many semi-dress occasions, if the waist worn under the coat is of a pretty net or silk, and hat, shoes and gloves are of immaculate trimness.

Therein, after all, lies the real essence of good dressing nowadays. One's whole toilette must be in harmonious keeping or suitably bolstered, and show, besides, that newness once so scorned. A run-down heel, or ripped braid, or shower-dimmed head piece will wreck the finest costume ever turned out, and knowing this, careful dressers choose to have many pairs of fairly inexpensive gloves and boots and several hats, rather than a short supply of expensive things.

This week's designs show four of the new season's smartest models. A very beautiful gown, which may be made of cloth, veiling or of any of the numerous soft silks on the market, is shown in Fig. A. The model for this was in one of the shades of old blue, with trimmings of soutache braid and silk fringe, and a chemisette of net in a matching color overlaid with gold. The blouse is made over a smoothly fitting lining, and the high-waisted skirt can be cut in either two or three pieces, as it is made without a front seam.

Many departures from the original suggestions are possible. For instance, the chimesette could be of white lace, and instead of the gold which overlays it, a passementerie could be used, or else the lace left to show. If the the chemisette could be of white lace, color for the rest of the gown, there could be bodice touches of coral, bright green or Chinese blue, which is a highly decorative tint for trimming.

But as to the gold. Bullion garnitures, when the quantity is restrained, are very much the vogue, and there is scarcely a dressy French frock whose corsage, at least, does not show the glint of gilt. A necktie made of gold braid, finished with a tassel of gilt threads and beads, trims the throat of many beautiful French gowns.

A typical spring walking suit is represented in Fig. B. This dashing little get-up, whose smart hat is in perfect keeping, is made of ribbed wool suiting in one of the wistaria shades. A semi-Empire effect is given by the cut of the skirt, but it is the cutaway coat with its bird-like tail which gives this suit the spring dash. It could be made in any stout wool material which does not show big figures, but in a black and white men's cloth, with a white Panama hat trimmed with black velvet ribbon, it would be especially stylish and suited to many quite smart occasions.

Foulard silk in tones of faded violets achieves Fig. C, whose short waist line is covered by a soft girdle of plain violet silk. But with a violet, pale gray or pale brown silk the girdle could be of dim green, and if this and the little bodice pipings were of chiffon, there would be a gain in elegance. The chemisette and tight under-sleeves are of allover lace in a deep cream, and if elegant material is used for the gown, the separate guimpe which these form could be left off for an evening occasion.

Sage green pongee with soutache and embroideries in the same shade and a little vest of black satin, are displayed in Fig. D.

However, this smart design is also suitable for cloth, silk and the stouter veilings, and the cut adapts itself to both practical and smart street use. With any color or material, the little vest which overlies the tucked white guimpes should be of black satin as here, for while not quite as modish as formerly for entire gowns, black is still an emphasizing note of great distinction.

Finally, let me draw your attention to the tightness of all the sleeves. Make your new sleeves like them and your old sleeves over to look as nearly like them as possible, for upon the tightness of sleeves depends all the smartness of the present bodice.

Fashion's Latest Dictates

CREAM, white and biscuit will all be smart.

Everything points to the one-piece frock for the coming spring and summer.

Dainty hand-painted lace blouses are being worn with the dressy tailored suits.

Tulle is to be much worn for sashes and to veil and tone down an otherwise garish gown.

Overdresses of one sort or another are seen everywhere on the more elaborate gowns.

Gray is always correct for note paper. The monogram is placed on the left-hand corner.

Frilled frocks—not as frilly as of old, but still fluffily charming—have been seen on which little ruffles of lace and gauze trim both skirt and bodice.

Big, round Eton collars will probably hold their own all through the spring. They may be made of plain linen or decorated with squares of lace set in.

Many of the imported gowns are trimmed with silk-covered cord that is very effective and necessarily somewhat exclusive, since it cannot be bought in the shops.

Some effective cloth gowns, simple enough for walking costumes, yet smart enough for paying calls, are being made in close, but not tight-fitting robes.

Elegant gowns are seen with no trimming save large buttons made of semi-precious stones or clever counterfeits of them set in rims of gold and silver.

Foliage colorings abound and are exceedingly mellow. There is one purple which is a blatant shade, but there are many delicate editions for more conservative taste.

With the new evening gowns are worn jeweled stoles and girdles sparkling with stones of many colors and further brightened with threads of gold, silver, copper or aluminum.

Among the pongees is the mirage, highly practical for both day and evening wear. It sheds dust easily and the glossy sheen is particularly attractive at night under artificial light.

A fashionable collar of the moment has deeply cut revers narrowing to a point in front, where they are caught together by two buttons attached by a little chain of metal or cable satin.

Ornaments, tassels, balls and fringe, echoing crystal and bead effects, play a part in evening frock adornment, and draperies on the wing sleeve order, the points finished with tassels, often mitigate the severity of the line in close-fitting sleeves.

The large black straw hat with a thin brim that bends easily is trimmed with black taffeta ribbon and an immense white wing showing black tips or dashes of black over the wing. It is a serviceable hat and something that can be worn with a colored street frock.

One of the nobby veils for spring wear is an immense hemstitched square which will entirely cover the hat. There is an elastic arrangement made with ribbons and the like to hold the veil closely around the throat. When gracefully placed it is very artistic.—[Chicago News.

FIG. D—FOR SMART STREET WEAR.

Summer Shoes

OF what color and material are the shoes worn by fashion's feminine followers in the ensuing summer months to be? The prevailing craze among women for the rich-looking yet somber undressed kid footwear, in grays and blacks, seems as strong as ever. Yet surely the style of such slippers and shoes is not for the days of peek-a-boo waists and openwork stockings, for they have about them a heavy air that is distinctly of the cold period, says a writer in the New York Press. Besides, one can't imagine high button black shoes of undressed kid worn in combination with the light and billowy whites and pinks of the summer time. However, one sees an increasing number of tan slippers made from the unfinished skin of the kid, and it is probable these will solve the problem how to be artistically booted, though fashionable. Then, too, bootmakers predict a heavy demand for white shoes to be donned both at the seashore or on Broadway. Certainly the soft slipper of white undressed kid is charmingly attractive in conjunction with any costume almost, except deep black. Without making a deep investigation into the subject one may assert without danger of contradiction that white and tan will be the colors and undressed kid the material to cover the pedal extremities of the American girl this summer.

Vienna Meat Balls

TAKE a pound and a half of chopped meat, being careful to have all the fat removed. Place two Vienna rolls in a dish of water. When they are thoroughly moist the crusts will peel off easily.

Squeeze the insides as dry as possible, and place them in a bowl with two eggs, a grated onion, paprika and salt.

Mix well, add the meat, and again mix thoroughly. Form this meat mixture into two balls.

Slice a large onion and brown lightly in butter. Pour this into a pan which has a tightly fitting cover, and then place in the meat balls.

Cut two large tomatoes into quarters, place them round the meat, cover the kettle, and let it simmer gently for thirty minutes. If canned tomatoes are used, pour in sufficient to cover the bottom of the kettle to the depth of half an inch.

After thirty minutes, turn the meat carefully, so that the balls may not break. This is best done by slipping a saucer under them and lifting them on it. Let them simmer another thirty minutes, taking care to permit no hard boiling, or the meat will be tough.

Serve on a platter, garnished with the dressing of tomatoes and sliced onions.

FIG. C—POPULAR EMPIRE MODEL.

After Easter---The Flower Luncheon.

A SMART fad, nowadays, for the entertainment of one's women friends, is to give a flower luncheon in the week following Easter. The buds and blooms most typical of spring are chosen for table decorations, and the colors of these are carried out in other ornaments, and as much as possible in some dish served.

For instance, red tulips, especially those in the tints which hold yellow, are flanked by tomato and shrimp dishes, poached eggs with apricot, and a salad, perhaps, of blood oranges. If the flowers are white, the decorations may match the delicate green of leaves and toothsome tidbits made of white potatoes, mushrooms, celery, white ices or creams and angel cake.

Effects as ravishing as simple can be had with decorations and favors of wild flowers in little baskets. The purple wood-violets, which are in abundance in many districts at this time, blood-root, and hepatica are some of the sweetest flowers used.

Wild flowers are had for the plucking if one lives near their gentle homes and what could be more charming than to celebrate the return to life and joy with tables full of the darlings nature showers upon us!

A daffodil luncheon or one with yellow jonquils which grow in your village or country garden, is one of the most radiant which can be given. Where one can afford the extravagance, decorations for this begin with a table cover of yellow sateen in daffodil tint. The white table cover must have a lace border to show this under one, as well as a centerpiece lace-edged, with a yellow foundation of its own. If the table is of handsome mahogany, have it polished for the occasion, and place each guests' plate upon a round of lace or embroidery-trimmed linen over another of the yellow. These pretty linen pieces, as well as the centerpiece, which must match them, constitute cover enough for a handsome table.

Daffodils calling for a tall vase to show off the stems and slim leaves, which are almost the most beautiful part of them, have this of glass, that all the loveliness may be seen and Glit-edged china, with a pale green or yellow edge, or even plain white, is a suitable choice for the service.

After the plates are laid, fold the napkins in the form of cones, fill them with three or six daffodils tied in a bunch with a bit of green ribbon, and place a cone across each plate. The flowers in them are the favors for the guests, each of whom pins her bouquet on her corsage with a green-headed pin which is thrust into the napkin.

If artificial light is desired, candles should be in yellow crockery or brass stands, with the light softened with shades of yellow paper.

Four or six guests would be enough for a gay and yet intimate moment, and upon little cards, hand-painted with a stalk of daffodil, the names of each guest could be printed in pale green, with capital letters of yellow. All good stationers sell blank guest cards with very pretty flower decorations, so these could also be bought and the name written in ink. However, since the compliment lies in the arrangements being the hostess' handiwork, it is far more graceful to get up the cards oneself, even if a line border in the two colors, yellow and green, is the only degree of art possible. The name card, placed beside the plate, indicates where each guest is to sit.

A delicate and appetising menu for a daffodil luncheon could be as follows:

Parsley omelette or sweetbreads with green peas.
Tenderloin steak with mushrooms.
Orange salad.
Pound cake, floating island, black coffee and cream cheese.

Besides these fairly simple dishes, there could be various hors d'oeuvres, such as olives and salted almonds, and any vegetables liked, or a change of meat. Broiled chicken, squabs, or chops could take the place of the steak, and instead of the entrees here suggested a seasonable fish with a white sauce substituted.

But a word about my own menu.

Everybody who is able to give a smart luncheon must know that chicken broth, to be good, must be of a clear amber and without grease. She also knows that "floating island," which the French call oeufs a la neige (eggs with snow) is made of a broiled egg-custard poured over sponge cake, with the dish ornamented with billows made of the beaten whites of the egg. Since the orange salad is not common, I will describe its making.

The oranges must be of the light golden variety, and not the red sort which would do for a red tulip luncheon. Wash them acrefully, and after polishing the skins cut them in round, even slices, retaining the skin. Lay these in a glass bowl, sprinkling powdered sugar between every layer of slices; drench the whole at last with a good brand of Jamaica rum and add a squeeze or two of lemon juice if acid is liked. A dish made of grape fruit, the flesh of this pulled apart and set in a nest of tender green lettuce, would also be capital and refreshing for the salad course. Only olive oil should be used on this, as the fruit is spoiled by condiments.

"Wine?" somebody asks.

Well, at a woman's luncheon, except in the case of large and formal affairs, it is not thought good taste to serve wine. But a light punch of fruit and some delicate wine may pass muster, while what is known as a "fruit cup," a beverage made entirely of various fruits and cracked ice and water, would be the cheapest and best-bred beverage of all. PRUDENCE STANDISH.

In Sick Rooms

WHEN coal is needed to replenish the grate or stove in the room of a sick person it should be placed in paper bags and a bag laid gently on top of the fire, suggests a writer in the Philadelphia Public Ledger. This will prevent any noise and save the patient's nerves.

If a poker must be used it is well to have a stick of hard wood for that purpose, as it makes so much less racket.

Of course, creaking shoes, silk petticoats and starched clothes that rustle are tabooed.

Medicine should not be left in sight of the invalid, and food must never be left around the room. If a tray is supposed to be accessible for biscuits and a few simple things like that, it should be placed in an adjacent room or on a table outside the sickroom door.

A bed rest may not only be made out of a low-backed chair, but a wire fireguard well padded will answer very well.

Place the vase in the center of the tray

Spring Hats---Beautiful and Grotesque.

ALL of the spring hats are not beautiful. There are some which perch upon the head like grotesque birds; there are some which all but swallow heads entirely, like bread bowls over oranges, or candle snuffers over a farthing dip. Many there be among the wearers who have bought too soon and unwisely, and since illustration is the best lesson, those who have still to buy will profit by the mistake of others.

No one style can be exploited as the right thing. The right hat is worn by the right woman, and if she is young and handsome and otherwise well dressed, she will look as if she has been crowned by angels. Her hat will not seem a thing apart, but a part of her, a crown into which her well-coiffed head will go with comfort, a brim which half conceals and half reveals her loveliness.

Before trying on a hat arrange your hair as if for the most important function of your life. When trying it, remain seated, and see that a triple glass will show every side and curve of the structure. The entirely satisfactory hat is the one that is kindly to the nape of the neck, the ears and jaws, as well as to the full face.

Be inexorable with the things that fail in these artful ways, otherwise the first tired day, your accidental reflection in some street mirror will awake in you a murderous feeling for all millinery.

Hats which go charmingly with walking gowns, and in some elaborate cases equally well with empire costumes, are the mushroom shapes. These are trimmed smoothly and widely, generally with soft scarfs around the crown, or what stands for it, and with a side or front ornament in the shape of a great buckle, a tightly massed knot of owers or some eccentric cabochon of jet, straw or painted metal. One or two mushroom hats had for his saucer-big ornament—for they are enormous—a great painted button which was sewn on through a button eye.

Some of the most eccentric of the mushroom shapes, those with high crowns and limb brims which hang low over the face, are delightful on the right wearers. These sometimes, too, are most simply garnished, a fancy osprey springing from a big and novel cabochon, and three ornamental hat pins to match the cabochon, constituting the whole garniture.

The fruit crop is well represented by wide-brimmed hats. Cherries, apples, currants, gooseberries, pears and plums are all seen on the daring French millinery, and though the fancy may seem foolish, the fruit-trimmed headpiece is still very effective. Toques are very big, indeed clumsy, and the modish thing is for them to sit low down upon the head.

Some of the straw toques designed for shirt waist and other practical accompaniment, depend largely, too, on a fanciful weaving and massing of the straw for ornament. One very effective straw hat seen for shirt waist use had a puff crown dented in oddly here and there, and a down-dropping brim with a slight wave in the bottom line. This was trimmed with a crown band of black velvet, with a limp bow of the same hanging directly over each ear.

There is one very important requirement for brim hats. They must droop somewhere, even if it is not all around. Many pretty girls go by with "bowl" or mushroom hats, under which the passer gets only a glimpse of a bridge of a nose, a pretty mouth and a dimpled chin. Such headgear is full of mystery, but then—only the young and lovely may wear them. For those who have fallen from the tree of Youth, and are not yet old enough for bonnets, a medium-sized mushroom or a carefully chosen turban are the only things.

Upon the more splendid of the season's hats, such as would be worn with fine toilettes at smart summer resorts, or to gay hotel dinners in town, gold gauze is dazzling wisps, caught by great golden roses, may trim lace or drawn tulle shapes. Ostrich feathers of a long and precious sort are also numerous, as well as strange made plumes, cock feathers and flowers of all sorts.

White camelias or gardenias, used with their green foliage and closely packed, are handsome on turbans. With a knot of this sort, only a little bow or rosette of black velvet ribbon put at the other side of the hat would be necessary.

April Sunshine and Rain As Beautifiers

DEAR me, what a lot of letters, all telling very nearly the same thing—bad complexions! Telling of chemical bleaches and poisonous cosmetics, all vowing the writers have tried everything on earth, and yet not one hinting of sun-baths and rainwater!

Can a rose bud and bloom in a cellar? Can a lily, which is symbolical of the fairest complexion, find its pure white within a choking pot in a stuffy north parlor? May either one of them live long with only chemical baths, showers of dust and smears of grease? No, indeed!

So if you want things changed, as to your complexion you must begin with soft water and sunshine—straight, warm Southern sunshine at that. You must make arrangements for the unfailing supply of the rainwater barrel, and if that is impossible, you must buy rainwater of some city genius who has built up a trade through this necessity to beauty, or should be made to see the need of it through incessant demand. And after the rainwater is bought, if it stands long in the cask, it must invariably be filtered before a drop of it is put upon the face.

There is no balm on earth so healing, cleansing and beautifying as clean, fresh rainwater. There is no complexion on earth which can keep its bloom and beauty without life-giving and germ-killing sunshine.

For many skin diseases of a serious nature, physicians order the daily sunbath, this lasting for quite three hours, as a matter of course. If the day is chilly, the patient may sit behind a closed window in a well-aired room. If it is balmy, she must take her sunbath outdoors, taking care to turn first one cheek and then the other to the direct rays so that the healing may be uniform. Suppose you do freckle, tan, even peel a little. The skin that peels off will leave other cuticle fairer and more healthy; and are not freckles better than unsightly commedones, blackheads, moth patches—a skin so marred and ill, perhaps, that one is forever mortified?

Remember that the tuberculosis germ, which is the most insidious on earth, may even attack the skin. Lupus, a very dreadful skin disease, is traced to this germ, and what is the cure for tuberculosis? Sunshine, primarily—three hours of direct sunshine kills the most energetic tuberculosis germ outside of the human lung—good food and air. The best part of the skin's food must be taken through the stomach, and for the rest it must be well washed, aired and sunned.

To those who live in the country or in small towns, a supply of fresh rainwater is easily managed. Many a city roof, too, is so arranged that one pipe is short enough to permit a bucket standing under it.

An excellent cask for keeping the stale rainwater is made in this way:

Set the cask or barrel on end, take out its head and at a distance of about one-third from the bottom put in a false bottom pierced with holes. This shelf is then covered with a layer of clean, small pebbles, over which a quantity of charcoal made from wood or bones and fine sand should be laid to the depth of an inch, and this is then covered with another layer of clean pebbles. Over this filtering shelf another must be placed, pierced also with holes to prevent the water above rushing out too fast and disturbing the sand, charcoal and pebble bed below. At the bottom of the barrel a tap is placed to draw off the water as wanted, and except when taking on a new supply of its beautifying fluid, the rainwater barrel must be kept tightly closed.

When using the water upon the face or hands have it only a little over blood warm—never cold or boiling hot—and for cleansing purposes use a pure hygienic, tar or castile soap. Cheap soaps are most harmful to the skin. In fact, it is poor judgment that economizes on a face soap, for a tenth of the price spent on repairing the damage of a bad one will buy a soap guaranteed for purity.

Always cleanse the face at night and remember that going even one night without removing the day's plaster of rouge and powder—or even the dust that mere life entails—is to take ten away from the health of your complexion.

The best face-scrubber is a soft cloth of fine linen or the ends of old silk undervests. A hardy skin may stand a rubber flesh brush, but the sensitive one needs a tender touch, and for skins actually diseased a camel's hair brush is sometimes necessary. A sponge is ruin, for since not one in a million is properly cleaned, all are nests for germs. KATHERINE MORTON.

Larger Waists.

THE manikins who are employed by many West End dressmakers to display the new season's dresses are trying to bring their waist measurements up to a uniform twenty-four inches, which is the ideal waist of the present fashion, says the London Daily Mail. The eighteen or nineteen-inch waists which were once the rule in many West End show rooms and which necessitated excessive tight lacing for the girls employed are not only no longer required in the better class establishments, but their possessors are required to develop a waist measurement several inches larger. "Our stock waist is twenty-four inches, for it is impossible to show present-day gowns to advantage on a smaller waist," explained the manageress of one well-known establishment the other day. "Many people have developed unnatural waists in course of time, and when a girl has acquired one of these small waists a pad is placed inside her corsets to fill up the waist cavity. Tight lacing only obtains in old-fashioned show rooms which have not yet taken cognizance of the entire change in the character of dress."

Coat Novelty

THE most striking novelty of the season so far is the long sleeveless coat which is being made to wear with all visiting toilettes, says the Boston Transcript. These coats are most fascinating and practical; they slip on and off with perfect ease, and they give that air of gracious fullness to a clinging gown which it seems to need when worn outside a drawing-room. Necessarily the coat must tone absolutely with the gown, and should be of the same materials. One was in very fine peacock-blue silk, covered with mousseline de sole and panels of black silk-embroidered net. The coat was made of the same materials, with a very broad hem of black moire falling slightly full nearly to the feet. This hem had a beading of big jet beads placed at rather wide intervals—a noticeable little touch. The guimpe was in fine Malines lace with a tiny frill, and the three-quarter sleeves had a touch of the same lace round the lower part. Imagine this toilette worn with a big picture hat by a tall, graceful woman and the picture is one to inspire a poet or an artist to great deeds.

IF PERPLEXED IN MATTERS OF DRESS, BEAUTY OR ETIQUETTE, write to Miss Dean, Miss Morton or Miss Standish, care of the Courier-Journal, inclosing a self-addressed and stamped envelop, for reply. This is a quicker method than having your question answered in the columns of the paper. Besides, you receive a personal, intimate answer. Be careful to address your return envelope accurately. LAST WEEK OF LENTEN SEASON BAD FOR PLAYS

Gotham Sees Nary a New Production and Is Compelled To Regale Itself On a Circus and a Prizefighter Appearing In Vaudeville.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

NEW YORK, April 3.—No more is there a definite theatrical season in this town, setting in with autumn and winding up with spring, as there used to be. Instead of that, the new things on the stage here will be more singular throughout next summer and until the approach to winter brings a return of sedate legitimacy. There are two weeks in the year, though, in which the output of shows slow up to something like a standstill here. They are the weeks with Christmas and Good Friday in them. There is in all Broadway's lectro-lit two miles of twenty-eight theaters devoted to full-length plays not one that is new, and within the week after holy Friday there will be five.

We have the annual circus, though, with its rings increased to five, not to mention some Shakespearean rivalry which, if Edward H. Sothern and Robert Mantell were a Forrest and a Macready, and our people went foolish with actor worship as they did in the preceding century, might lead to a repetition of the Astor Place riots, in which partisans of the American tragedian and the English fought one another to the death. This is an era of common sense in amusements. Who cares which of Mantell or Sothern is the better actor. We give them all the appreciation they deserve, and in one night as much money as Forrest and Macready received in the whole week of their famously riotous performances.

On my way to see Sothern and Mantell in Shakespeare one evening after the other I saw a rabble of turbulent men and boys blocking Broadway in front of a vaudeville theater on which the name of James J. Jeffries was blazing above the assertion that he was "the undefeated champion prizefighter of the world." Further along another crowd closed the way of taxicabs and trolley cars. This one was black and white, brown and yellow, with negro mixture, for here the cause of excitement was the name of Jack Johnson in fire with the declaration that he, too, was "the undefeated champion prizefighter of the world." The Jeffries versus Johnson, white versus black, racial rancor may yield such a Forrest versus Macready riot as can't possibly be incited by the Sothern versus Mantell rivalry. Which is the right of two deductions? Were the Forrest-Macready partisans of a kind with those in the boisterous Jeffries-Johnson antagonism? Or may we believe that our people who care for Shakespearean acting have learned to observe it with decorous discrimination, while the belligerent rabble goes fighting mad over pugilists.

No Color Line For Johnson.

A fortnight ago I described the white Jeffries' debut as an actor. Should I draw a color line in dramatic art so as to exclude the black Johnson? I said no and went to see the fellow who is "a colored gentleman," as introduced in the sketch of "Hard Hits," but, in the opinion of a gallery enemy, "a no-good nigger bluff." Some of Jeffries' Caucasian following had come here to defy the African adherents to Johnson, for scorn hissed itself into the applause of adulation when the living statue of a Hercules in ebony bowed and grinned to his friends and his enemies. Like the white pugilist, the black one appears in a gymnasium scene and shows during fifteen minutes the various exercises taken by men in training for the ring, including a boxing bout of three rounds. He is a big and shapely figure of brawn, and women with the clothes of fashionable ladies were numerous among the spectators.

Have I let two prizefighters keep the Bard of Avon waiting? Not in Shakespeare, however, have Sothern and Mantell come out in competition; their Hamlet and Romeo have aged beyond interest, but they offer a freshness of comparison as Richelieu. Twenty-five years ago they were young and minor actors in the traveling companies of great tragedians of the time, and played small roles in Lord Lytton's pretentious comedy, watching the while their famous chiefs glorying in the title part. Both envied their leaders, no doubt, and now both become leaders in that piece. Mantell played the Cardinal before, but it is, excepting experiments in a few cities, a new undertaking for Sothern. Time was when the Lytton comedy was much used, but nowadays it seems to be going to extinction, and these simultaneous revivals offer a sufficient reason. Mantell and Sothern give good performances of the Cardinal, but neither has a company adequate to the demands of the associate roles. I do not for a moment doubt that each would like to surround himself with a suitable company, or has done his utmost to secure such, but the trend of latter-day drama is toward naturalism, and actors have schooled themselves in that manner. All of which is right, and on the whole for the best; but when young players are asked to voice the windy, bumptious periods of Bulwer Lytton they are at a loss how to do it. They suffer and he suffers. The flowery phrases lose their thrill when spoken with lifelike moderation, and the naturalistic speakers become absurd when they juggle with words from a poet of heroic mold of mind.

Two "Richelieu" Revivals.

It need not be imagined that either revival of "Richelieu" is dull. Mantell and Sothern give praiseworthy performances. They are rather similar. Neither ventures an innovation in the established reading. Each gives a sound, commendable, but not great rendering. Few actors of the period have as good voices as these men. Mantell uses his with a sometimes trying monotony, and Sothern errs in the matter of over-emphasizing inconsequential words or passages. Both bring solidity, breadth and volume to the composition of a fine, if excessive author. Northern admirers of Richelieu should be seen, and if you don't see both, it doesn't much matter which.

The man who doesn't take his children to the circus once a year, or if he has no offspring still children, doesn't take himself annually to see the athletes and acrobats for his own memory of childhood's sake, ought to be afraid that he is overtaken by senile decay. To enjoy it, too, he must not carp at the changes since he was a boy. An old fellow near me complained because three ringfuls of men and women on bareback horses confused his vision, instead of the single equestrienne who, with some pad riders, used to be the outfit of a one-ring tent; he seemed dazed when the air became alive with two or three dozen trapeze flyers, half of them comely women, in place of the one man or two of the olden times; he wasn't sure that the descent of a car that dashed down a declivity, turned two somersaults and struck with an awesome thud, was a satisfactory substitute for the springboard chaps who used to whirl over the back of an elephant and fall easily in a soft spot. When half a hundred pantomimic clowns who made comic commotion all around the rings and two platforms between acts, his barely tolerant smile was saddened by recollection of the single clown of the olden time, whose announcement of a concert in the ring after the regular entertainment, for the small sum of ten cents, I am sure he missed; and when all was over he grumbled because he had neither cracked peanuts nor drunk pink lemonade.

Not since fifteen years ago, when the Barnum company was outbid by the Forepaugh for the lease of Madison Square Garden, and pitched its tents in the Harlem district has a circus been under canvas in Manhattan borough. More recently, in the absence of the Barnum-Bailey concern in Europe, the Sells got under that broad roof. Barnum and Bailey died long ago. Bailey is dead, too. So are the four brothers Sells. The properties and celebrity attached to those names are now owned by the five brothers Ringling, who are calling their show the Barnum-Bailey and Sells-Forepaugh circuses, with two-thirds of the United States apportioned to them, while the other third, including New York, is exclusive to the Ringlings. Even in a crowded week this is the greatest show." What the fact is about that I can't inform you. Surely the one bearing the Ringlings' name, now having a spring possession of the Madison Square Garden, is as big as that has ever filled it with 10,000 seated people and three rings, two platforms and an encircling arena thronged by performers. The income during four to six weeks of twelve performances each, with three times of box chairs at $2.50, all the rest of the house at $1.50 and $1 and the prices dropping to a quarter only in the furthermost heights of the immense structure, must be enormous. You may see from this that the present circus business is one of the country's thriving trusts.

An Automobile Turning Turtle.

With all the ingenuity that must have been squeezed and wrung to force out an original thrill for this season's circus, nothing entirely original agitates the beholder. The Ringling final exhibition is a variant of the loop-looping gravity car, with a woman in it, that when it was a first sight made a Barnum-Bailey tour the most profitable ever. You may recall that a long track, inclining at an angle of forty-five degrees, made the descending car strike an upward section at the base and sent it kiting across an open space of thirty to forty feet. Later ones sent the car with tremendous momentum up, over and clear around a vertical loop. This year's descent is short, but very steep—about sixty-five to seventy degrees—so that the vehicle goes down with almost the velocity of a perpendicular drop, and when it strikes a sharply upward curve of the track at the bottom with tremendous force it is whirled twice around at a height of twenty feet, making a double somersault and landing with a ferocious shog on a padded surface.

Was there a woman in the car? Of course. And was she a frail, pretty young creature, who looked with scared eyes at the multitude, as she circled the garden in an automobile, as though she were a Christian martyr on her way to an arena of devouring lions? To be sure. Then she stepped lightly to the ground and was hoisted to a small platform at the top of the incline, where she smiled sadly as she seemed to wave a final fond adieu to life. For a fact, I don't believe there is a safer performance in the whole show. The mechanism has been calculated to a nicety, and even the weight of the woman is exactly right. Several years ago, a too heavy woman was hired as the looper, and she made them pay her $50 a week for the whole season although she didn't once take the ride. Probably this season's the La Roche who makes the descent in a car that flings itself into the air and turns two somersaults, has agreed to give up the job if she gains a few disqualifying pounds in flesh. She is so ethereal now that she couldn't easily upset the balances by losing any weight. Men put her into the car, strap her fast, pack four sets of pads, and during the two and a half seconds of the glide and the whirls the high sides of the enclosure render her invisible. She is elaborately protected. So much time is taken in the preparations, and so much ado is made over the "Are you ready?" and the "I am ready," followed by an interval of breathless silence—with the brazen band hushed—that I wonder if she hasn't been slipped away and isn't in the car at all. However, she is lifted out at the end of the trip, with not so much as her smile disturbed; and in making an exit round of the garden in the motor car, she proves herself an actress by shifting the expression of her pretty face to that of glad surprise at being still alive.

C'Dora "Flirts With Death."

The Hippodrome always whoops the circus section of its programme while the big all circus show is at the Madison Square Garden. This time, it opposes to La Roche a C'Dora, a handsome woman who "flirts with death." That is to say, she rides a horse around and around on the inner circle of a big globe, at first on its lower space, next higher on its sides, and finally straight up to and over the top, with herself and the machine top down and descending as the opposite side. As many as twenty times she makes these circuits at a speed so high that the centrifugal force keeps the wheels pressed hard against the steel-netted interior surface of the great ball. If this were the first of the feats similar in principle, it would excite the spectators madly. C'Dora's feat requires much skill, besides the passive nerve of La Roche, but both are too late to create a furore. I imagine, though, that the active C'Dora gets $500 a week to La Roche's $250.

I don't think, however, that any other salary for a conspicuous act in the Ringling show costs so little in pay for the performer. At one time five equestrians that can't vote, as far as I know, are ringing at another three troupes of trapeze daredevils look like as much or more in cash; and again the platforms as well as the rings are occupied by the best grades of acrobats numerously and very expensively. The circus is uncommonly attractive with its women in white costumes of the jauntiest possible styles. The girls of horseback and trapeze, of wire walking and acrobatic tumbling are costumed as never girls were before enough of the satins cut to make them look more coquettish than masculine.

The takingest, fetchingest, excitingest novelty is girly, too. I suppose that the Sampson who will be found in mid-air riding for a big motor car loaded with joy riders to pass over is a greater wonder, but the stunt of the Curzons, nattiest of graceful girls, is the headliner, topsawyer of the whole show. It is that in virtue of parlance means the big bluff brilliant. Really, though, all that is required of the Curzon girls is that they shall look pretty, as they easily do with what nature and art have done for them, and mind their stop talking—literally hold their jaws—for about five minutes. They take into their mouths each a hunk of something or other at the end of a wire dangling from a huge lamp shade, with two very bright an electric light in it that they are illumined from above much as Lole Fuller used to be from underneath in her "serpentine" dances. Thus suspended by their teeth, they are swiftly lifted to the utmost height of the garden, there to do stunts like Tenderloin showgirls transformed to gleeful angels floating friskily in Paradise.

Princess Rajah a Real Thrill.

Who said "serpentine?" I? Well, in Holy Week's dramatic stagnation that reminds me of the good old amiable snake that is made to enact a virtuous viper. I wrote to you about a Princes Rajah who, being transformed from a 10-cent museum in the Bowery to a $2 vaudeville theater in Broadway, had her stunt of oriental snake charming and cootchie dancing lifted to an ornate portrayal of Cleopatra and her suicidal asp. Such novelties are ephemeral here, and Rajah's sixth probably tapered in draught. Something booming needed to be done. The advertising agent did it. He told that the fat and fangless snake, who had represented the poisonous reptile, and kindly obliged the lady by darting his head at her lips (I guess they were smeared with something that snakes dote on) had suddenly gone wicked as though bent on biting Cleopatra in earnest.

In my vaudeville visit to Johnson, the negro prizefighter, I came again upon the Princess Rajah. Would this yellow African let the black African overshadow her? Not if she knew her business. As when I had seen here before, she let the snake almost touch her lips; but this time—oh, sure—the reptile struck his fangs into her tongue—what was the good of incredulity? She gave a low outcry of pain—would you doubt a lady?—and spat out a mouthful of red—well, blood, wasn't it? Why question the genuineness of a stunt that you have paid your good money to see. I say hurrah for Rajah. She gave me the only theatrical thrill of a week.

FRANKLIN FYLES.

LET ACTRESSES TAKE HEED.

When an actress turns inventress, let her hearken to the tale of Miss Willette Kershaw, the beautiful Jenny of Wilton Lackaye's company in "The Battle," before deciding finally upon a name that will at once describe the child of her gray matter and induce the public to invest. The said child, some time ago, Miss Kershaw invented an automobile tire that couldn't be punctured, would practically last forever, was practical in every way, still cost little more than the old-style trouble maker. A syndicate paid Miss Kershaw a large sum for the exclusive right to manufacture this new tire, promising in addition to a handsome royalty, to use the name Willette Kershaw Non-puncturable Tire for their finished product. "A splendid advertisement for me as an actress," thought Miss Kershaw. "The public will be interested in the invention of a stage favorite," thought the manufacturers. So a glowing account of all the virtues of the new tire was sent out to the New York newspapers. But strange to say, the editors surveyed this account with doubt and suspicion, and many published it in the facetious style of those who know they can't be gulled. The solution was easy. As the tire bore the name of an actress, it was positively a press agent's yarn, despite the syndicate, the application for Uncle Sam's patent, and all that. It is not until now, when the Willette Kershaw Non-puncturable Tire has survived some arduous tests, that the newspapers have begun to pay attention to it, though it is still the opinion of some eminent journalists that the manufacturers of "The Battle," are spending $100,000 or so, to get the name of one of their actresses into print.

Attractions At the Theaters This Week.

"A BROKEN IDOL," the B. C. Whitney production, which is announced as the attraction at Macauley's for four performances, starting Monday evening, is a real, genuine musical comedy offering that never fails to hit the bullseye of laughter. Whenever the chorus is on the stage there is a reason. In "A Broken Idol" the sponsors, Hal Stevens, Harry Williams and Egbert Van Alstyne, have supplied the book, score and music that has meaning. There is a clever plot, pretty lyrics and charming music, all of which combined go to make a concoction of mirthful, musical, farcical frivolity that sends the auditor to see the show again. In order to make a success out of a good musical comedy it is necessary to have, in addition to a well-written book and score, a cast to handle it, and Mr. Whitney is to be congratulated on having for his star and chief funmaker Joseph Lowry, untiring worker, Otis Harlan. He is a comedian who is really funny and without effort. As Doc Watt Mr. Harlan sends over the footlights his merry quips and tuneful jingles in a manner that becomes riotous before the final curtain. A cast of unusual excellence assists the star. Alice Yorke, Carrie Perkins, Margaret Robinson, Birdie Beaumont, George Richards, Otto Hoffman, Lawrence Comer, Charles Bowers and David Andrada make up a galaxy of musical artists seldom, if ever, equaled in any offering of its kind. Then, too, there is the scenic equipment. The first act showing the Chinese quarters of Los Angeles is gorgeous and at the same time realistic. The second act, the home of Silas Pugsley at Santa Monica, is perhaps the handsomest garden scene placed on the stage. The costuming is strictly in keeping with the requirements of the story, and many new and startling novelties are introduced throughout the play. Chief among these is a balloon ascension, which is in itself a gigantic undertaking.

DE WOLF HOPPER and a company of nearly 100 others will commence a half week's engagement at Macauley's Thursday night in an operatic fantasy entitled "The Pied Piper," book by Austin Strong and R. R. Burnside and music by Manuel Klein. The tale of the Pied Piper of Hamelin tells of how the rat charmer, having cleared the city of rats and not being able to collect his reward, charmed the children with the music of his pipes and decoyed them into a hole in the mountain and they were never heard of more. But here the story ends, and no one has so far been able to tell us what happened after. It has remained for De Wolf Hopper to tell us what which he will show in the fantastic production to be presented. The fact which has always been a mystery is that, entering the cave, the piper led the little ones up a spiral path to the top of the mountain, which was so high that no one was ever able to reach it until the flying machines were invented, and then it was discovered that the rat catcher had built a beautiful town and called it the "City of Innocence," Absent-minded, however, he had forgotten that the children would grow up, and so he built the houses just to fit them at the time. This was rather inconvenient in later years. However, the city was so good and beautiful that everybody got along happily. As this happened 200 years ago the town is very quaint and old-fashioned. The piper regulated the place very ably and every twenty years a day was appointed to marry the young folks, who, of course, were the same age. All of the couples mated and were instructed to have two children only, each couple a boy and a girl, and the piper mated them with admirable discretion. Three hundred years passed and no mistake had ever been made until on the St. Valentine's day next to be celebrated it was discovered that all of the young folk being paired off one girl was left over. The Pied Piper called the young girl's mother to account, who admitted that her last child was a twins. The trouble that this caused and the happy ending fills three hours of the most fantastic and delightful opera ever conceived. De Wolf Hopper will make you believe in fairies. The Shubert's have given the star a talented company of singers and comedians and an elaborate scenic equipment. A matinee will be given Saturday.

AN announcement that has been hailed with popular acclaim by theatergoers this season is the reappearance of Rosabel Morrison in Goethe's immortal and soul-lifting drama, "Faust," with which the name of her illustrious father, the late Lewis Morrison, was synonymous for a quarter of a century. It will be at the Masonic this week. Miss Morrison's interpretation of the role of Marguerite stands out vividly in the history of modern stage achievements, and the fact that the grand old dramatic poem has been revived under the Morrison auspices upon a scale of magnificence never before attempted will appeal to an army of theater patrons with whom the name "Faust" has long been a household word.

W. E. Gorman, whose successful pilotage of the tours of such celebrities as Madame Sarah Bernhardt, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Chevalier and Guilbert, and the great Herrmann, is the responsible manager for Miss Morrison, and this means that the stage accessories for this notable revival will be fully in accord with advance promises. Mr. Gorman has gone into the realms of the mystic, the musical and the highly spectacular for his aids to impressiveness, his association with Herrman giving him close acquaintance with that prince of illusionist's methods in his particular sphere. The famous Brocken scene is a combination of Herrmann's black art and the effects employed by Lewis Morrison. It will contain all the elements of mystery that made the late magician's act one of the greatest ever placed before the public. Mephisto, as heretofore, introduces Faust to the revels of the demons and sprites from the summit of the Brocken, but the delirium of color and action that is revealed to his dazzled senses is said to scale the heights of the spectacular. The scene is Hell as Dante describes it.

FELICE MORRIS and her company presenting "The Old, Old Story," a miniature comedy by Frances Wilson, will be given prominence on the new bill at the Mary Anderson, beginning with to-day's matinee. In view of the many notable successes that have been piled up by Miss Morris in her "legit" career, her appearance here, which, by the way, is practically her debut in vaudeville, is of more than passing importance. She is a daughter of the late Felix Morris, who was one of the most distinguished actors of his time, and she is said to possess to a marked degree the traits of histrionic talent that dominated her famous father's career. The sketch she will present here is unique in plot, in many humorous situations that develop an amusing climax, and she will be assisted by Charles C. Silk and Russell Bassett.

Hilarion and Rosalia Ceballos, with their company of "Phantastic Phantoms," will be seen in a spectacular and tuneful novelty, including a series of acrobatic dances, and the comedy portion of the bill will have another strong feature in Billy Gaston and Ethel Green's original absurdity, "Spooney-ville." The Italian trio, high-class operatic soloists from Naples, will offer a musical treat in classical numbers, including "Miserere," from Trovatore, and Di Capua's "Tarentella." "The Ultras," by Burns and Fulton, are standard selections. "Gen." Edward Lavine, "The Soldier Juggler," who is said to have about the funniest make-up of any man in vaudeville, will combine a series of difficult juggling with his irresistable comic business; the Mozarts will introduce their original sketch called "Heinie, the German Cobbler," which has many interesting features, notably their snow shoe dancing; Joe Smith, "The American Girl," in songs written especially for her; Vontello and Nino, premier gymnasts in artistic poses, and new motion pictures, entitled "The Magic Album" and "Inauguration of President Taft," will complete the bill.

* * *

"MALONEY, THE JUDGE," is the title of a laughable extravaganza in one act, which will be produced at the Buckingham Theater this week by Frank B. Carr's Thoroughbreds Company. There is a delightful blend of wholesome fun and captivating music, as well as popular song hits, which are ingeniously brought out during the rendition of the playlet. It is said the piece is entirely new and novel as well, and is most elaborately presented. A graceful bunch of chorus girls do some clever work in song numbers, incidental to the general theme of the skit. This show is particularly fortunate in having on its bill a number of so-called headliner whose acts, it is said, are of exceptional merit. There are Mlle. La Teska, "the Flexible Venus;" De Nette Sisters, billed as "The Gling r Girls;" Riley and Winters, "The Dancing Wonders;" Bond and Veola, singing comedians, and Henry and Francis, presenting a one-act farce entitled "His First Rehearsal."

* * *

COMMENCING with matinee this afternoon, the Avenue enters into the second week of vaudeville and motion pictures. The excellence of the bill on opening week has fully come up to the promises of the management that the Avenue would furnished the biggest show for the least price. For this week (Easter) Manager Shriner offers a bill that he thinks is more attractive than last week, which includes such well-known artists as Christy, Bowen and Christy, in a clever singing, dancing and talking act; "Whistling Billy Sheets," whose imitations of birds and animals are very amusing; Wilbur and Ami, who will furnish the novel part of the entertainment and present an act that is expected to furnish quite a surprise, and "the Four Venetian Street Singers and Musicians" will round out the vaudeville part of the show. The motion pictures will be entirely new, and consist of the latest films. There will also be a change of illustrated song.

THE big musical event of the season is the Emma Eames song recital at the Woman's Club, Wednesday night. Not since the days of that famous diva, Patti, has there been such general interest manifested as there is in this concert. Notwithstanding the limited seating capacity of the Woman's Club the Musical Art Society, under whose auspices this recital takes place has made prices less than Eames receives in other cities. The following beautiful programme will be given:

OBSCURE PLAYWRIGHTS COME INTO THEIR OWN

Two English Societies Formed To Produce Work of Unacted Dramatists---American Humor Too Swift For British Grey Matter --London Gossip.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

LONDON, March 31.—Serious efforts are being made in England to give unacted playwrights a chance.

Two organizations have recently been started for this purpose; both ambitious, and both destined to exercise an influence on dramatic writing. The first venture in the Afternoon Theater. In speaking to one of the founders of this novel institution recently, an explanation was made of how this idea grew into actuality.

"In England," he said, "managers are averse to taking up anything new. They know that old plays have made money, and that men with established names draw good box-office receipts. Consequently, rather than adopt a new piece—however well it may be written—they get someone to rewrite the Bible, or Homer, and it draws big crowds. I am not saying a word against the playwrights, mind you," he added, apologetically, "but against this system which condemns to oblivion much good work.

"Our idea in starting the Afternoon Theater scheme was not only to give authors a chance to get their work produced, but to get a lot of managers together who could consider these plays as actually staged, and save themselves the trouble of reading manuscripts. I will let you into a little secret in this connection," continued my informant. "There are hundreds of really fine plays pigeonholed in the offices of various managers who are afraid to produce them. Most of these are written by obscure authors. Under our scheme, managers can bring these plays out into the light of day and have them acted before audiences. We present a double advantage; we show the plays to the managers and the public at the same time, if a play takes well and makes a hit with both public and management, there is every chance of its being regularly produced. Beerbohm Tree has been most enthusiastic over this venture, and has put at the disposal of our association His Majesty's Theater at practically nominal rept. It gives Tree the opportunity of seeing the plays, and even making an offer on them before they are produced, if he thinks well of them. Naturally, the plays produced in this way are not permitted to have any kind of a run; as that is not what we are in for. We might be called a sort of theatrical chef who tastes plays for the public. We hope in time to make the Afternoon Theater a national institution."

Along the Same Lines.

Another organization of a similar character is the Society of Unacted Dramatic Authors, which, after its first general meeting recently, rechristened itself the Playwrights' Association. Curiously enough, this association is enthusiastically supported by women playwrights who are anxious to get their work before the public. The scheme is on somewhat more philanthropic lines than the Afternoon Theater, and is not quite so ambitious. While it will aid the production of the works of the obscure and struggling playwright, it does not hold forth in a big theater like His Majesty's. At the same time, it serves a most useful purpose and fills, so to speak, the proverbial long-felt want. Prominent in the association are: Cyril Maude, C. Aubrey Smith and Allan Aynesworth, who have volunteered to act as readers of unacted plays. With such practical men to pass judgment on manuscripts, not only will a vast amount of unproducable work be eliminated from the field forever, but undoubtedly gems will be discovered in the heaps of rubbish that will well repay the labor spent on looking for them. Members of this association are entitled to send in three plays each, and the most suitable of the whole lot will be strongly recommended to managers. Someone has suggested that there should be a combination between the Afternoon Theater and the Playwrights' Association, the former to produce the plays discovered by the latter.

Under all the circumstances it looks as if the unknown aspirant to dramatic fame were to have a chance in England at last. He has waited a long time, and ought to have it.

* * *

Projected American Invasion.

A. L. Erlanger, of the Klaw and Erlanger combination, excited considerable interest in London recently during his flying visit for the purpose of making arrangements for introducing "Little Nemo" to British audiences. In England, especially during the holidays and for three months after, there is a great run on what are called pantomimes—very old-fashioned productions which are supposed to have come to England with William the Conqueror's crowd of merry filibusters. The success of pantomimes has recently been outstripped by J. M. Barrie's "Peter Pan," for the reason that the latter is entirely for children, whereas pantomime will introduce the American Peter Pan—"Little Nemo"—into England, and at the same time take back with him to the United States the British pantomime, Dick Whittington, which has been running at the Drury Lane. The introduction of "Little Nemo" will not, however, be the only form of the coming American dramatic invasion of England. On the first of May Zeigfeld sets to ask the British public to sit up and listen to "Miss Innocence," which will be produced by his wife, Anna Held, and a company composed entirely of Americans. This play will be followed by the "Follies of 1909."

England certainly seems ripe for a systematic invasion by American musical comedy. Various American artistes have for years been extremely popular with the music-hall audiences of the big English towns. Everywhere you go you see American "turns," which are usually the best things on the programme. Up to this time, no concerted effort has been made to capture the music-hall public by a wholly American show.

* * *

Like Our Vaudeville Acts.

The English have had their tastes cultivated, however, by the numerous single stars who have risen in the musical firmament. The display of an entire constellation will, therefore, be heralded with applause; and it is to be hoped that the box office will justify the venture. American humor is too much consumption has to be toned down somewhat. I had a little chat recently with one of the managers of the Palace music hall—perhaps the most select institution of its kind in Europe. Palace audiences are composed of the intellectually elite of the theater-going English world.

"Even for our audiences," said the Palace manager, "American humor is often too swift. We had a man here recently who was really a genius. He could keep audiences roaring with American by his keen flow of brilliant jokes. But in London he was more or less of a failure. He rushed along like an aeroplane, and would spring one 'gag' after another without giving the first bunch time to sink in. The consequence was that somewhat painful. The audience did not respond; many of them appeared bored; and we had to drop him. I won't mention his name, as I still consider him one of the best men in his business. Anyhow, when he comes to London from America will have to come down to a sort of English tone; otherwise it will not succeed. Jokes must not have too fine an edge on them for our people. The Britisher likes a leisurely ease and wants his humor of a more unpun and less most verging on the farcical. Jokes for English consumption have to be labeled."

BERNARD AS STRANGE KING.

Sam Bernard has declined all the tempting vaudeville offers made him since the conclusion of his season in "Nearer the Hero," and the Messrs. Shubert announce that he has renewed his contract with them and will continue under their management for several seasons to come. Mr. Bernard says that the Shubert management is the most satisfactory direction under which he has ever played and that it is a great pleasure for him to know that he is to continue under these entirely agreeable and appealing auspices. The Messrs. Shubert announce that Mr. Bernard's vehicle for next season will be "The King of Caledonia," a musical comedy which has been playing uninterruptedly for more than a year and a half at the Prince of Wales Theater, London.

WHAT IS A GREAT PLAY?

The most mooted question in theatricals is "What Is a Great Play?" This question has been asked of managers and critics and actors for a thousand and different answers have been given to the query. The consensus of opinion is that the great play is the play that appeals to all classes of theater-goers, that fills the gallery, balcony and the orchestra seats. It is the play that finds favor among the rich as well as the poor. It is the play that voices the sentiment of both men and women, and tells a story that is of interest to people in every walk of life. Even though a play may be faulty in its construction and perfect in its technique, with the advantage of being presented by actors of reputation and experience, and plays to empty benches, it cannot be a great play, for it lacks that something which makes its presentation remunerative. It is well to speak of art in the theater, but still art cannot be preserved if the box office is not kept busy.

USE FORCE TO EXPEL CASTRO

Carried by Police and Placed On Steamer.

Venezuelan Humiliated by the French Government.

Sails From Martinique For St. Nazaire, France.

MEDICAL EXAMINATION MADE.

Fort de France, April 10.—Cipriano Castro, former President of Venezuela, was ignominously expelled to-night from the Island of Martinique by the French Government. He protested to the last against his expulsion, but his protests were in vain. He is now on board the French line steamship Versailles bound for St. Nazaire.

Official notice was served on Castro this morning of the decision of the French Government that he must leave the Island within nine hours from the receipt of such notice and that the commissary of police at Fort de France had been charged with the execution of the order.

The former President was furiously indignant and strove throughout the day to find some excuse that would be satisfactory to the Colonial Government whereby he would not be compelled to obey the order and to this end late to-day he summoned a lawyer and physician to verify that he was unable to leave the country.

* * *

Police Go To Remove Him.

The Governor of Martinique and the public prosecutor, however, refused an extension of time and about 5 o'clock the commissary of police, accompanied by a large force of gendarmes proceeded to the hotel where Castro was staying to remove him, forcibly if necessary, to the steamer.

The affair created a great sensation, and long before the police made their appearance at the hotel crowds had gathered which later were joined by the Consuls representing the various foreign powers, who showed great interest in the expulsion of what one of them termed "the common enemy of peace."

Castro, who during his few days at Fort de France, has had very little communication with anybody, locked himself in his room in company with his brother, Carmello, and his secretary and for a time refused to reply to the summons of the police official.

* * *

Officers Find Door Locked.

The police hesitated to break in the door and finally decided to submit the matter again to Gov. Foureau, but the Governor absolutely refused to permit any delay and he ordered that Castro be removed by force of arms. He also gave orders that the Versailles remain in port until Castro could be put aboard.

It became necessary for the police and gendarmes to take rigid measures to hold in the check the crowds that had by this time become riotous outside the hotel.

The former President railed against the French Government and the local authorities, denouncing them for forcing upon him the alternative of deportation or imprisonment for six months. He declared he would not budge and that it would be necessary to take him on board the steamer on a stretcher. This the Commissary of Police, who finally entered Castro's room with an escort of gendarmes, prepared to do, but Castro's lawyer took steps to find the Chief Justice, and at the very last moment the Governor and Public Prosecutor decided to have another medical examination made.

* * *

Medical Examination Made.

Accordingly a medical commission, composed of Drs. Bouvier, Costet and Barbe, proceeded with the examination in order to establish definitely if Castro's health was such that he could make the voyage. The consultation of the physicians continued for more than half an hour, and they agreed that the life of the ex-President would not be jeopardized by his removal to the steamer and the return voyage across the ocean.

Prof. Ricci, however, who was a passenger with Castro on the Guadeloupe on the trip from Bordeaux to this port, was the original authority for the statement that during the voyage the wound, resulting from the operation on Castro in Germany, had shown signs of suppuration, but the final examination of the physicians this evening seemed to indicate that the former President is in quite as healthy condition as when he left France on March 26 last.

* * *

Taken Out By Force.

At 8:30 o'clock a force of gendarmes went to Castro's room and he was placed on a mattress. He refused to put on his clothes, and was carried on a stretcher to the steamer, a distance of more than a mile. A thousand or more of the population had assembled by this time and a great deal of sympathy was expressed for the former President. The latter complained of great suffering, and every movement of the stretcher seemed to give him further pain. He has prepared a protest, which will be sent to the French Government to-morrow.

The Versailles left here at 9 o'clock and measures have been taken to keep a careful watch on Castro during the voyage.

The colonial Government intends to put down any sympathetic demonstration that may be made on shore. Castro's brother will remain here for the present, but it is thought he will join Senora Castro at La Guaira if he is permitted to land at that port.

The United States cruiser North Carolina arrived here this afternoon and is still in the roadstead.

* * *

The Official Notice.

The notice served on Castro is couched in official language and written on the official letterhead of the colonial Government and says:

"Pursuant to the organic laws of February 9, 1827, and August 22, 1833.

"Pursuant to Articles 17 and 18 of the law of December 3, 1849.

"Pursuant to a ministerial cablegram, No. 40, dated April 8, 1909, it is ordered:

"First—That Cypriano Castro, former President of the Republic of Venezuela, leave the Island of Martinique within nine hours from the time this notification is served upon him; and,

"Second—The Commissary of Police at Fort de France is charged with the execution of the present order, which is to be published wherever the circumstances make necessary. FOUREAU.

"Fort de France, April 8, 1909."

The governments of the United States, Great Britain and France recently united to take concerted action against Castro, who had declared his intention of returning to Venezuela with designs upon the presidency.

Castro left Venezuela in November of last year. He appointed Juan Vicento Gomez, the first Vice President, to take his place as President. Within a month after the departure of Castro the Venezuelan was overturned, Gomez becoming the new President. Charges were made against Castro and he was indicted. He announced that he would return to Venezuela, but the Venezuelan government denied him the right to land. Eventually, however, it withdrew this prohibition, according him permission to land, but at his own peril.

Castro left Bordeaux March 23 on the steamer Guadeloupe. His intention was to take up a temporary residence at Trinidad, but the British government refused to permit him to land at Port of Spain, and he was forced to leave the ship at Fort de France.

It is suggested the United States Government communicated with the French authorities relative to the deportation of the former President, and France in response issued an order to the colonial authorities that Castro be put aboard the first steamer returning to France.

* * *

Castro In Bad Box.

The position of Castro is greatly complicated by his expulsion from Martinique. Had he been permitted to remain there he might have made his way to some other region not far from Venezuela, where he could put his plans for a movement against the present government into execution. He could have reached any of the Central American republics of the Danish West Indies, Hayti or Santo Domingo, but his deportation to France will put him in the predicament of a "cast-adrift" among the European countries.

Castro's wife, after the landing of the former President at Fort de France, proceeded to La Guaira, where it is said she will look after her husband's business interests.

VENEZUELA READY

Will Arrest Castro If He Ever Lands On His Native Soil.

Washington, April 10.—It developed today that the intention of the Venezuelan Government ever since it was evident that former President Castro left Europe for South America, was to arrest him on the indictments pending against him if he ever set foot on Venezuelan soil.

The officials there assert their belief that they are in a position to handle the situation adequately, and that there need be no fear of an uprising by Castro's followers if Castro should succeed in landing in Venezuela. What they have been anxious to have done is to keep him off the islands in the vicinity that might be made the basis of a military movement against the country.

Maine At St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., April 10.—The battleship Maine came into port to-day. She will remain about five days to give the crew shore liberty.

Knox Protests.

Copenhagen, April 10.—The United States has approached Denmark in the matter of permitting Cypriano Castro to remain on the Danish West India island of St. Thomas in case he should proceed there from Martinique. A definite answer is expected to-morrow.

LEVITCH AND OTHERS ARRAIGNED IN COURT

THREE HELD OVER TO GRAND JURY, WHILE CASE AGAINST ORTNER GOES OVER.

I. Levitch, Charles Levitch, H. H. Hyman and E. H. Ortner, charged with using the United States mails for fraudulent purposes in connection with a scheme to defraud Eastern creditors, were arraigned before Henry F. Cassin, United States Commissioner, yesterday morning. The cases grew out of the suit to throw I. Levitch & Son into bankruptcy filed by creditors last December. In the investigation before Robert G. Kinkead, referee in bankruptcy, H. Hyman, who was arrested in Indianapolis, testified that all were in a scheme to pull off a big swindle, but were foiled in the attempt about the time that the indebtedness reached the $15,000 mark.

I. Levitch and H. Hyman waived their examining trial and were held to the grand jury in the sum of $1,000 by Commissioner Cassin. Levitch executed bond and Hyman was remanded to jail in default of bond. Charles Levitch entered a plea of not guilty and his case was tried. He was held to the grand jury in the sum of $500 and was released on bond. The case against E. H. Ortner was continued to April 26. It developed in the trial of Levitch that warrants had been issued for Reuben Gross, of Louisville, who has not been arrested, and for Charles and Dave Halpin, of Philadelphia, who have not been arrested so far.

Hyman was the only witness placed on the stand yesterday, and his testimony was a rehash of what he had testified to before the referee in bankruptcy. He created a little sensation when he said that his real name was not Hyman. Attorney W. M. Smith, for E. H. Ortner, insisted on Hyman divulging his real name, but Hyman said that he would not tell his name for fear that it would further incriminate him. The attorney said he did not think it was right for Hyman to attempt to convict other persons when he would not give his name. Commissioner Cassin said he could not punish Hyman for contempt for the reason that he was already a prisoner.

NEW WHEAT RECORD MADE IN NEW YORK

FEAR OF SHORT CROP ADVANCES JULY AND SEPTEMBER DELIVERIES.

New York, April 10.—Excited over predictions that the next crop will be a short one, the public came into the grain market to-day as a big buyer of July and September wheat, advancing those deliveries near four cents a bushel, to new high records. May also made a new record here, selling at $1.31¾.

The fact that weekly world shipments were below European requirements and that Illinois and Indiana sent in some very bullish crop news added to the buying movement and last prices were highest for the day, July clearing at $1.22½ and September $1.15⅝.

The police have endeavored to find the woman but have failed.

NEGRO BOY IS STILL HANGING

Victim of Lynch Law Suspended Since Friday.

Colored Coroner Was Not "Officially" Notified.

Says He Will Cut the Remains Down To-day.

CHRISTIAN COUNTY THE SCENE

Hopkinsville, Ky., April 10.—[Special.]—Still swinging from a branch of a dogwood tree, two miles from Lafayette, in southwest Christian, is the dead body of Bennie Brame, the eighteen-year-old negro, who was lynched by a large mob of farmers Friday for his attack on Misses Ruth and Sallie May Gee, young daughters of William H. Gee, a prominent Trigg county planter.

* * *

Not Officially Called.

James L. Allensworth, the negro Coroner of Christian county, said to-day that he had not gone to the scene of the lynching because his attention had not "officially" been called to the affair. This afternoon he stated he would not cut the body down until Sunday, as he would not be able to secure a coffin and arrange for a burial until that time.

* * *

Hanging Since Friday Afternoon.

The body has been hanging since one o'clock Friday afternoon, a gruesome attraction to hundreds of the morbidly curious and a stern warning to negro criminals of the Flat Lick region. Further information of Brame's crime shows that Thursday morning he came on the Gee sisters on their farm as they were gathering bushes with which to sweep the yard.

* * *

Terrified Gee Girls.

Telling them he had a pistol and threatening to shoot them if they cried out, he made an attempted assault on Miss Ruth. The girls were terrified, and Miss Sallie May screamed. Brame brutally seized her and began choking her throat. The elder girl bravely struck at him with a light ax she was carrying and the negro released his grasp and the girls ran. He threw the ax at them and the handle struck one of them on the hip, but did not injure her. He then threw a rock at them.

* * *

Screams Bring Mother.

Their screams brought their mother to their aid, and the negro made off into the woods. Posses were quickly organized, the negro was captured and taken before the Gee sisters for indentification. Leaving the Gee home, the posse having the negro in charge went three miles into what is known as the Flat Lick section, a rather sparsely settled and thickly timbered region. Some distance from the main road, the negro was placed on a horse, a rope tied around his neck and one end attached to a branch of a dogwood tree. The horse was led from under him, and he was strangled to death. The mob quietly dispersed.

* * *

Place of Lynching.

The place where the hanging occurred is within a short distance of the Christian and Trigg county line, but on the Christian county side. No shots were fired into the body. The negro's crime was committed in this county, the Gee farm being partly in Trigg and partly in Christian.

* * *

Another Negro Suspected.

A negro was captured in Trigg county Thursday who was supposed from his actions to be Brame. The negro is said to be demented, and he went to a farm house and ordered that dinner be given him. The woman of the house supplied the meal, but watched her chance and reported the negro's presence and his action to one of the posses. He was taken by them to the Gee home, but as soon as they saw him the young girls declared he was not the one who had attempted the assault.

* * *

Bloodhounds Put On Trail.

The bloodhounds from this city were used in the chase of a negro supposed to have been Brame Thursday night. This negro was seen lurking about Herndon and in response to a telephone message policemen Denton and Merritt took the dogs to the spot. They readily took the trail and followed it, but the negro proved not to be Brame.

WHITE MAN'S SKULL IN A POOL OF BLOOD

FOUND AFTER RAID ON NEGRO CABIN WHERE OWNER WAS SLAIN.

Shellman, Ga., April 10.—The finding of a portion of a white man's skull in a pool of blood in a negro cabin here today and of the body of the negro owner of the cabin, Alfred Iverson, behind his bed, has completely mystified the local police officials. After investigation they learned that a posse, said to be headed by four white men, entered Iverson's cabin last night and shot him. The only theory developed by the police as to the evidence of a white man's death is that Iverson defended his cabin against the posse and shot one of the attacking party, whose body was afterward carried away by his companions and concealed.

According to the story of Iverson's wife, the posse consisted of four men, who went to the cabin about midnight to whip her husband because he had quit work. She said Iverson refused to open the door and that a fight ensued. After the fight was over she says the men carried a body away. A single-barrel shotgun with a discharged cartridge in it was found beside the negro's body.

SEEK CHANGE IN NAME OF COLORED HIGH SCHOOL.

There is a movement on foot among the colored people to ask the Louisville School Board to change the name of the Central Colored High School to that of the John M. Maxwell High School. The late John M. Maxwell was principal of the High School, Ninth and Magazine streets, for nearly twenty-five years, and those interested in the movement are anxious for the change in name in memory of his faithfulness.

SIX PERSONS ARE INJURED

When Car Leaves Track At Fourth and O.

Miss Sadie Meyer May Not Recover.

Lying Unconscious In Local Infirmary.

ACCIDENT A PECULIAR ONE.

Six persons were injured severely, many passengers were badly shaken up and traffic was delayed for three-quarters of an hour on the Fourth-avenue car line late yesterday afternoon, when park car No. 1081, southbound, in charge of Ed Williams, motorman, and H. Trent, conductor, jumped a defective switch at Fourth avenue and O street and left the track. Going at full speed, the car neared the intersection of Fourth avenue and O street. At that point there is a switch on which all of the Fourth-avenue cars not bound for the park turn to the right, down O street, and make the loop for the return trip. The front trucks of car No. 1081 took the switch without trouble, but the rear trucks took the tongue, which directed them to the right. When the "split" occurred the momentum of the car served to throw it off the track and at right angles to the right-of-way. The impact was so violent that two patrolmen, Pat O'Hearn and Frank Zell, and the conductor of the car, were hurled from the back platform into the street.

Hurled Several Feet.

Miss Sadie Meyer and her brothers, John Meyer and Herbert Meyer, 11 years and 4 years respectively, the children of Charles Meyer, were standing near the northwest corner waiting to cross the street as the car neared them. When the back part of the car swung around they were unable to get out of the way and were struck with great force and thrown many feet. Horrified passersby who witnessed the accident rushed to their assistance, expecting to find them dead. The three were carried into the residence of Dr. W. H. Coleman, at 3309 Fourth avenue, where medical attention was given. The boys were hurt about the body and legs, but were not unconscious. It was necessary to carry the young woman on a stretcher. She was unconscious.

Mrs. Anna Morrison, accompanied by two children, one an infant, was a passenger on the car. She was thrown with great force against a seat and received injuries to her back, besides abdominal bruises and a severe nervous shock. The Morrisons were taken to Dr. Coleman's home.

As quickly as possible Miss Meyer was examined and it was found that she had sustained concussion of the brain. Her brothers were taken to their home in the Sheffner Addition.

For more than an hour Dr. Coleman worked with Miss Meyer, but at 6:30 o'clock she was still unconscious, and was then removed to Sts. Mary and Elizabeth Hospital. Throughout the night she was in a state of coma, and the members of her family were summoned to her bedside.

* * *

Injuries Serious.

When Mrs. Morrison was first examined it was thought that she suffered from the shock only, but at 9 o'clock when she started to her home at Woodland, in Southern Heights, she was unable to walk and it was necessary to call a cab. Last night the attending physician stated that she was in a serious condition. Neither of her children were hurt.

The accident attracted a large crowd, and Patrolmen O'Hearn and Zell worked to keep the crowd back until traffic was resumed. Before going on to his post, Zell complained of his back to Dr. Coleman. Nothing was thought of the complaint then, and later the policeman became violently ill. An examination followed, and it showed that he suffered from internal injuries and a badly sprained back. O'Hearn's back was wrenched, and both men were removed to their homes.

Mrs. W. H. Coleman, wife of Dr. Coleman, with her infant child and the colored nurse, had a narrow escape from injury. They were standing near the northeast corner waiting for the car to pass that they might cross the street and get into Dr. Coleman's automobile. As the car left the track an unknown man saw the danger, and, shouting to the women to "look out," caught Mrs. Coleman by the arm and jerked her from the path of the car.

For nearly an hour yesterday traffic was blocked, and there was a row of cars half a mile long filled with impatient shoppers.

REPORT OF REVOLUTION IN COLOMBIA DENIED.

New York, April 10.—Gen. Carlos M. Sarria, the Colombian Consul General at New York, has received cable advices from Bogota denying the reports of a revolutionary outbreak, headed by Gen. Iguaran against the administration of President Reyes, of Colombia, in the vicinity of Rio Hacha, a seaport on the Carribean.

PROBABLY BIGGEST LAW FEE ON RECORD

WIDOW OF "LUCKY" BALDWIN TO GIVE $600,000.

SECRET SETTLEMENT OF CLAIM AGAINST ESTATE.

THE PLAINTIFF IS SATISFIED.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 10.—[Special.]—The largest law fee ever paid on this coast, if not in the world, considering the brief time required for the service rendered, goes to the attorneys for Mrs. Lily Bennett Baldwin for forcing a settlement of "Lucky's" will. It is approximately $600,000, and will be paid out of the estate to former Gov. Henry T. Gage and Walter J. Trask, of this city, and Garrett McEnerney, of San Francisco. The former is to receive $300,000, Trask $100,000 and McEnerney the remainder.

This fee plays a rather unique role in that, beside compensating the attorneys for work already done, it is also in the nature of a retainer. Hereafter Mrs. Baldwin's attorneys will defend the estate against all claims.

Mrs. Baldwin will receive $1,400,000 for herself, a far greater amount than has ever been admitted, and she is apparently well satisfied both with this and the heavy fee her attorneys receive, as her main demands were practically met in secret agreement.

MOTHER AND SON DIE FROM BURNS

MRS. WILLIS JARVIS AND CHILD SUCCUMB TO INJURIES AT OLIVE HILL.

Olive Hill, Ky., April 10.—[Special.]—Mrs. Willis Jarvis and her young son are both dead from burns received yesterday afternoon. The child's clothing caught from a grate and as the mother frantically tried to save her little one her clothing also caught fire.

The father was away at work at the time. Neighbors hearing screams hurried to the house, but too late to save them.

Mrs. Deneen Very Ill.

Springfield, Ill., April 10.—Mrs. Deneen, wife of Gov. Deneen, is seriously ill at the Executive Mansion. The nature of her illness has not been determined.

WITH THE MOVING PICTURE SHOWS

Hopkins' Theater.

Manager Dustin feels certain that the headline picture at the Hopkins to-day will prove an auspicious Eastertide offering. It is "The Settlement Workers," which tells a story of a man's regeneration brought about by the indefatigable efforts of the church. Few productions, it is said, can equal this forceful subject in point of character studies, environment and detail.

Another subject, "Benares," interestingly relates the life and customs prevailing in the historic country of India. The River Ganges, the old palace ruins and other educational features about the Orient are wonderfully presented. "Uncle's Palm Tree" is said to be a very humorous subject. A favorite nephew is surprised by the "old man" by a short visit, bringing along a nice looking tree as a gift. It proves to be an artificial one, much to the disgust of the young man, but not so with uncle who appreciated his own joke. "Cotton Industry in the South" contains a series of views of a rich country where "King Cotton" holds his court.

Harry Browne's illustrated song will be "Let's Go Back to Baby Days." The views are said to be beautiful and present a harmonious adjunct to the song.

* * *

At the Majestic.

A special Easter programme of rare merit will be offered to-day at the Majestic. Probably one of the most interesting pictures included in the long list of high-class subjects will be "Napoleon, the Man of Destiny." This will be the second series of Napoleon pictures shown at the Majestic. The first pleased hundreds of people the latter part of the week just closed.

The comedies to-day in the Majestic programme will be tpicklers of the ha ha sort. They'll make one laugh and keep on laughing. And then, too, there will be many powerful dramatic pictures accompanied by lectures. There will be special Easter music and new songs, and those hunting for pleasure to-day will surely find a splendid variety at the Majestic, the theater beautiful.

* * *

At the Princess.

"The Shrine of a Broken Heart" is the picturesque title of a beautiful art subject which will head an extensive bill at the Princess Theater for the current half-week offering. The little drama is one which sets a high standard for entertainments of this character and the romance is developed with a pathos and appeal seldom achieved in a picture play. The story is one strongly suggestive in theme of Du Maurier's famous romance, "Trilby," the tale dealing with the idealistic love of a well-born young artist and a beautiful model of the Parisian studios. The youth's family, upon learning of his devotion, appeal to the girl's generosity to save him from an alliance which they consider would blight his future and her method of disillusioning her lover is productive of a scene as strong and dramatic as the supper scene in "David Garrick." Both in the picture play and the noted stage production the unfortunate victims pretend an abandon that fills a fond heart with despair.

In addition to this notable offering the Princess will have five other splendid features, varied by the latest song hits and pleasing musical interpolations.

Casino Theater.

"Brother Against Brother" is the title of a picture play which will be the leading feature of the Casino programme for the half week commencing with to-day. The offering is imbued with sufficient war element to lend crisp action, thrilling climaxes and colorful surroundings to a story of remarkable originality of development. The scenes which open and close the production are laid in Hopkinsville and other portions of the State during the beginning and ending of the Civil War, and the localities, from a scenic and costuming standpoint, are said to be represented with absolute fidelity and historical accuracy.

Another noteworthy offering on an exceptionally strong bill is a scenic film entitled "Moscow Clad in Snow." These pictures represent various interesting portions of the famous Russian city and include views of the Kremlin and Petrovsky Park. "The Contemptible Thief" is a playlet of conventional heart-interest theme, and the programme also embraces two crisp comedies labeled "The Rude Hostess" and "Schneider's Anti-Noise Cure."

One of the newest musical hits will be presented by Cary Taylor, the Casino vocalist.

RAILROAD CLERKS

FORM ORGANIZATION WHICH PAYS DEATH BENEFITS.

Starts Off With Membership of 250 and Expects To Increase Number To 1,000.

A plan whereby relatives of employes of railroads operating in and out of Louisville can derive death benefits has assumed definite shape in the form of an organization which has just been christened the Louisville Railroad Relief Association. At a meeting held last Thursday night in the general offices of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, Ninth street and Broadway, a permanent organization was effected and articles of incorporation were indorsed.

The purpose of the association is to establish a fund for the benefit of the surviving relatives of railroad clerks whenever a death is reported. Each member of the organization is assessed $1 and when a member dies a sum of $200 is paid over to his relatives for funeral expenses. It is planned to get about 1,000 or more employes of the various railroad clerical departments into the association, so that it can exist for a long period on only one or two assessments. At the last meeting 250 members were enrolled.

The idea of such an organization originated with William Smith, Jr., and D. M. Goodwyn in the general freight departments of the Illinois Central and Louisville and Nashville railroads. They broached the subject to other railroad men, who pledged their support.

In the articles of incorporation, filed yesterday, it is stipulated that no one connected with the association shall realize any profits. Only employes of railroads in clerical departments in Louisville are eligible for membership. Applicants for membership need only convince the board that they are railroad employes. None are subject to a medical or physical examination. No capital stock is fixed, and the association shall have but one paid officer, the secretary, J. M. Ryan. William Smith, Jr., and D. M. Goodwyn were named as incorporators.

Officers have been elected as follows: President, William Smith, Jr.; vice president, John Dewberry; secretary and treasurer, William S. Markolf.

GOOD CHANCE

FOR PRETTY KENTUCKY GIRL TO BE ENTERTAINED.

City of Bath, England, Will Open Her Doors To One Woman On Conditions.

Frankfort, Ky., April 10.—[Special.]—Kentucky is to be represented by a beautiful young woman at a big pageant which is to be held in Bath, England, beginning July 6 and lasting for twenty days, during which time Kentucky's representative will be entertained at the home of some distinguished English woman. Gov. Willson, on request of the city officials of Bath, will appoint a delegate from Kentucky, who must, however, be from Bath, in Knott county, or from Bath county, as it is the purpose of the English town to have representatives present from every community in the United States which has taken its name from the old city of Bath. As there is no provision for paying the expenses of Kentucky's representative, Gov. Willson will name some young woman from Kentucky who is going to be in England at that time anyhow. The Governor desires to have Kentucky represented and will try to find a young woman from this State who can represent Kentucky. The only requirement is that she shall be beautiful.

In the letter from the Mayor of Bath to Gov. Willson, the English official says: "It is the earnest desire of the most honorable, the Marquise of Bath, president of the pageant, of the Mayor and town councillors of the city, of the pageant committee and of the people generally that the daughter or granddaughter of the city, Bath, in the county of Knott, of your State, should be represented on occasion which we believe will be of supreme interest, not only locally, but throughout England."

The Governor of every State which has a city or county named Bath will be asked to name a representative, and it is certain that elaborate entertainment will be provided for the delegates from the United States.

CONSOLIDATION

Of Rural Schools In Jefferson County.

DISCUSSED BY IMPROVEMENT LEAGUE YESTERDAY.

PLAN LOOKED UPON FAVORABLY BY EDUCATORS.

CHANGE IN CONSTITUTION.

Consolidated and vastly improved rural schools for Jefferson county was the slogan of the School Improvement League at a meeting held in the office of Mrs. Rosa Stonestreet, County Superintendent of Schools, yesterday afternoon. While the object of the meeting, which had been called specially, was to make a change in the constitution, a number of matters were freely discussed and among these was the consolidation idea. This was introduced by the president, Prof. L. O. Reid, who read from an Indiana report showing the advantages of consolidated schools in the rural district. This report pointed out that in several States the rural district schools had been vastly improved by centralizing them, and that public conveyance of school children to and from the schools was cheaper and more effective than the maintenance of so many smaller schools.

Prof. Reid said that he believed the Improvement League should begin to talk the consolidation idea and to work toward that end in every section where it is possible. He pointed out the advantages of large rural schools, showing where they could be carried on more successfully, with fewer and better teachers, than could the small district schools. He said that the buildings could be better, the library of the district centralized and that with a larger attendance and all teachers in close touch with each other the advantages were apparent.

* * *

Work Given Impetus.

The impetus to an enlivened and more hopeful spirit was the voting of a 20-cent school tax by the Fiscal Court recently. This will give to the rural schools of the county about $40,000 with which the schools will be greatly improved whether they are consolidated or not.

Mrs. Stonestreet said that the schools cannot now be consolidated until next year, as the law forbids the changing of district boundaries after the census is taken, which begins this month. She said she favors consolidation in a number of instances in the county, but realizes that it cannot become effective for the next school session.

When the question of amendment of the constitution came up, the amendment was passed without dissension. The change makes the County Judge and County Attorney ex officio members of the board of directors of the Improvement League.

A communication from Mrs. Sallie G. Sperry, regent of John Marshall Chapter, D. A. R., was read, notifying the league of the adoption of a resolution by that chapter requesting that the United States flag be placed over every school building in Jeffersonville. No action regarding this was taken by the league, there being no funds for the purchase of flags. Mrs. Thruston Ballard suggested that a fund be raised by each school among the pupils for the purchase of a small flag.

* * *

Make Informal Talks.

Short informal talks were made by various members, by which the work and aims of the league were discussed. In some of these talks the question as to whether subleagues were being opposed by teachers was raised. It was said that in some districts the teachers have not openly opposed the leagues, but that some of them were not interested. Prof. Reid suggested that leagues should be organized in every district for the purpose of engendering a healthier interest among the patrons.

Along this line Dr. J. W. Blanton, of Pleasure Ridge Park, made some enthusiastic remarks, in which he said the lack of interest in some districts of the county was caused by the failure of teachers to acquaint themselves personally with the parents of school children. He thought a teacher should make it a point to visit all the patrons of her school and keep up an interest in that way.

Mrs. Stonestreet reported that out of the ninety-seven school districts of the county there were only twenty-five without subleagues and that several had been organized recently and were meeting with the approval of the patrons generally. Mrs. Stonestreet also reported that she had learned that when the additional funds from the additional tax is available the salary of the county teachers will be raised from $35 to $46 a month. Several teachers were present and applauded this heartily.

The attendance at yesterday's meeting was slim, but was apologized for by Mrs. Stonestreet, who said that twenty-five of the teachers who usually attend the meetings were engaged in arranging the school display at the Armory for the Southern Electrical Exposition.

THE PARTICIPATING COUPON DIVIDEND POLICY

Written only by the Commonwealth, is the most liberal and up-to-date contract issued by any company, it having coupons for fixed amounts, which can be cut off each year and used to reduce the premium, or under this plan the coupons can be so used that a fifteen-payment life policy can be secured at twenty-payment-life rates. There are many other provisions which are equally as attractive, and if you will write the secretary, stating age and amount of insurance desired, a sample policy will be mailed you.

The amount involved in the settlement of these and the principal suit is approximately $2,000,000.

The settlement was reached after an all-night conference in this city, preliminary to which there were negotiations of several weeks' duration, during which the wires were kept busy between Orange, N. J., and Mr. Edison's winter home in Florida. The suit was for the territorial rights for the sale of Edison phonographs and phonographic supplies in New York State. A similar suit for territorial rights to the New England States is now pending in the courts.

The engine was twenty years old when purchased by Mr. Currie. It has passed the half-century mark and is well on toward the century mark. The old engine is in a handsome glass case.

NEW INDICTMENT FOUND AGAINST H. CLAY PIERCE.

Charged With Perjury In Signing Affidavit Which Obtained Readmission To Texas.

Austin, Texas., April 10.—The grand jury of the Fifty-third District Court returned a new indictment to-day against Henry Clay Pierce, the head of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, charging false swearing in signing the anti-trust affidavit, which secured the readmission of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to Texas in 1900 after being ousted for violation of the anti-trust laws of the State.

The indictment is understood to have been drawn by Assistant Attorney General McCord, special counsel for the State, C. H. Jenkins, and District Attorney James R. Hamilton, and while containing no allegations other than set out in the previous indictment is much more precise and full, comprising twenty-eight typewritten pages, while the former indictment was only five pages in length.

CHARLES BAUM ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF FORGERY.

Alleged to have passed worthless checks to the amount of $10 each on three Louisville grocers, Charles Baum, of 218 West Breckinridge street, formerly employed as a solicitor by the law firm of Searcy & Ogden, was arrested last night by Detectives Elvin and White and Patrolman O'Donnell, charged with forgery. He was arrested on complaint of Lambert Klarer, a grocer, of 1600 Gallagher street; W. M. Wigginton, who conducts a grocery at 540 East Gray street, and W. Blanton, a grocer at 232 North Twentieth street.

Mr. Searcy said last night that Baum, on last Saturday night, visited several grocers and requested them to cash a check for $10. The name of Searcy & Ogden was forged to the checks, it is alleged by Mr. Searcy, and each grocer willingly cashed the check on a local bank. When the checks were presented at the bank they were found to be worthless. At the county jail last night Baum refused to discuss his arrest.

A FEW MEN ON REGULAR TICKET

ALL "ANTI-MACHINE" REPUBLICANS WANT.

SIZE-UP MADE BY A MEMBER OF THE MACHINE.

LITTLE TALK OF OPPOSITION.

It was noised abroad last night after the meeting of the Louisville and Jefferson County Republican Club, known as the anti-machine or insurgent element, had adjourned, that a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor in opposition to Mayor Grinstead, the machine candidate, would be placed in the field in the next few days. All efforts to extract from the members of the club who the candidate will be were futile. Even the press committee, which was ostensibly appointed last night for the purpose of giving out all information to the newspapers regarding the proceedings of the insurgents, was clammy. The members of this committee are J. D. Reed, J. L. Richardson and N. C. Cureton, and like most of the press committees appointed by Republican clubs, their chief business is to keep the facts from the public.

"You can say," said a member of the club, "that Grinstead will have opposition for the nomination, and perhaps a full ticket will be put in the field to be voted for at the primary May 17, but we are not ready to announce who our man for Mayor is at present. The matter was discussed at length in the club to-night, and there is no doubt but the announcement of a candidate for Mayor will be made within the next few days."

The members of the club seen after the meeting were all afflicted with clammy feet when it came to telling of what was done by the club. The machine leaders are laughing in their sleeves over the splutter that is being made by the band of insurgents. Said a leader in the machine last night:

"These anti-machine fellows, as they call themselves, are not doing anything that gives us the least bit of apprehension. The truth of the business is most of them want to be placed on the ticket. That talk of opposition to Grinstead is all bosh. Of course, they can put out a candidate for Mayor if they want to, but I can't for my life see who desires to sacrifice himself in becoming the candidate of such a faction, as that which is meeting every Saturday night. We showed last April in the primary what we could do to the "opposition" in the party, and it will give us great pleasure to repeat the dose. There is nothing like a little ruckus to keep the 'machine' in good working order."

COLORED MISSION BOARD TO OBSERVE "PRAYER DAY."

The Baptist Foreign Mission Board, colored, 736 West Walnut street, has sent out a petition to the colored Baptists of this country to observe to-day as "Prayer day." A special rally for foreign mission work will be held this afternoon at the Fifth-street Baptist church, Fifth street, between Walnut and Chestnut streets, at 3 o'clock.

The Rev. W. W. Landrum, D. D., pastor of the Broadway Baptist church, and Dr. Henry Alford Porter, of the Walnut-street Baptist church, have consented to be present and deliver addresses. A special musical programme has been arranged for the occasion.

All the superintendents of Sunday-schools have been asked to be present to take part in the literary part of the programme that has been prepared for them.

TO ENTER PROTEST BEFORE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

Judge Lawrence B. Anderson, Gus Thomas and Ed Crossland, of Mayfield, are at the Old Inn, en route to Frankfort, where they and several others will appear before the State Board of Equalization in behalf of the taxpayers of Graves county. It seems that some of the valuations in Graves county have been unjustly raised, according to county officials. Judge Lawrence Anderson was formerly Insurance Commissioner under Gus Coulter when he was State Auditor.

Knowling had been to Scottsburg yesterday and was said to have been drinking considerably. This morning he came to Fawbush's house and while there a quarrel ensued. Fawbush put Knowling out of the house several times, and each time he came back. Finally Fawbush picked up his shotgun and, as Knowling started back, fired, the load taking effect in Knowling's stomach, killing him almost instantly.

S.S.S.

CURES SKIN DISEASES

In this article we want to explain to you the cause of skin diseases, and also offer suggestions, founded on reason and experience, which will enable you to cure yourself if you are afflicted with any of the various forms of this trouble.

The skin receives its necessary nourishment from the blood. Every pore is kept open and every gland kept healthy by continually feeding on the nutritious properties which are distributed throughout the system by a pure, rich blood supply. As long as this normal condition exists the cuticle will be soft, smooth, and free from eruptions; when however the circulation is contaminated with humors and impurities its supply of nutritive properties is diminished, and it becomes a sharp, acrid fluid which diseases instead of preserves the natural health and texture of the skin.

Lying just beneath the outer covering or tissue-skin is a sensitive membranous flesh which surrounds and protects the tiny veins, pores and glands. It is here the impurities of the blood are deposited, and the acrid matter causes irritation and inflammation which splits or breaks the thin, tissue-like cuticle, and the result is outwardly manifested in Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum, or some other disfiguring or annoying eruptive disease.

It can readily be seen that since Skin Diseases are the result of bad blood, there can be but one way to cure them—purify the blood. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., are not able to do so, because they do not reach the blood. Such treatment is of no value except for its ability to temporarily relieve itching and assist in keeping the skin clean.

S. S. S. cures Skin Diseases of every kind by neutralizing the acids and removing all humors from the blood. S. S. S. cools the acid-heated circulation, builds it up to its normal strength and thickness, multiplies its rich, nutritious corpuscles, and adds to its purity in every way. Then the skin, instead of being irritated and inflamed by sour impurities, is nourished, soothed and softened by this cooling, healthy stream of blood. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and therein lies its ability to cure skin diseases. The trouble cannot remain when the cause has been removed, and S. S. S. will certainly remove the cause. It cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, pimples, boils, blackheads, etc., and all eruptions of the skin. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

For six years I was severely troubled with a bad skin disease, located principally on the shins. The trouble would appear in the form of small yellow blisters, characterized by very severe itching, etc. I tried sarsaparillas, so-called blood purifiers, salves, ointments, lotions and treatment under a physician, but nothing did me any good. Becoming discouraged I left off all this treatment, and just about this time I saw S. S. S. advertised. One day I decided to give this medicine a trial, and after using it for a short while I began to improve. Of course I continued S. S. S. and it cured me completely. Quite a while has elapsed since I was cured and there has never been the slightest indication of the return of the trouble.

G. C. RECK.
404 Freedom St., Alliance Ohio.

I had a bad case of Eczema, it being especially severe on my right hand. I was hardly able to use my hand in my work. I tried a great many things in an effort to get relief, but was unable to do so until I read of S. S. S. and determined to give it a trial. I used several bottles of this remedy and it cured the trouble entirely. S. S. S. put my blood in fine condition and left my skin soft and smooth. Though this was some time ago there has been no return of the trouble. CHAS. J. WOLF, JR.
904 S. Second St., St. Louis, Mo.

For four years I suffered severely with Weeping Eczema, located chiefly on the hands, both inside and out, and extended as far up as the wrists. I was under treatment most all the time, but could get no relief. One or two of my physicians said it was as bad a case of Eczema as they ever saw. I lost my finger nails once or twice as a result of the disease, and the itching, burning and pain I experienced I cannot express to you in words. I kept my hands bandaged all the while, but with only little relief. As I said, becoming discouraged, I gave up all treatment I was taking, and seeing S. S. S. advertised began it as a last resort. A few bottles convinced me that it was doing me good and I continued it, and in a short while I was entirely cured.

BIG GATES SWING OPEN TO-MORROW

Everything In Readiness For Electrical Exposition.

President Taft To Set the Wheels In Motion.

Lighting Arrangements and Decorations Superb

ONE GRAND BLAZE OF GLORY.

With the touching of the electric button in the White House at noon to-morrow, the Southern Electrical and Industrial Exposition will be opened to the public. It is safe to say that nothing approaching it in beauty, interest and instructiveness has ever been offered to any people. The exposition as it stands to-day in a state of absolute completeness, represents two months of active work on the part of more than 300 prominent business men in the city. For the past two weeks, Secretary Macdonald, President Keisker and the office force generally have worked day and night. Their efforts have been well repaid by the greatest electrical and industrial display ever offered in this section of the country.

The lighting arrangements and the decorations are superb. In fact, the scene in the armory is positively bewildering to one entering the big hall. While the exposition will afford an interesting means of pastime to all persons it will be of especial interest to those interested in the development of electricity. Louisville and the South generally are somewhat deficient in electrical development and this show of the various electrical appliances is expected to foster this development.

* * *

Louisville Already Awakened.

In fact, the advent of the exposition has already awakened interest in the power of light as indicated by the hundreds of new electric signs which are daily making their appearance in the business section of the city. There will be represented in the various electrical displays every conceivable electrical device from cooking utensils and wash machines to carpet sweepers. In fact, there are hundreds of labor-saving devices which will appeal especially to the housekeepers of the city.

In addition to the exhibits there have been secured numerous special attractions, calculated to interest the general public. Chief among these, of course, are the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Stations. There will be two of these stations, one at each end of the hall and messages will be exchanged between them. This will be the first time stations of this character have been exhibited here and in view of the great interest which now centers in wireless telegraphy, this exhibit should prove a star attraction.

The big electric clock, the largest clock of this character ever made, is nearing completion. It will be completed to-night. The lights were tested yesterday and all that remains is to raise it into position. This clock will be one of the most beautiful features of the exposition. The dial is twenty-five feet in diameter and the pendulum stem is thirty-five feet long. The clock will swing backward and forward at the south end of the hall. The clock will have no hands, the time being indicated by streaks of variolored lights. The clock was practically finished last Tuesday, but a change in the plan was found to be necessary and all of the work had to be done over. But despite this fact, it is now complete, although it required work throughout every hour of the day and night to get it into shape.

* * *

Handsome Oil Painting.

The big oil painting of the Indiana shore as seen from the Kentucky side of the river, showing the cities of New Albany and Jeffersonville, which was painted by Guy Lieber is a notable achievement. It is a wonderful piece of work when there is taken into consideration the fact that it was painted while stretched out on the floor.

Another attraction will be the astronomical clock, which not only tells the time of day, the date, the movement of the planets and sundry other things of an astronomical nature, but contains a dial which revolves but once in twenty-nine and one-half years. This latter feature is unique in machinery.

The electric tower which forms the central attraction of the exposition is a thing of beauty. It rises forty feet from the floor and is surmounted by the figure of a woman representing the spirit of night. In one hand the figure holds a trumpet and in the other an electric bulb.

For the first time in the history of an affair of this kind New Albany and Jeffersonville have joined hands with Louisville in making it a thorough success. New Albany and Jeffersonville will be represented officially and industrially, there being exhibits on the floor of many of the industrial and commercial plants in New Albany.

* * *

Natiello's Orchestra.

Natiello's famous orchestra has been engaged for the entire two weeks of the exposition. This orchestra contains sixty pieces and included in its membership are several of the stars of the Hammerstein Opera Company, which closed its successful winter season recently. Signor Natiello and his band will arrive in Louisville some time to-day and will be prepared to attend the opening of the exposition to-morrow. There will be two concerts daily, one in the afternoon and one in the evening.

Sixty thousand daily programmes will be printed during the run of the exposition. The programmes will be printed daily, so that in the event any changes are made necessary they can be duly placed before the public.

Among the exhibits will be a complete line of motor boats of the latest types and including the latest designs in machinery. The exhibits of the big Eastern and Western electric companies will be of especial interest. The newest devices in electrical usage will be shown, including several new types of lights.

The Louisville department stores also will make an unusually fine display. These exhibits will contain all of the latest things in wearing apparel for women. Many of the exhibits have been brought from the East especially for the exposition.

The furniture houses and office supply houses also will make a notable exhibit. There will also be a complete engraving outfit on the floor, where cards will be engraved and run off on the presses.

* * *

Public Schools Represented.

The public schools will be represented from the lowest to the highest grade. Of special interest in this connection will be the work of the children of the kindergartens and primary grades, compared with the work of the Male High School and the Manual Training High School.

The county exhibit will be worthy of note. The county has appropriated $2,000 for this exhibit, and something worth the while will be forthcoming.

Much has been said of the art exhibit, but when the public has been admitted to the art gallery, more will be said. According to some of the most notable art students in the city, this exhibit will beat anything of the kind ever seen in Louisville. There will be more than 200 pictures. The lighting has been accomplished by the use of Nernst light, which are very effective in this sort of work.

Arrangements have been made for a hospital on the floor of the exposition. There will be two well-known physicians in charge of this hospital every hour in which the exposition is open. There will also be on hand one trained nurse all of the time.

There will be ample police and fire protection. Several patent fire extinguishers will be on hand all of the time. A squad of picked men from the fire department will have charge of these. The guards of the exposition, who will aid visitors in seeing the show to the best advantage, will be chosen from the First Regiment of Louisville and from among the State Guard stationed in New Albany and Jeffersonville.

* * *

200,000 Visitors.

There were 128,000 visitors at the Greater Louisville Exposition two years ago. It is likely that there will be 200,000 at this exposition. This expectation is based on the fact that an unparalleled advertising campaign has been conducted throughout the South. This has been aided by the railroads, which have fixed a rate of one fare plus 25 cents for the round trip from any point in the South to Louisville during the run of the exposition.

There have been sent out more than half a million pieces of advertising matter. This has been sent in a judicious manner and has permeated every section of the South.

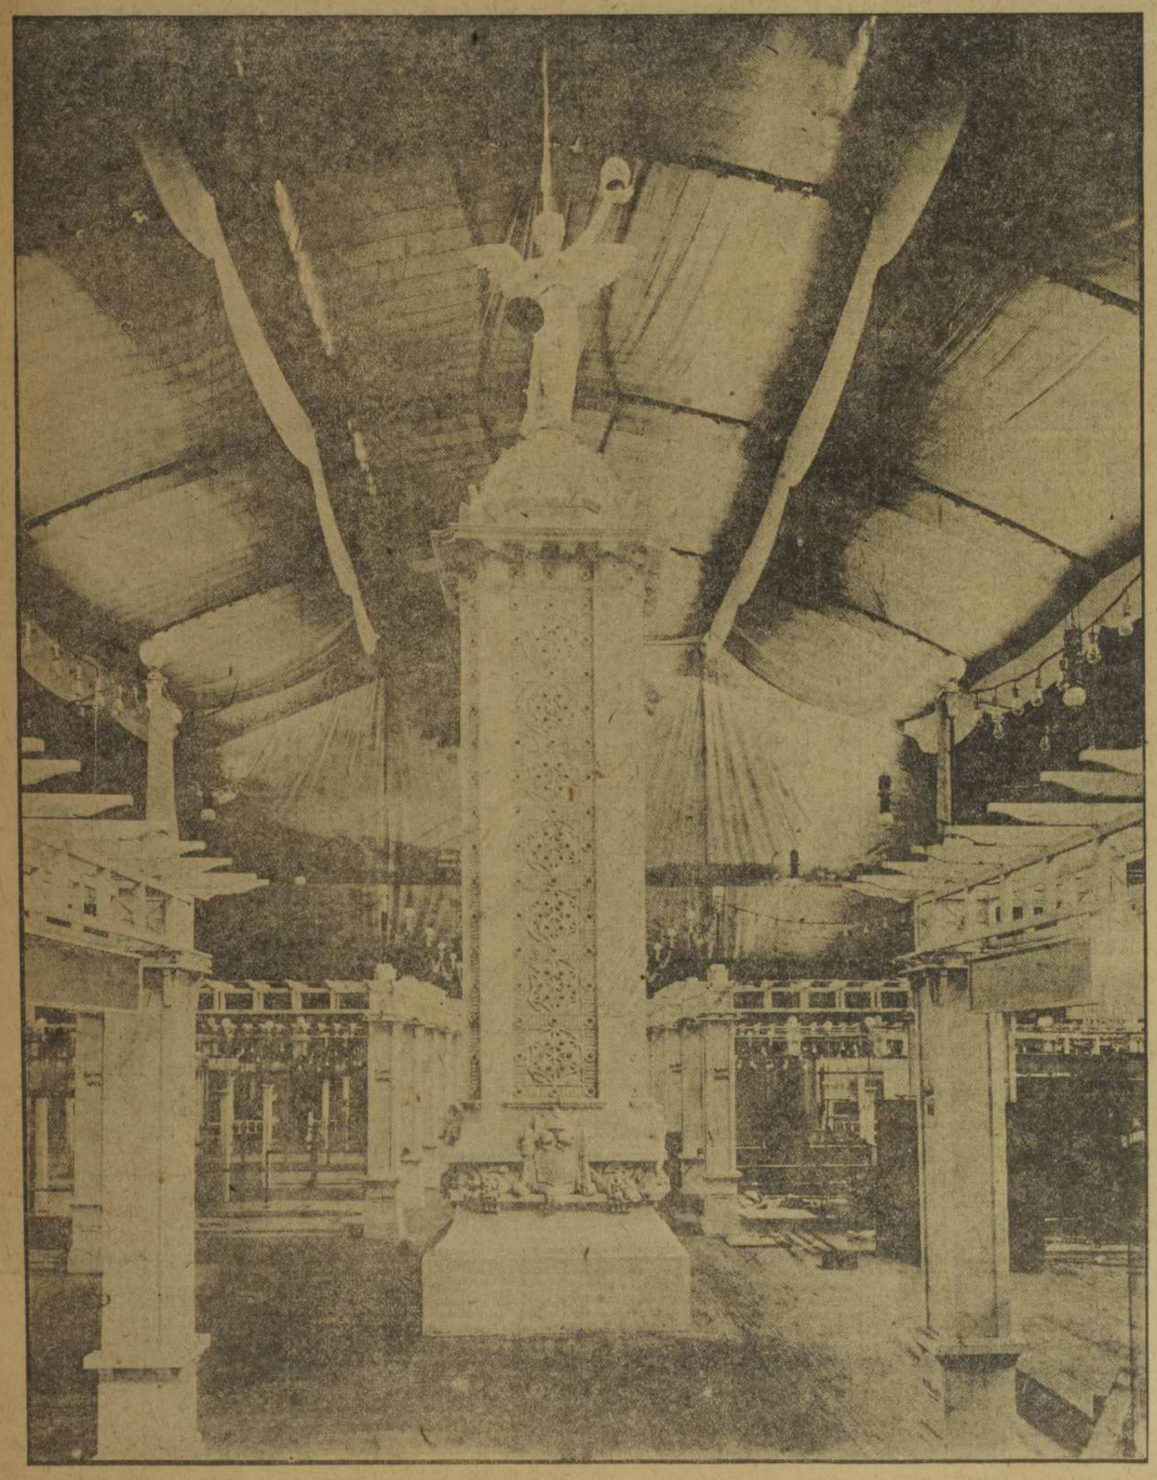

Another feature in this connection is the fact that the Retail Merchants' Association has arranged to grant rebates of railroad fares to all merchants visiting this market during the two weeks of the exposition. This will bring a large number of people to the city who will be able to take advantage of the two occasions.

A ROCK-BOTTOM BASIS---Insurance Commissioner Bell, in his recent report on his examination of the Citizens Life Insurance Company by the Kentucky Insurance Department, says: "The management and other persons interested in the welfare of the Citizens Life can rest assured that by this examination the company is placed upon a 'rock-bottom' basis."

The Company's statement filed with the Kentucky Department shows over $27,000,000.00 of insurance in force; $1,409,870.36 of assets and $478,112.15 surplus to policyholders on December 31, 1908. Assets soon to be realized upon, and other receipts of the Company will swell these figures to about two million dollars assets and a half million dollars surplus to policyholders; which goes to show that the Citizens Life has, as Commissioner Bell says, "a most brilliant opportunity to become one of the great insurance companies of this country."

Such a Company in Louisville is, unquestionably, a most substantial and important factor in the commercial and financial development of Kentucky.

AS LITTLE CITY

Big Electrical Exposition Will Be Conducted.

SAFETY, WORKS AND HEALTH DEPARTMENTS PROVIDED.

EVERYTHING IN ARMORY BUT SLEEPING QUARTERS.

OVER 15,000 LIGHTS BLAZING.

Barring the lack of sleeping accommodations, the Southern Electrical Exposition to open Monday in the First Regiment Armory will take on the aspect of a small city when it is in full swing. Not a single detail has been overlooked, save the arrangements for a session with Morpheus, and that is provided if a patron becomes ill.

The same methods employed in the running of a municipality will be in force, for there is to be a fully equipped emergency hospital, with a staff of trained nurses and physicians in attendance at all times; a uniform police department picked from the "Beauty Squad" of Louisville's finest; a military guard from the First Regiment; a secret service squad; a post-office, where letters may be received or mailed, under the direction of postal authorities; telephones in everyone of the 200 booths; two telegraph stations with messenger service and spacious retiring room for women, where they can rest and prepare their toilet in the same careful manner they would in their boudoirs at home.

The hospital arrangements, perhaps, are the most elaborate of all in detail, for over thirty of the most skillful physicians and surgeons in Louisville will be on the staff and a dozen trained nurses will be on duty. One of the large rooms off the main entrance will be equipped for the two weeks of the exposition. Not a single detail of a hospital will be overlooked. There will be a complete apothecary and all the necessary surgical implements. It is doubtful whether a hospital in Louisville would be able to handle a large number of sick and injured as this temporary institution will during the hours that the electrical show is on.

* * *

Corps of Physicians.

The physicians will report in "watches," just as they do in a regular hospital. The following is the list of physicians who will make up the staff:

C. O. Zalmer, J. T. Wing, T. S. Wallace, L. M. Eckels, J. O. Rogers, Herbert Bronner, William A. Jenkins, C. W. Hibbitt, E. O. Witherspoon, S. P. Myer, L. P. Spears, L. L. Solomon, Ira N. Kerns, W. F. Boggess, A. C. Percefull, B. Oscar Doyle, J. F. Richter, J. W. Price, George B. Jenkins, J. B. Lukins, E. T. Beuce, G. B. Breidenthal, J. D. Carpenter, J. W. Heen, C. M. Garth, W. H. Long, W. B. Owen, H. L. Dolle, A. L. Parsons, B. Asmen, W. F. Fallis, H. M. Conathy, J. A. Sweeny, L. R. Eddleson and C. G. Hoffman.

It is possible, by taking advantage of the telephone, messenger, telegraph and mail service, for a patron to conduct the business at his office right from the armory and at the same time secure his meals without leaving the building. Mothers, who are fearful of leaving their infants at home, can check their baby as they enter the hall and feel assured that it will be watched and pampered just as if its mother was watching over it.

The police arrangements will be perfect. Chief of Police Haager will assign a number of men from his "beauty squad" to preserve order, and then there will be the impressive State Guard doing military duty at all times. Of course, the gumshoe men from the Central station will be constantly mixing with the crowd on the watch for the pickpockets and other offenders. There will be a secret service squad, and these men will work independently of all others and be known only to Secretary Macdonald.

It will take a small-sized army of men and women to keep the machinery of this detail working in perfect order, and they will have a trained official at the head to see that no effort is spared for the comfort of the patrons while they are within the building.

* * *

Electric Tower.

"The Spirit of the Night" is the appropriate title given to the winged papier mache figure of a woman, holding a cluster of light in her upstretched hands, which will rise majestically above the blazing plaster of paris electric tower that has been built in the center of the First Regiment Armory for the Electrical Exposition. The monument, which is a tribute to the lighting power of electricity, is a thing of beauty, and when it is shining in all its glory it is bound to be one of the greatest attractions of the show. It will be seen at its best from a distance when it has all the appearances of a solid column of white light with the graceful winged figure rising eight feet above its dome-shaped top with a vase of fire showing from the upturned hands.

At the base of the tower it measures eight feet through. At the top of the base is an artistic wreath of fruits and vegetables, representing a "Horn of Plenty." On the sides of the rising columns are inlaid panels with hundreds of rosettes into which fit the 400 lamps that when lighted produce a beautiful spectacle.

This blazing centerpiece which towers above all the exhibits on the floor is but one of a score of dazzling light effects. It is a fact that the Southern Electrical Exposition outrivals the Chicago show in this particular. In the Windy City exhibit it took 250 kilowatts to supply the power, while it will require 482 kilowatts, which is almost double the amount used in the Chicago show, to supply the power for the lighting of the Southern Electrical Exposition.

* * *

Fifteen Thousand Lights.

In all it is estimated that there will be at least 15,000 lights blazing at the same time during the two weeks the show is on. This will give a good idea of the bewildering effect that is to be produced. The Chicago press went into an ecstasy of delight over the beauty of the scene at the Chicago Coliseum, yet double the amount of lights and space will be consumed in the Louisville show.

The Armory offers all the natural advantages for the great display. Its immense floor space and great height can't be surpassed by an exhibition hall in the country.

While every known color and hue will be brought into play in the decorations, yet white will predominate, as the booths and the tower are of pure white. Inside the booths, however, there will be a play of color for each exhibitor is arranging his own adornment, and is endeavoring to outrival his neighbor.

The effect from above will be in perfect harmony. Peeking out from the arched girders, which will be almost hidden by the massive green and white bunting that is now stretched across the steel framework that supports the roof, will be hundreds of lamps, resembling, as they will, so many stars. These bulbs will be shaded with tulip globes of a variety of colors.

The gigantic clock on the south wall, with its 7,000 colored lights, will form a pleasing background, and when it blazes forth will resemble a great cluster of rare jewels. The bandstand, with its semi-circle sounding-board, will be literally covered with lights.

Not a single sunbeam will be permitted to find its way into the great exhibition hall. The windows will be covered with a dark cloth so as not to dim the effects of the artificial light.

SIBERIA'S FROZEN MILK.

[Baker's Weekly.]

The people of Siberia buy their milk frozen, and for convenience it is allowed to freeze about a stick, which forms a handle to carry it by. The milkman leaves one chunk or two, as the case may be, at the houses of his customers. The children in Irkutsk instead of crying for a drink of milk cry for a bite of milk. The people in winter time do not say "Be careful not to spill the milk," but "Be careful not to break the milk." Broken milk is better than spilled milk, though, because there is an opportunity to save the pieces. A quart of frozen milk on a stick is a very formidable weapon in the hand of an angry man or boy, as it is possible to knock a person down with it. Irkutsk people hang their milk on hooks, instead of putting it in pans, though of course when warm spring weather comes pans or pails must be used, as the milk begins to melt.

MOVEMENT FOR BETTER ROADS

Plans Forced On Lawmakers By Development of Autos.

A SYSTEMATIC AGITATION.

Military Protection Assured For the Coming Great Race of Chicago Automobile Club.

THE WORK AT INDIANAPOLIS.

THE automobile is to play the same part in the road building of the next twenty-five or fifty years that the steam locomotive played three-quarters of a century ago. To awaken the people from their lethargy regarding road building some such force as the locomotive or the automobile must come. Men may ure horse-drawn vehicles all their lives and never get beyond the point of saying that the roads should be improved. But no man can own an automobile and drive it 100 miles without becoming a strenuous advocate of good roads. Within the next few years the question of good roads will be one of, if not the leading, commercial issue of the day, not excepting the tariff.

The United States is far behind Europe in this character of internal improvement, although excelling in most others. The causes may be stated generally as follows: Imperfect State laws; inefficient and improper administration and management of roads; ignorance on the part of local road builders of the principles and methods of road construction; ignorance of the qualities essential in road building materials and lack of facilities for ascertaining such qualities, and lack of sufficient research and experimental work to devise changes or improvements in road materials or existing methods of construction sufficient to meet modern conditions, reduce cost or increase efficiency.

George C. Diehl, of Buffalo, now chairman of the good roads board of the American Automobile Association, is a practical man, being the engineer of Erie county, New York, an expert on highway construction and an important contributor to the success of the National Good Roads Convention, held last July. In a recent interview Mr. Diehl outlined the policies set forth below:

"That the development of good roads in this country has only begun is shown by the statement of the Department of Public Roads, that of the 2,150,000 miles of public roads in this country scarcely 7 per cent. can be said to be improved. The object of the good roads movement is the establishment of properly developed systems of improved main and lateral roads throughout all the States of the Union, and the careful and systematic maintenance and preservation of such systems when completed.

"The farmers and motorists, among many others, receive direct benefits from the construction of good roads; and although everyone practically receives direct or indirect benefits, the most active agencies to secure good roads must be the farmers and motorists, as organized in the National Grange, with its hundreds of individual and subsidiary organizations; the American Automobile Association, representing the motorists of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers and the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association, representing the automobile makers.

"It will be but a few years before we must stop using the terms farmers and motorists and say rather farmers and tourists; as with a properly developed system of good roads, the farmer will find it more economical to market his produce with motor vehicles."

Military protection has been secured for the Cobe Western stock chassis race and the light car event that will precede the new classic, which will be run over the Crown Point-Lowell circuit in Indiana June 18 and 19 by the Chicago Automobile Club. This is the essential point insisted upon by the contest board of the American Automobile Association before a sanction could be issued and the securing of the soldiers is regarded as making the roadracing carnival a certainty.

In securing this protection the Chicago Automobile Club has broken a record in that it not only has been given permission to use the militia for police duty on the road race course, but also in that for the first time in the history of automobiling a Governor has consented to allow the soldiery from another Commonwealth to serve in his State. This state of affairs was brought about when Gov. Marshall, of Indiana, granted permission for the First Regiment of the Illinois National Guard to go into Indiana and guard the course for the Chicago Automobile Club. The permission was granted after Gov. Deneen, acting upon the solicitation of the officers of the First Regiment, filed the necessary application with Gov. Marshall.

In the history of motoring in this country there has been only one instance where militia has been used for this purpose. That was at Savannah, Ga., a year. Others have vainly striven to get the soldiers, and even for such an important event as the Vanderbilt Cup race on Long Island permission was denied. But with Chicago it was a case of necessity. The West is fairly clamoring for a road race, there never having been anything worthy of that name in that section. The Governor of Indiana recognized this, and so he gave his consent to permit the Illinois troops to be used because the Indiana militia is so widely scattered it would be almost impossible to mobilize it.

Col. J. B. Sanborn, of the First Regiment, will command the troops in person. He will take with him 1,000 men including the signal and hospital corps and a military encampment will be located at Crown Point during the meet.

The militia question settled, the contest board of the Chicago Automobile Club is now awaiting from Chairman Hower, of the A. A. A., the sanction that will allow of the races being run. As the Chicagoans are waiting for a final settlement of the rules question, which includes a decision as to the engine sizes it has been decided that in the light-car race the piston displacement limit will be 300 cubic inches, but so far the contest board has been unable to decide just what limit shall prevail in the Cobe Cup race.

* * *

A decision to run a race for light cars with piston displacements of not more than 300 inches was taken up at a meeting of the contest board of the Chicago Automobile Club, which picked out that cars from the five submitted by the Manufacturers' Contest Association for the consideration of the local promoters.

This is a radical departure for the Automobile Club, which had at first intended to put on a small-car race, such as was run at Savannah last fall, in which cars with engines of not more than 3½-inch bore only were eligible—a "baby" race in reality. When the makers' rules committee, though, offered three sizes from which to make a selection it was discovered that the 300-inch piston displacement class included 40 per cent. of the American manufacturers, most of whom build cars that are either too big for a small-car race or too large for the Cobe trophy event. The fact, too, that cars of this size would make a faster and better race also had considerable weight with the committee which decided, after mature deliberation, to sidetrack the original proposition and make it a light-car event on the first day, with the Cobe trophy to wind up the meet.

Under the 300-inch piston displacement class, engines with a bore and stroke of 4½ inches square represent the maximum, although a 4¼x5½-inch size can just about squeeze in. This will give the club at least forty-two different makers who are eligible for this race, which ought to produce as many entries, figuring that all will not be represented, while some will have in two or three cars.

It's a race of an army of workmen against time on the new Indianapolis motor speedway, and as usual since automobiles entered the ranks of record producers indications are that the mythical Father Time will again be the runner-up. Inability to get road-building machinery, together with showers, delayed the start of active operations on the speedway for about three weeks, but since they began things have fairly hummed.

From a level tract of prairie land of two weeks ago there has sprung up a long stretch of straightaway, a gradually inclined approach and a well-banked curve. An idea of the rapidity with which the dirt is gathered may be had when one learns that the two road machines now in use are capable of gathering and dumping about 1,500 loads per day. Each wagon load contains one and one-quarter yards of dirt. Another complete outfit was installed last week in order that the grading might be sure of completion on scheduled time.

The grounds of the speedway are a Mecca for autoists of Indianapolis and nearby towns, and the efforts of over a hundred men, teamsters, enginemen, foremen, engineers, struggling mules, puffing engines and dump wagons never cease to interest them. Nearly four miles of fence, which it will take to inclose the grounds, an office building, a clubhouse, a two-story restaurant and other structures are also nearing completion.

An interesting feature in the work of grading the course is the changing of the bed of a small creek which runs through the tract. The racing course will cross the creek twice on wide cement bridges, and to have the course cross squarely the engineers found it necessary to change the creek at one point near the main grandstand. A small army of workmen was put to work with road scrapers and a new channel for the creek was constructed.

G. L. Bumbaugh, areonautical captain of the Aero Club of Indiana, returned from the West last week to accompany Indianapolis balloonists in their flights necessary to become pilots in the Aero Club of America, which organization will conduct the national championship balloon race that will start from the speedway grounds on June 5. With the organizing of the Buffalo (N. Y.) Aero Club it is expected that a balloon manned by Joseph Cullen and Bernard Harris, of that city, will represent the club in the big race.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers held last week, a resolution was adopted urging members of the national association to join the newly organized Manufacturers' Contest Association. Another resolution was also adopted suggesting that the Contest Association put an "iron fist in their velvet mit" and swat any one having anything to do with a contest not sanctioned by the A. A. A.

This resolution, which apparently does not even exempt the Automobile Club of America, says: "Resolved that the Manufacturers' Contest Association will act in accordance with the desires of this association by giving full publicity to its resolutions and decisions, and by taking such definite action as will disbar from events sanctioned by the A. A. A. all persons or organizations who take part in or in any other way support any event not so sanctioned."

There was also in attendance at the meeting a representative gathering of Atlanta business men, who urged that a sanction for a national show be granted during the fall and spring. After some discussion their request was granted, and from now on the South will hold a show of their own in Atlanta.

The car first arriving at Seattle in the great race from New York to Seattle, which has complied with the rules of the race and whose passports shall be found to be correct, will be declared the winner of the M. Robert Guggenheim $2,000 trophy and the entrant will be presented with the trophy and with a cash prize of $2,000 in gold. The entrant of the second car arriving at Seattle will receive $1,500. The entrant of the third car arriving will receive $1,000. The entrant of the fourth card arriving will receive $500 and the entrant of the fifth car $500. Other cash, second, fourth and fifth cash prizes, however, will not be given unless there are more than ten entries and unless they shall arrive at the finishing point within seven days of the arrival of the first car.

Besides these prizes offered by Mr. Guggenheim, at least a half dozen cities, including St. Louis, are offering $1,000 each to the first car to arrive in their respective city.

The majority of strainers supplied to motorists, whether they be for filling gasoline tanks or lubricating tanks, are made on an extremely wrong principle, according to an expert motorist. It will be found that the most of them one can pour in the liquid much more quickly than it will run out, so that one has to stop pouring to avoid waste and mess. This is sometimes due to the smallness of the outlet, but it is very much more often because the gauze strainer is of such small area. The fineness of the gauze is not referred to, for if the area of the strainer is large enough one can pour in gasoline through an ordinary fine mesh without the least accumulation of the liquid upon the top of the gauze.

It is well known that the past ten years have seen a revolutionary change in the design and construction of automobiles. Hardly 10 per cent. of the American factories now producing automobiles could have been considered as running systematized organizations ten years ago. Today the members of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers have very highly-developed and extensive productive systems and factories. This means practically that a large industry has been established in a decade.

Compared with this, only detail improvements have been made in locomotive design or coach building, during the same period, nor have horse-drawn vehicles for freight hauling been materially changed. Only those coach builders who have been associated with the automobile industry have radically changed their methods of manufacture.

The relative amount of credit due different countries for the development and production of the automobile should be clear. Yet the subject is not fully understood and is repeatedly befogged by articles written by persons apparently unfamiliar with the facts.

While Seiden's patent was pending, and some years after its filing, Benz, and then Daimler, in Germany, from whose work European automobile development resulted, started their work and made vehicles embodying all the essential features of the Seiden invention. In due course Seiden's patent was issued, November, 1895. And after the long scrutiny given his application to the United States Patent Office, upon the issue of the patent, the Commissioner of Patents referred to it in his current annual report in the following language:

"Seldom received a patent which may be considered the pioneer invention in the application of the compression gas engine to road or horseless carriage use."

To say as a generalization that the American car followed the design of the foreign car is wrong. There are many motor-car elements which originated in America and have been used abroad. As early as 1898 and 1899 American makes of cars included the arrangement of vertical cylinder engine in front, substantially on the lines of the present-day automobile. While at that time some of the well-known makers of foreign cars had the engine under the seat or horizontally arranged; the position of the radiators being frequently in the roof of the top or under the car. Then foreign volturettes had the motor mounted in odd fashion, in different ways, in the rear of the car on or close to the axles. The small car originating in America, acknowledged as having been the stimulus of quantity production, was copied by European makers.

Features which have been gradually accepted in design generally can, of course, be traced frequently to some claimed foreign source. The standard of the subject finds itself a natural development of construction, in many elements the product of American brains and ability. As a result of several years' work by the best men, a popular design for large cars has resulted, after a long trial of different features of construction separately appearing in early vehicles, the point production of foreign and American engineers. We also now have a substantially standard arrangement in small cars wherein a few most largely the production American engineers are dominant.

No class of men have larger interest in the proper regulation of automobiles than the professional chauffeur. He must bear the brunt of the blame placed on the reckless and unskillful operator, and each cunning-down case adds to the load of obliquity he has to bear.

One of this class, who can be assumed to speak with a certain degree of authority, is J. M. Harrison, president of the "Professional Chauffeurs' Club of America." Referring to the subject recently he said:

"If a driver is concerned in an accident, caused through negligence on his part, we advocate as punishment as the United States Government punishes engineers and pilots in the marine service when guilty of an accident through neglect. If we had a law that was possible to abide by, or one as we have suggested, it would curb all recklessness.

"The trouble at the present time is that the laws are such that it is impossible to meet all the requirements. When it is considered that the walking record for one hour is eight miles—that is, a man walking heel and toe—then to ask an automobile to be driven at the rate of ten miles an hour is against common sense. It is the law as it stands that makes us all criminals the minute we leave the garage until we get back.

"While there are a great many offenders who are not dealt with severely enough, many others suffer an injustice. We would like to suggest that the Governor of New York State appoint a commission of men from all walks of life, who have the automobile interest and public welfare at heart, to come together and consider a just and adequate law for all concerned and present their deliberations to the next Legislature.

"After the passage of such a law and its approval by the Governor, hold every automobile driver down to the letter of the law. The trouble with automobile legislation has been that the majority of bills on the subject of speed limits have been presented by men who have worked to the best of their ability, but for lack of any amount of experience have failed to grasp the requirements."

Miss Dorothy Levitt, most intrepid of English motorists, has written an excellent little book, "The Woman and the Car," for the benefit of her sisters who are eager to follow her prowess.

"The budding chauffeuse should buy a small car," she says. "For your own driving, if you are going to attend to the mechanism yourself, you should purchase a single-cylinder car—more cylinders mean more work, and also more expense as regards tires, petrol, oil, etc. The single-cylinder car is the most economical to run. Being constructed in a much lighter manner, the weight on the tires is less, consequently the tire bill is smaller, a matter of great importance in the up-keep of a car."

Here is a selection of Miss Levitt's words of wisdom:

"Do not heed the cry, 'Nothing like leather.' Leather coats do not wear out gracefully. At first they may be delightful, but when they have been caught in two or three showers they begin to have a hard, stiff feeling which is far from comfortable. I have, however, seen very pretty costumes, coats and skirts made of thin glove kid, or suede, but these are luxuries, as they cost from 25 to 30 guineas each.

"Regarding gloves—never wear woolen gloves, as wool slips on the smooth surface of the steering-wheel and prevents one getting a firm grip. Gloves made of good, soft kid, fur lined, without a fastening, and with just a thumb, are the ideal gloves for winter driving.

"It is possible for a woman to repair a tire, but I am sure I am correct in saying that not one women in a thousand would want to ruin her hands in this way."

* * *

There is considerable of a knack in getting such a position in the driver's seat that the feet will not be jarred from the pedals when the car is running over rough roads. This position differs with the individual and is an important bit of learning. Bumping down grade the clutch should be released and the car allowed to coast, but if the foot jars from the pedal and the clutch sets suddenly it is dangerously rough on the gears.

* * *

The dashing driver who starts with a jump, throws on the high gear within a short distance, and when stopping, drives almost to the desired point, then slams on the brakes, will find that his tires will not last as long as those of his more careful friend. To put on a high rate of speed suddenly, on a slipper pavement or a sandy road, so that the wheels fly around while the car is barely moving, is not conducive to long-lived tires.

A large quick-action oil gun may be easily made from an old bicycle pump by plugging up the outlet and drilling and tapping the bottom place for a nozzle. The bottom plate can be cut down to the diameter of the pump barrel in case it has an extension to be held by the foot when pumping. Automobilists will find such an oil gun handy for quick filling of the lubricators and scattered oil cups for sucking out the oil from the gear case when a fresh supply is to be put in.

Among the recent automobile devices is a system designed to prevent the cloud of dust, which often makes the speeding automobile a nuisance to those passing. This apparatus consists of a pair of tubes, with extended mouth, which trail behind the machine at a point just above the ground. By means of a small fan mounted on the vehicle, a suction is created and the stream of dust raised by the passage of the wheels over the ground is drawn into the tubes and carried into a receptacle from which it is deposited again in the road at a point some distance from the wheels.

Owing to sickness in his family at East Orange, N. J., Frank Kramer, champion cyclist of the world, was prevented from driving in the contests at the Ormond Daytona beach, where his entry had been promised. Kramer was so pleased with the speed shown by his car that he promises that he would take it down for the stock car contests. It is generally known that Kramer is anxious to enter the automobile field of competition and he feels confident of his ability to win honors in that field.

There are also a number of other prominent lights in the cycling world who would like to imitate Ralph De Palma and go out for new debts to conquer. De Palma is an old-time cyclist and a friend of those to-day competing in the automobile world. Kramer may yet take a try at motoring this year should everything come out right at home.

Automobile Show For Atlanta.

New York, April 10.—Preliminary arrangements for an automobile show to be held in Atlanta, Ga., next fall or winter have been made here, and at the headquarters of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, under the auspices of which organization the show is to be held, it was said to-day that only the details remain to be worked out. The date has so far been left open, but will probably be fixed during a visit General Manager Miles of the association is to pay to Atlanta about two weeks hence, when the exhibition building will be inspected and further details agreed upon. Some time late in the present year was given as a probable date for the holding of the exhibition, with a possibility that it might be found advisable to select an early date in 1910 for the event.

Better Garments

Notice the better-dressed men to-day as they promenade the avenues of our city, and you'll find the greater majority wearing garments that bear our label.

The reasons are simply a matter of handsome fabrics, better tailoring facilities, clever designing, good workmanship and a thoroughness of detail in measuring and making clothes to order.

And, though our good tailoring is far superior to ready-made in fit and style, our prices are no higher.

Our fabrics are the handsomest in town, and the variety and selection larger than can be had elsewhere. We have the cloth to please you. Many of the styles are exclusive and cannot be had elsewhere in Louisville.

ALL IS READY FOR THE GAME

Championship Seasons In Three Big Leagues Begin This Week.

AMERICANS OPEN TO-MORROW.

Battles For Flags In Association and National League Start Next Wednesday.

SIZE-UP OF THE COLONELS.

ANOTHER championship baseball season has arrived. During the present week the struggles for the silken flag will begin in earnest in the three big leagues, and from now until late September interest will be at white heat among the fans who love the national game for what it is—America's cleanest and best sport.

The American League will start the championship season to-morrow in the East with two games, while on the following Wednesday the American Association and the National League will get into line with their opening contests.

This will be the eighth annual championship campaign of the powerful American Association, which has enjoyed seven years of financial prosperity. The coming season promises the same sort of sport that was furnished last year, when all the baseball world wondered at the closeness of the various races. Last season, in fact, was the banner one as far as the national game is concerned, and there is good reason to believe that the coming season will produce struggles of practically the same interest.

The American League games scheduled for to-morrow's opening are, New York at Washington and Boston at Philadelphia. The games of the American Association scheduled for the opening next Wednesday afternoon are as follows:

COLUMBUS AT LOUISVILLE.
TOLEDO AT INDIANAPOLIS.
ST. PAUL AT MILWAUKEE.
MINNEAPOLIS AT KANSAS CITY.

The championship season in the National League will also open next Wednesday, with the teams meeting each other as follows:

BROOKLYN AT NEW YORK.
PHILADELPHIA AT BOSTON.
PITTSBURG AT CINCINNATI.
ST. LOUIS AT CHICAGO.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the season here next Wednesday with the Senators, of Columbus. Preparations for the event have been completed. When the eighth season of the American Association is ushered in at the local ballyard the majority of the fans will be agreeably surprised to note the improvements made at Eclipse Park.

The grandstand and bleachers will comfortably seat about 10,000 persons. There will be no parade this year. After the handler of the indicator yells "Play ball" Mayor James F. Grinstead will inaugurate the 1909 battle for the supremacy by tossing the first ball toward the plate.

The chances of the Colonels in their struggle for the pennant this year seem good. The team looks to be stronger than last season. The staff of slabmen to pilot the Colonels to victory will consist of the following twirlers: Puttmann and Halla, left-handers; Hogg, Selby and another right-hander from one of the big league clubs. While General Manager Chivington declines to say who he is, the impression is that it will be Charley Adams, who was with the locals last year, but now with the Pittsburg Pirates.

* * *

If Charley Adams again dons a Louisville uniform, which he is reasonably sure of doing, the selection of men by Manager Peitz to officiate on the firing line for the Colonels will be easier. Adams' acquisition to the local staff of twirlers ought to prove a tower of strength. He pitched good ball here last season and with the experience gained and with the disposition to show more life in his work he ought to do better this season than he did in 1908. There is no room for Adams on the Pittsburg team and the chances are that he will join the locals before May 1.

With Adams back on the team the fight for membership on the local corps of pitchers will be between Hogg, Selby, Durham and Packard. Only five twirlers will be carried during the regular season. Who the other two men will be cannot be decided by Leader Peitz until later on. However, the fact is patent that the Colonels staff of mound performers will compare favorably with others in this league. If the Louisvilles are fortunte to control good twirlers they ought to have a good chance for the flag.

* * *

What chances the Colonels have to occupy a creditable position when the curtain drops on the 1909 hostilities depends largely on the playing of the locals under the leadership of Heine Peitz and how much the other seven teams have been strengthened. It is an undeniable fact that Peitz is surrounded with better material than Burke had at his disposal at the beginning of the 1908 struggle. Everyone knows what results Jimmy produced. If it was Burke's generalship that almost gave Louisville a pennant last year in the A. A. with a mediocre team, then it will be up to Heinie Peitz. If the old warrior is found wanting in managerial abilities he will not succeed in piloting his crowd of balltossers to a high notch in the race. If it was the players on the 1908 club who were responsible for the position attained then the Colonels this season ought to be a prominent factor for championship honors in this league. The locals, it is claimed, are stronger in almost every department of the game than they were at this time last season. If this is the case the local fans will have the chance to root for a winning team.

Of the eight teams battling for superiority in the American Association this year the Milwaukee Brewers, in charge of a Louisville man, John J. McCloskey, looks to have the best chance for the championship honors. Charley Carr's Indianapolis Browns, who won the pennant in 1908, have been weakened somewhat by the loss of Bush and Marquard, and may not be strong candidates for first place. With the addition of Glaze and Chadbourne, both splendid players, and Pitcher Graham the Hoosiers might fool the baseball critics. The Minneapolis club has been bolstered by the acquisition of big league players. The Millers are figured to be dangerous contenders for the banner. The other three clubs to be counted on as leading factors in the struggle are Louisville, Toledo and Columbus. It is doubtful if Kansas City or St. Paul teams will land in the first division. The Senators are not as strong as last year. The Mudhens, with Hickman, Seybold and Smoot batting, have a chance, but the team is weak in other positions.

The catching department will be looked after By Manager Heine Peitz and Johnny Hughes. The backstop department will be the equal of any in this league. The infield will be stronger with Woodruff at third and Olson, who was secured from the Topeka team, at second. The outfield will be better than in 1908. Landreth, when he gets in shape, will have charge of right field. He is a slugger, a splendid baserunner and a fine fielder. Dunleavy will play center. "Skeeters," who failed to show much while he was with the Saints, is already giving indications by his performance in the exhibition games that he will be a capable player both at the bat and afield. He is fast on his feet and a great inside player. Frank Delehanty, who will be the guardian of left field, was purchased from the New York Highlanders. He promises to become one of the locals' chief run getters. He covers plenty of territory, is a good hitter and speedy on the base paths.

* * *

Hugh Tate, who played last year with Marion, of the O. and P. League, will likely be used as a utility player on account of his hitting. As a fielder and baserunner he has much to learn. The other players will be let out. When Manager Peitz wields the ax, the heads of Pitchers Kaufman, Decanniere, Chabek and probably Packard; Catcher Miller; Infielders Kunkle and Kemmer, and Outfielder Harley will likely fall. There is still a chance to get Joe Stanley or another good man from the Chicago Cubs to play with the Colonels between now and June 1.

The Colonels who will clash with the Senators will be stronger from all angles of the game. Manager Peitz says the inside playing of the locals will be fully as effective as last season in both offensive and defensive. By the acquisition of Delehanty, Dunleavy, Landreth and Olson, the batting has been improved. The baserunning will be equally as good as in 1908. Manager Peitz declares that the team will be in the fight from start to finish; that the Colonels will do as well this year as last, which means first or second place in the struggle for the A. A. flag.

The batting order and lineup of the Colonels on the opening day will, barring accidents or illness, be as follows: Dunleavy c. f., Woodruff 3b., Delehanty l. f., Landreth or Tate r. f., Sullivan 1b., Olson 2b., Quinlan s. s., Peitz c., Halla p.

* * *

Tom Chivington, general manager of the Colonels, said:

"Nothing but unusual bad luck can keep the Louisville team from being a conspicuous factor in the 1909 pennant race. The Western clubs have all strengthened considerably, but they needed to do so in order to keep in the running. None of the Eastern teams have done any more than Louisville toward bracing weak spots, and the outcome of last year's race showed that the Colonels were quite as strong as any team in the league.

"Louisville will have more good pitchers, a faster infield, as much or more speed on the bases and a better batting team. The team has lost nothing in baseball brains, which was an important item in the success of last year.

"The men are for the better part in good condition, and the best spirit prevails. Manager Peitz is not only respected and liked by the players, but he is proving himself to be a much stricter leader than was expected.

"Contrary to reports that have been sent around the circuit from here, the Louisville fans are enthusiastic over the team, and if we get away well they will give us the same generous support that they extended last season."

* * *

Field Manager Peitz said:

"I won't attempt to make any prediction what position the Colonels will occupy when the curtain falls on the 1909 American Association race. However, I will say that the team which will beat us out will be the winners of the pennant. I intend to hustle hard and have my men to fight every inch of the way. It is my candid opinion that the club which will represent Louisville this year is strong in every department.

"I have a good staff of pitchers. My outfield, with Landreth in right, which he will play when he gets in shape, will, in my estimation, be stronger than last season. Of course, we will miss Joe Stanley, but I believe that Dunleavy, who will play center field, will prove to be a good man for the Colonels. He has already demonstrated in the few exhibition games that he will help me in earning many a victory.

"My infield, with Woodruff at third, and Olson at second, ought to prove a stone wall. I intend to do practically all of the catching unless I get hurt. While my men, on account of the weather, have not succeeded in getting all the practice they needed, they will be in fair shape to start next Wednesday."

* * *

Signing ballplayers to a two or three-year contract saves a clubowner considerable worry every year. Last year Ty Cobb was causing all sorts of trouble for the Detroit Club because he refused to sign. On account of his good work during the season, sentiment naturally favored the player, and there was much adverse criticism heaped on the club. Finally the club acceded to his demands, but took the precaution to sign its star to a two-year contract. The result was that little or nothing has been heard from Cobb since the season closed, and the fact that he is satisfied must have had a good effect on the other members of the team.

Had Comiskey taken the same precaution with Fielder Jones, he would not now be speculating on who is to manage his team the coming season, or who will play center field.

* * *

From the way Bush is working and the way he is heeding advice, he should give Conroy and Schaefer somewhat of a contest for first honors in leading off.

Matty McIntyre gets a fairly good lead and George Moriarty is in the same way. Beckendorf and Stanage are coming around and Jennings is spending a lot of time teaching the two catchers the art of leaving the bag and starting for the next base.

Davy Jones, as speedy as any man in baseball, finds himself running in the hardest kind of luck. There's hardly ever an instance when Davy is caught that it is not by the least fraction of a second. Dave and the ball always seem to reach a base at the same time.

The Tigers are improving. They'll be off and away in grand style if they keep up their present work.

* * *

Schaefer uses his fund of humor to advantage. He never gets on base but that he begins gossiping with the baseman. He cracks a joke or begins a funny story, and the man guarding the bag becomes interested. Schaefer strengthens this interest, and while he is strengthening it the distance between Herman and the bag is always increasing.

Herman, with all his wit, however, doesn't seem able to get as big a lead as Conroy. "Wid" doesn't spend much time "kidding" the basemen, but he's always far off the bag.

Davy Jones does not get a big lead, and Cobb's are hardly ever much out of the ordinary. Neither does Sam Crawford lead off any sort of distance. "Ownie" Bush is beginning to get down toward the next bag and taking chances. He is making good, too. The kid is a mighty small chap, and he is learning to slide beautifully.

In one of the practice games here the other day "Ownie" was leading far off the bag. He was smiling at the pitcher and that grin of "Ownie's" is enough to tantalize most any twirler. It was in a pinch and Bush was standing, pigeon-toed, arms outstretched, moving his body nervously.

The twirler shot the ball to first. The ball had Bush beaten by a foot, but he succeeded in twisting his small body around in the rear of the baseman, touching the bag and turning over. The ball was returned to the box and the Tiger shortstop again gained his lead. Again the pitcher threw and this time Bush beat the ball. He led off again and so for six times he was far off and beat the baseman before Crawford spanked one to third and the fielder found that Ownie had the second base well in reach when he whirled to throw.

* * *

"Wid" Conroy, considered by many to be the best utility infielder in the American League, gets a bigger lead off the bags than any other man, writes a special correspondent to the Detroit Journal from San Antonio, Tex. Herman Schaefer comes second in this feature of base running.

"How Conroy does it I never could find out. I don't believe that anyone can just figure it out," said Joe Cantillon in discussing base running.

"If Davy Jones could get as big a lead as Conroy gets there is probably nothing that could stop him," remarked "Hughie" Jennings.

Conroy hardly ever gets caught. He is away off the bags all the time. He can get back almost any time the catcher, pitcher or infielders whip the ball across in an effort to catch him napping.

With Schaefer there is a solution. Almost any ballplayer can tell you why Herman always succeeds in getting a big lead. There isn't a better clown in baseball to-day than Schaefer, and the German is one of the most popular players in the game. All the players like Herman for the things he says as much as anything else. He has a sense of humor that is real. He is amusing at almost all times. There is never an occasion when Schaefer can't come through with a clever remark.

* * *

Joe Cantillon said to O'Leary, the Detroit shortstop:

"Well, Charley, what'll you have to eat? What can we get ready for you?"

"My bunk," drawled O'Leary, and his head dropped, heavy with sleep.

Cantillon told this incident of one day's hunt. He had stationed O'Leary and another member of the party at a certain point where he believed the geese would come. Cantillon went some distance away and waited.

"Pretty soon," said Joe, "I saw the geese coming. There must have been at least 500 of them. I thought they would knock the two over. I yelled to them and told them to look out for the flock.

"On came the geese, closer and closer. I was getting impatient. I could see O'Leary and the other boy standing there talking. For a time they discussed whether they would shoot or not. The geese were swarming all around them. Finally they decided to shoot and they didn't do a thing but blow up two wooden decoys for me."

* * *

Since they joined the Tigers neither Charley O'Leary nor Herman Schaefer has had much to say about the houseboat parties which Joe Cantillon gives along the Mississippi River annually and to which the two Tigers are generally invited. When Joe broke into the Tiger camp with his regiment the other day he turned loose a lot of houseboat secrets.

Charley has been trying to do a lot of explaining ever since Joe was in town.

In the first place, Charley was pretty much of a tenderfoot, and that covers many of the sins he committed, but none the less his crimes are such that will live.

The night before the first day's hunt Cantillon suggested that the party turn to bunks at 9 o'clock. Not for Charley. He was strong for opening a bridge whist party and playing till 1 o'clock in the morning. Joe being the host and Charley the guest, Joe consented. So they played cards till early morning.

Charley was awakened from his sleep by the voice of Joe. The Washington manager could not be seen. He was telling Charley to get up. Joe lit a candle and Charley dressed. The other members of the party were all ready.

They started. Charley was given the lantern. They walked for miles and miles. Finally daylight came, but no geese, for it was geese they were after that day.

Joe finally told Charley to dig a pit. He gave him a gun and told him to stay in the pit till the geese came.

"I knew that a goose wouldn't come there in a million years," remarked Cantillon as he was telling the story.

Well, Charley didn't see any more of the party till after 4 o'clock in the afternoon. He was still watching for the geese.

PRESIDENT HARRY PULLIAM UNDERGOES OPERATION.

Nashville, April 10.—President Harry Pulliam, of the National League, has undergone a successful operation on his left eye. Mr. Pulliam will remain here several days and then go to Cincinnati. He does not know when he will report for work. He has gained fourteen pounds in the past month and is looking well.

LOUISVILLE PLAYER TO JOIN ALBANY BALL CLUB AT ONCE

Andy Reiss, a Louisville boy who has signed with the Albany club of the New York State League, will leave to-day to join his club at Baltimore, Md., where it is now in training. Reiss will have no trouble making good, as he has all the earmarks of a comer.

Latest reports anent Seymour are to the effect that he is daily getting back into the graces of John McGraw and there isn't a chance that he won't be in the Giants' garden at the start.

Advertising Can't Take the Place of Tailoring.

Ready-made and cheaply tailored clothes were originally planned for men who could not afford to wear real merchant tailoring. It was never in the thoughts of the first manufacturers to compete with the merchant tailor. Ready-made clothes are still unable to compete with good merchant tailoring. Claims do not make proofs—a desire to supplant does not mean the ability to do so, and ten million pages of advertising and all the imagination of the manufacturer, the writer and the artist combined can not overcome the basic law that will always make it impossible for ready-made or cheaply tailored clothes to fit—the law of nature that she never makes anything exactly like something else. And as long as all men vary a little bit from all other men, just so long will suits of clothes produced in thousand lots, without a single variation in their proportion, fail to fit and satisfy their wearers.

COLONELS LOSE TO CARDINALS

Fist Fight Between Lush and Osteen Is Narrowly Averted.

PLAYERS PATCH UP TROUBLE.

Big Leaguers Out-Hit the Locals, But Show Very Little Championship Form.

LAST EXHIBITION TO-DAY.

ROGER BRESNAHAN, the new manager of the St. Louis team of the National League, who last season was the star backstop of the New York Giants, will probably have his troubles during the coming season. This was indicated at Eclipse Park late yesterday afternoon when a near-fist fight occurred between two of his best players immediately after the game between the Cardinals and Colonels. The score of the game was 6 to 2 in favor of St. Louis.

Manager Bresnahan had gone outside the park and climbed in the omnibus before the game ended because it was a foregone conclusion that his team would win. When the last man had been retired, however, the St. Louis players scampered for the visitors' bench. Just before they arrived there Shortstop Osteen swung his right heavily at Pitcher Lush's jaw. He missed the objective point by a narrow margin, and Lush, who had officiated at the slab for the Cardinals, swung back at the little shortstop, but no blows were struck. First-baseman Konetchy got hold of Osteen and almost tore his sweater in an attempt to prevent him from fighting. Joe Delehanty, the Cardinals' left fielder, and Catcher Phelps grabbed Pitcher Lush with a similar end in view, but for two or three minutes there were lively times around the visiting players' bench because both Osteen and Lush really wanted to fight. Several policemen interfered at this point and the belligerent players were finally persuaded to go to the 'bus without any damage having been done.

What the trouble was between the two St. Louis ballplayers is something that none of the Cardinals would talk about, but several of them admitted that the friction was of considerable standing. The fans are little interested in affairs of this kind, but the fact that this feeling existed between members of the team does not augur well for its success nor for Manager Bresnahan's peace of mind during the approaching season. Bresnahan is a great ballplayer and this is his first opportunity to shine as a leader. A number of splendid players, who belonged to the St. Louis club, were traded to New York for him, and he is to receive a magnificent salary for his services as manager.

Last night, however, the players all claimed that the trouble had been patched, and Lush and Osteen undoubtedly shook hands and declared they would forget their little run-in. Both appeared sorry for what had happened.

Outbatted, but not outclassed, the Colonels dropped the first game to the St. Louis Nationals. The Cardinals, by bunching their hits in two innings, the first and sixth, accumulated enough runs to gain a victory over the locals. Peitz's players batted almost as well as did the visitors, but they could not wallop the ball safely at opportune times.

The Colonels outfielded the Cardinals. In fact, the locals showed better form in almost every department of the game. Durham and Selby, who officiated at the slab for the home team, had no trouble in holding Bresnahan's men down. With the exception of two innings the National leaguers were unable to make but two safe hits, one off of Durham and the other off Selby. Both twirlers were accorded almost perfect support. The only misplay was a wide throw by Quinlan which pulled Sullivan away from the bag.

The Colonels inability to hit consecutively was largely due to the twirling of Lush. Bresnahan's youngster was the chief stumbling block to the locals' chances of winning yesterday. The Cardinals' slabman fanned seven of Peitz's players. The visiting mound performer had splendid control of the ball. He only gave two bases on balls. Woodruff drew both of them.

The weather was almost at the freezing point and the small band of rooters tried hard to keep warm. Despite the raw conditions the players on both sides played a lively game. The feature of the contest was the third-base playing of Woodruff.

Woody covered his territory in faultless style. He had five chances and most of them were difficult. The performance of Byrne, at third base for the Cardinals, was of the saffron order.

The Cardinals secured two runs in the opening round. Byrne, the first man to face Pitcher Durham, was an easy out from Durham to Sullivan. Shaw was given a life when Quinlan threw wide to first, pulling Suter away from the bag. Shaw took second on Miller's passed ball, and scored on Konetchy's clean single to center. The big first baseman took second when Dunleavy foolishly threw the ball to the plate trying to catch Shaw. Evans was given base on balls. Konetchy tallied on J. Delehanty's safe drive to the middle garden. Charles closed the inning on his fly ball to left. The Colonels in this inning also made a run. Dunleavy perished at the initial corner, Charles assisting. Woodruff walked and reached second on Frank Delehanty's nice bingle to right. Tate's high fly ball was squeezed by Shaw. Sullivan batted one to third, and on Byrne's bad throw to first Woodruff crossed the plate, coming from second base. Olson stopped further chance of scoring by being called out on strikes.

The second inning was unproductive of any runs to either side. The visitors were retired in order. The locals, with the exception of Miller's single to left, were struck out by Pitcher Lush. In the third frame Bresnahan's men failed to reach the initial cushion. Peitz's players were unable to do anything, although Tate laced out a safe one to right. He was out trying to pilfer second. It was the same for the Cardinals in the fourth, and the Colonels were also blanked, although a double play destroyed their chances of scoring, when Olson reached first on Byrne's second misplay and Quinlan drove a liner into Charles' mitts.

In the fifth session, after Osteen was out, pitcher to first. Lush bingled to left. Byrne walked. Shaw flied out to center. Phelps also flied out to left. The locals failed to see first base in their half of the fifth. Peitz batted for Durham. With Selby at plate Konetchy started the sixth with a safety to center and he reached third on Evans' scratch double to right. J. Delehanty walked. With three men on bases Konetchy scored while Olson and Sullivan retired Charles. Osteen singled and Evans and J. Delehanty tallied. Lush pounded a safe one to right and Osteen crossed the plate and Lush took second. Byrne slapped the sphere safely to left and Lush was out at the plate trying to score, Frank Delehanty to Miller. Shaw grounded out to Sullivan, and this checked further run getting for this round. In this round Woody walked. Frank Delehanty perched on first on Byrne's third miscue. Tate flied out to center and Sullivan hit into a double play, which retired the side.

The Cardinals in the seventh were retired in order. The Colonels were more fortunate. One run was the total of their efforts. Olson's Texas leaguer in right fell safe. Quinlan walked. Miller hit the ball toward third and all hands were safe. Selby fanned. Dunleavy sacrificed second to first, and Olson tallied. Woody died at first, Charles assisting. This retired the side and left three men on bases.

The visitors were quickly disposed of in their half of the eighth. The locals also drew a blank despite the fact that Tate sent a savage single toward middle field. In the last inning both sides failed to cross the plate. However, Byrne was on first, due to his slashing drive to left for the National leaguers and Hughes, who batted for Selby, was hit by a pitched ball, and Dunleavy dumped a safe one over short for the Colonels, were left on bases. Pitcher Lush fanned seven of the Colonels in yesterday's engagement.

* * *

The weather was clear but cold. As a result only a small crowd witnessed the defeat of Peitz's men.

* * *

The locals were unable to locate Lush's offerings with men on bases.

* * *

Byrne, who covered third base for the visitors, was decidedly saffron in his playing yesterday. He was guilty of three misplays, although bad throws. He also used poor judgment in trying to nab Olson when he should have hurled the ball to first to retire Miller.

* * *

The Delehanty brothers, Frank and Joe, each made a safe hit. Both fielded their positions in faultless style.

* * *

Woodruff's third base playing was the feature of the game. He had five assists, most of them difficult chances.

* * *

Lush and Osteen have not been on good terms during the training period.

* * *

The sixth inning proved to be the undoing of the Colonels. Selby, who took Durham's place at the slab, was touched up in a lively fashion. The visitors secured five safe hits, one of which was a double, and four runs.

* * *

Many of the fans who witnessed the contest yesterday declared that the Colonels have a better team than the Cardinals, in spite of the fact that the locals lost.

* * *

Judging from their performance in the first game with Peitz's men the St. Louis Nationals will not cut much figure in the National League race. The team is probably a little stronger with Bresnahan behind the plate.

* * *

Second Baseman Charles played a nice game yesterday. He had nine chances and accepted all of them in a clean fashion.

* * *

Frank Delehanty did not feel well and was forced to leave the game after the eighth inning. Honus Kunkle went to third and Woodruff took charge of left field.

* * *

Miller and Tate each secured two safe bingles.

* * *

Barring two innings the Cardinals were unable to do anything with the deliveries of Durham and Selby.

* * *

Jimmy Durham twirled a splendid game regardless of the fact that this was his first attempt this spring. He let the big fellows down with three safe licks. Five hits were all Bresnahan's men got from Selby. These were grabbed in one round.

* * *

Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Cardinals, says his men are in good shape to start the season. He declined to state what position his team will occupy at the end of the National League race. However, it is understood that the Mound City chaps do not figure on landing higher than sixth place, the Brooklyns and Boston Doves to trail behind them.

* * *

If the Cardinals expect to keep out of last place this year they will have to show better form than they did here yesterday. They do not look very strong.

* * *

It is claimed by Secretary Seekamp, of the St. Louis Nationals, that yesterday was the first nice day the Cardinals have had for over a week.

* * *

Manager Peitz batted for Durham in the fifth, but the best he could do was to knock a fly ball to right field.

* * *

"Walsh received the best of treatment from me," declares Comiskey, "and I can see no reason why he is working this hold-out game with me. I am sorry, but he ought to know that he isn't fooling with a minor leaguer when he starts to deal with me. You can say that we have not come to terms. If he doesn't accept my figures the big fellow will be missing from the Southside grounds."

* * *

Those who have seen Frank Chance say he's not worrying a bit about Johnny Kling not returning to the Cubs. Chance, 'tis said, is sure that Kling will be in line all right at the opening.

* * *

Armour will doubtless cut his Toledo pitching staff to six men and the catchers to two. Wilkie Clark is looked on as the man who will help Fred Abbott behind the bat.

* * *

"Baserunning in the big leagues isn't what it used to be," says Billy Hamilton, the old-time champion. "Nowadays pitchers can't make those balking feints, and it's easier for the runners to get away. But they won't take the chances we used to take, and the prettiest feature of baseball is not developing as it should."

* * *

Stallings again goes out of his way to deny that he is expecting any deal that will take Third Baseman Elberfeld from the Highlanders. Nevertheless, the rumor that Cleveland wants him badly is persistent.

* * *

President Armour, of Toledo, has commissioned Bade Myers, of the Dayton team, to look out for promising Central League players for him this season.

* * *

Pitcher Leroy, the Indian twirler, who has been the mainstay in the box for St. Paul for the past few seasons, is in great shape this year. He did not allow Little Rock a hit in the five innings he pitched yesterday.

* * *

The Cleveland club is to ask for waivers on five more players at once, but Manager Lajoie refuses to give out the names. Andrada, Foster and Gough, all pitchers, have already been dropped. Joss is slated to pitch the opening game at St. Louis. Catcher Bemis reports that he will be in condition to play. Terry Turner expects to play in the opening game.

* * *

A Detroit man has the St. Louis Browns sized up as a team of veterans, verging on the "has-been" order. He points out the fact that every member of McAleer's club is a veteran and that there is no telling when they will go to pieces.

* * *

Paddy Livingston has signed to catch and manage a semi-professional team in Cleveland. The terms are such that with what he earns at his work he will easily make more than $75 a week, the amount Indianapolis offered him.

* * *

Outfielder Hoey, whom St. Paul secured from the Boston Americans, is hitting the ball like a Wagner for Manager Kelley. He made a home run, double and single out of five chances at the bat recently.

* * *

Patsy Donovan, who will take Fred Lake's place as eastern scout for the Boston Americans this year, already is lining up his ideas of the coming young players.

* * *

Clark Griffith says that Murphy can't have any of the Reds he is after without making trade for such men as Tinker, Hofman or Evers. That's why Murphy didn't stay in Cincinnati more than a few hours.

* * *

Third Baseman Shipke, of the Washingtons, received the good news upon reaching Cincinnati that he has been reinstated by the national commission. He was among the bunch of players who were declared ineligible for playing against the Logan Squares in Chicago last fall. A fine of $50 was inflicted on him, upon payment of which he will be eligible to start the championship season next Monday.

* * *

The White Sox will train in California again next spring. Comiskey has signed up for one more year on the coast. After that he may consider a proposition to work out with the Reds at Hot Springs.

* * *

The White Sox players are pretty well rested up from their long trip across the country and are reported to be in fine shape for the opening.

* * *

Coakley, said to have made his peace with Frank Chance, is expected every day by the Cubs, but at last accounts hadn't appeared.

* * *

McAleer still has "Ty" Cobb's young brother on contract, but hasn't been successful in disposing of him to any minor league club. The youngster is said to be far below the wonderful "Ty's" caliber.

Michigan Beats Kentucky State.

Lexington, Ky., April 10.—(Special.)—In a clean, fast game, the University of Michigan baseball team shut out the State University this afternoon by a score of 10 to 0. It was simply a case of a State getting out of its class, as the score shows.

Caudill pitched a strong game, but his team could not support him against so strong a team. On the other hand, the teamwork of the visitors was almost perfect, and at no time did the State team have a chance to score. The Michigan team left at 10 o'clock to-night over the L. and N. for Knoxville, Tenn., where it will play the University of Tennessee Monday.

Evansvilles Down Brooklyn.

Evansville, Ind., April 10.—(Special.)—The Brooklyn Colts and Evansville Central League team played a close game this afternoon. Cold weather kept the players busy keeping warm. A home run in the third inning, with two on bases, scored Brooklyn's only runs. Score:

Eastern Leaguers Lose To Highlanders.

Jersey City, N. J., April 10.—The New York Americans defeated the Jersey City Eastern Leaguers to-day by a score of 3 to 2. Ernest Courtney, Jersey City's third baseman, broke his ankle sliding to second in the first inning. Before the New York players were allowed on the field they were inspected by Dr. John E. Craven, of the Jersey City Board of Health. As a result Ward, Warhop, Ford, Engle and Austin were vaccinated. Score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R.	H.	E.

Central University Team Wins.

TROTTERS WORKING WELL AT FAIR GROUNDS TRACK.

The promoters of the trotting meet, which will be held here next July, are meeting with much encouragement. A good many high-class horses are being entered, and as this is the first meeting held here in recent years local trotting enthusiasts are taking considerable interest in the event. There are at present fifty head of horses now in training at the Fair Grounds. C. J. Selvage, who has a public training stable at the track, has a classy 2-year-old filly now in training. She is the property of W. L. Lyons and is by Wilask. She is entered in $60,000 worth of stakes this year, and her trainer expects her to make a splendid showing.

The roadway to the Fair Grounds is now open, having been closed for a long time on account of the building of the new Southern outfall sewer. Among the horses that will arrive next week will be George Lindenburger's fast green mare and another good one belonging to Mr. Hagg, of New Orleans. Both of these horses will be trained by M. J. Selvage. Messrs. Smyser, Lyons, DeRidder and others were visitors at the track last week watching the workouts. The stable of the Smyser Bros. will arrive this week from the winter quarters in the country and will be put into training at once.

JAY GOULD DEFENDS HIS TITLE AT TENNIS.

Boston, April 10.—Jay Gould, the international and national amateur court tennis champion, successfully defended his title of American champion in a hard-fought contest with Joshua Crane, of this city, on the courts of the Tennis and Racquet Club to-day. The match was witnessed by a large gathering of fellow-members in the club of Mr. Crane. He forced the first set to Vantage and took the second very handily, but after that Mr. Gould settled down to steady play and won the next two sets. The scores were 6-5, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

In the first set Mr. Gould won out with his difficult service, but he was unable to do much with his opponent in the second, and lost it. In the third he rallied strongly and soon had the set well in hand, continuing his work through the fourth, which gave him the victory. Mr. Crane has won the championship several years. Until the entry of Mr. Gould upon the sport he was one of the best experts in this country.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB TO GOVERN MOTORBOAT RACES.

New York, April 10.—By the terms of an agreement entered into to-day between the Automobile Club of America, the Motorboat Club of America and the Larchmant Yacht Club, all international motorboat events held in United States waters are to be governed hereafter by the Automobile Club of America.

The Motorboat Club becomes the Motorboat Section of the A. C. A., while the Larchmont Yacht Club secures for the waters adjacent to Larchmont harbor all motorboat races of international character to be held in the vicinity of New York. This, however, is not to affect arrangements already made for the 1909 race for the Harmsworth Cup.

ANOTHER FRENCHMAN WINS ANOTHER MARATHON RACE.

Boston, Mass., April 10.—Louis Orphee, a Frenchman, won Boston's first professional Marathon race to-day, defeating Patrick Dineen, of South Boston, by 2½ laps. Arphee's time was 2:51:37, about eleven minutes slower than St. Yves' time at New York a week ago.

Pedestrian Weston At Toledo.

Toledo, O., April 10.—Edward Payson Weston, the pedestrian, reached Toledo at 7:20 to-night. He is in good condition after covering fifty-three miles to-day. Sunday afternoon Weston will lecture at Memorial Hall and will leave Toledo at 12:05 a. m. Monday. He will spend Monday night at Bryan, fifty miles west.

St. Yves Defeats Maloney.

Providence, April 10.—Henri St. Yves, the winner of the $10,000 Marathon derby in New York last Saturday, to-day defeated Matt Maloney, of Yonkers, N. Y., in a twenty-mile race at the Eastern League Baseball Park by three laps and twenty-five yards. Time, 2:02:02.

Financial and Commercial

MONETARY.

Saturday Evening, April 10.—The surplus reserves of New York clearing-house banks decreased $3,947,800 during the past week, due largely to increased speculation in stocks. Loans increased $11,423,400 and deposits $8,747,200, the latter increase enhancing reserve requirements $2,196,800, and cash decreased $1,761,000. The New York quotations for money showed no change, call loans renewing at 1½@1¾ per cent. and time funds being abundant at 2¾@3 for six months.

Important changes were reported by the Banks of England and France in consequence of the quarterly settlements. The London institution lost $14,000,000 reserves, increased its circulation by $3,000,000, reduced its loans by $13,500,000 and its note reserve by fully as much, while public deposits fell no less than $24,500,000. The loss in reserve equaled 1¼ per cent., reducing the proportion to 47⅞ per cent. The French bank lost almost $2,000,000 in gold, but reduced its discounts by fully $17,000,000. Next week's returns are certain to be more favorable. It must be remembered that the Bank of England rate is now 2½ per cent., against 3 per cent. a year ago, 4½ per cent. two years ago, and from 3 to 4 per cent. in all recent years with the exception of 1905, when the rate was the same as it is to-day. The London bank may have difficulty in maintaining its present rate during the summer.

There has been a better demand for money in the local market and some institutions have been able to make sharp reductions in their surplus reserves. Interest rates range between 5 and 6 per cent., with a firmer feeling. New York exchange is quoted at 25@40c premium.

The Northern Texas Electric Company saved $4,732 for the surplus over charges out of a gain in gross earnings of $11,349 during the month of February. The surplus was at the rate of 6 per cent. on the preferred stock and 2.3 per cent. on the common. The surplus for the twelve months ending February 28 was equal to the preferred dividend of 6 per cent. and 4.6 per cent. on the common. The statement:

*Decrease.

The London Bankers' Magazine shows that the aggregate valuations of 387 representative British securities between February 20 and the same date in March decreased to the extent of £57,809,060, or 1.58 per cent. The depreciation is attributed to the course of events in the near East and, more recently, to the state of affairs disclosed in the debate in the House of Commons on the navy estimates.

Toledo Railways and Light Company's gross earnings for the first week of April were $27,367, an increase of $2,591.

It is reported that many Chicago banks are willing to place loans on good collateral over the summer at 3½ per cent.

The Daily Bond Buyer estimates the sales of municipal bonds in March at $33,266,840, against $24,859,792 in March, 1908, $14,978,216 in the corresponding month in 1907 and $58,915,406 in 1906.

Directors of the American Light and Traction Company have declared the regular quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent. on the preferred stock and 2 per cent. on the common stock, both payable May 1. The Board of Directors confirmed the action of the Executive Committee in voting to pay on November 1 next an extra stock dividend of 10 per cent. to holders of common stock. This extra distribution will be made annually as long as earnings justify it.

Traffic of the Chicago Subway Company in March was 6,900 carloads of freight in excess of the February showing made by the company's tunnels. It is announced that at a recent meeting of representatives of the Western railroad lines they authorized the application of Chicago rates for industries having connections with the tunnels on the same basis as those of the belt lines. The railroads have already filed their tariff schedules in this connection. By this arrangement, which becomes effective May 15, it is indicated that the tunnel system is becoming recognized as an industrial railroad system, which will result in increased earnings for the Subway company.

Bradstreet's approximate index number of commodity prices on April 1, 1909, was $8.3157, which makes a gain of 1.2 per cent. over March 1, of 3.1 per cent. over April 1 a year ago and of 7.6 per cent. over June 1, 1908, the lowest point reached of recent years. Compared with March 1, 1907, the highest point of the last seventeen years, the present index number shows a decline of 8.9 per cent. Compared with the low point made after the 1903-1904 depression the present index number shows an advance of 9 per cent., and the advance from the low point of 1896 is fully 45 per cent.

From whatever standpoint the statistics of commercial failures for the first quarter this year are studied, convincing proof is shown of the great advance made in recent years in the administration and protection of credits. The classification of failures by branches of business for March, according to the reports of R. G. Dun & Co., shows that in twenty-three of the thirty-one classifications given the liabilities were less for the month in 1909 than in 1908, while in 1908 only three of the classes reported liabilities less than in 1907. A feature of the exhibit is the heavy defaults in iron foundries and nails and machinery and tools. The total liabilities in these two classes in March, 1909, amounted to $1,572,354, against $704,303 in 1908, this big increase from last year being a clear reflection of the unsettled conditions existing in the iron and steel trade. Outside of the showing made in these two classes the record for the month and the quarter is exceeding favorable.

Regarding the New York stock market Henry Clews says: "The immediate outlook for the market is favorable; all known drawbacks have been amply discounted and the abnormal supply of cheap money will render it easy for market manipulators to create a more active and stronger market. It must be remembered also that important new issues are pending and that it is to the advantage of the great banking interests to have the market wear a buoyant and more active appearance. The situation, however, as already shown, has its unsatisfactory elements, and while indulging in cheerful expectations regarding the future we can only advise the taking of some profits on the vigorously pronounced rallies."

Weekly Bank Statement.

New York, April 10.—The statement of clearing-house banks for the week (five days) shows that the banks hold $10,038,025 more than the requirements of the 25 per cent. reserve rule. This is a decrease of $3,947,800 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week. The statement follows:

		Increase.
Loans	$1,420,945,600	$11,423,400
Deposits	1,384,715,900	8,747,200
Circulation	48,964,600	251,000
Legal tenders	77,138,400	*1,434,500
Specie	274,078,600	*326,500
Reserve	351,217,000	*1,761,000
Reserve required	341,178,975	2,196,800
Surplus	10,038,025	*3,947,800
Ex-U. S. deposits	10,628,725	*3,940,825

*Decrease.

The percentage of actual reserve of the clearing-house banks to-day was 25.75.

The statement of the bank and trust companies of Greater New York not reporting to the clearing-house shows that these institutions have aggregate deposits of $1,217,933,300, total cash on hand $146,247,800 and loans amounting to $1,072,718,200.

The Financier will say: "The statement of the associated banks of the city of New York for the week ending April 10 showed an increase in several leading items and a slight decrease in surplus reserve. Loans expanded $12,863,700, due principally to increased activity on the Stock Exchange for the first three days of the week and to April 1 disbursements. The increase in specie and legals amounted to $3,595,100, the banks having more than overcome the amount of gold taken for export. The deposit increase was $16,856,500. This expansion required an added reserve of something like $4,200,000, or more than the gain in cash. The result was to reduce surplus reserve by $609,025, the latter item standing on Saturday at $9,898,525. The above computation is based on actual figures of the banks, the daily average statement showing a decrease of nearly $4,000,000 in surplus reserve. The final analysis, however, does not differ materially, the cash reserve based on average conditions having been reported at 25.77 per cent., while the actual reserve amounted to 25.75 per cent. The summary of the State banks and trust companies in Greater New York not reporting to the New York clearing-house showed a reduction of $8,315,600 in loans, a decrease of $1,500,000 in cash and a decrease of $13,500,000 in net deposits."

Treasury Statement.

Washington, April 10.—To-day's statement of the Treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve, shows:

Available cash balance	$132,103,516
Gold coin and bullion	43,711,039
Gold certificates	46,492,660

FOREIGN FINANCIAL.

London, April 10.—Bullion amounting to £9,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day. Bar silver quiet at 23 7-16d per ounce. Money ¾@1 per cent. Discount rates: Short and three months' bills 1⅜@1½ per cent.

In spite of the short week of trading on the Stock Exchange prices continued to rise steadily, with increasing investment buying both for local and continental account. Cheaper money and the release of dividends assisted in the broadening of business. Foreign bonds and Argentine rails were, perhaps, the most active among foreign shares, while Indian stocks proved attractive among the British securities. Consols were quieter with an advance of ⅝, the dealers and the public evidently awaiting the receipt of the budget, which is due about April 28, before increasing their commitments therein. Speculation raised values of mining shares considerably, particularly Kaffirs and a few West African mine shares; but operators appeared to be shy in the case of copper shares, owing to the uncertain position of the metal. Business in American railroad shares has been subdued and prices see-sawed during the greater part of the week, but the tone generally was firm. New York absorbed the stocks offered here and the market closed with a net gain of from 1 to 3 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 10.—The May deal in wheat was side-tracked to-day to make way for the more distant futures, which advanced more than 3c per bushel, owing to liberal purchases by leading bulls. At the close prices were ½@3⅝c above the final quotations of the preceding session. Corn, oats and provisions also closed firm.

Purchase of a big line of the July delivery by the same interest that is credited with control of the May option was the feature of trade in the wheat pit. The September and December deliveries were also bought freely by the leading longs and their followers. This demand inspired active covering by shorts late in the day, which carried the price of the deferred futures up to new high record marks for the season. The market followed its own course throughout the entire session without respect to news of the day. Notwithstanding a firm market at Liverpool, due to decreased shipments from Argentina and Australia, the opening here was rather weak, with prices unchanged to ⅛@¼c lower compared with Thursday's final quotations. The principal holder was a moderate seller of May at the start, and this was given as the reason for the heavy tone which prevailed during the opening hour. Toward the end of the first hour the July option began to show the effect of the support by prominent bulls and during the remainder of the day the price of the future deliveries steadily advanced. Considerable excitement developed in the final half hour and prices advanced more than 1c in the last few minutes of trade. The top for July was reached at $1.15. At the same time May sold up to $1.26 and September to $1.07⅞. There was a gain during the day for July of 3½c, a low point of $1.11½ being recorded early in the session. The market closed excited and strong, with July at $1.14⅝@1.15. Final quotations on May, $1.25⅜, were ⅝c below the best mark of the day. September closed 3⅜c higher at $1.07⅜.

General selling of corn, inspired by ideal weather for farm work, caused weakness in the market for that grain early in the day, resulting in declines of more than ½c. All of the loss, however, was regained late in the session on buying brought out by the sharp bulge in wheat. The close was firm, with prices unchanged to ⅛@¼c higher compared with the previous session. May sold between 65⅝c and 66⅝c and closed at the high point.

Oats displayed slight weakness early in the day because of the weakness of corn, but became firmer in the final half of the session, in sympathy with the advance in wheat. The close was firm, with prices unchanged to ½c higher, compared with Thursday's final quotations, May being at 54⅝c.

Trade in provisions was dull and prices moved within a narrow range. A 5c advance in live hogs and the upturn in wheat had a strengthening influence. The market closed firm, with prices unchanged to 5c higher.

The leading futures ranged as follows:

GRAIN LETTERS.

Chicago.—What added to the great force in the market late in the session was the fact that there was a determined bear effort the first half hour to start a break in prices. The July option was forced back from $1.12½ to $1.11½. It looked for a time as if the prediction of the bull leader given out before the opening that the new crop months were certain to be bought on a break might not prove true. Suddenly there developed excellent support for all months from July right through to December. The sellers of the morning found themselves in a hole and naturally there was a large volume of covering. Prices responded with a good upturn before the end of the first hour. Then the trade had the additional bull feature of very bad crop news from Missouri. Our Mr. Inglis wired from Kansas City that the western part of Missouri is in very bad shape, and it will be a miracle if more than half the fields produce a crop this year. Other crop observers in the same State were sending claims of 25 to 50 per cent. damage in important sections. These advices came on top of the very doubtful crop reports from Southern Illinois yesterday and this morning. Leaders in the Northwest wired that it is getting dry, and they may be bulling wheat on poor spring start in the near future. Omaha reported sales of wheat to Denver and predicted that not much more Western wheat will come to Chicago. During the last hour of the session the buying force was enormous and prices advanced in a way not before recorded during the bull campaign. The action of the market to-day is likely to give the wheat trade of the world an idea of the unusual commercial and crop conditions existing in this country. Light receipts, bullish feeling among corn raisers West and the strong position of wheat are features which intervened to prevent any further break in corn to-day.—(Logan & Bryan.) W. L. Lyons & Co.

ACTUAL BUSINESS TRAINING SCHOOL.
Young men, with us, are not students, plodding through theory—they actually KEEP books, from start to finish! They DO everything—draw up, negotiate and enter every single business paper—intelligently understand all the different forms of notes, acceptances, etc.—become skilled in modern, quick ways of making each entry a photograph of the transaction. No classes! Each one is a bookkeeper, separate and distinct, taught individually. The teacher has been an expert accountant for 44 years, doing work all over the State. We instruct the same as if we were directing 30 or 40 bookkeepers in the same room, each for a different firm, and different line of business. The teacher claims to have the natural ability to make a young man a PRACTICAL bookkeeper all around. No theory! No textbooks! No copying! When you get through with us the Main-st. business men will take OUR certificate, without a word! Ask ANY of them—they know me! Just a certain number, and no more, will be received.

FINE WORK OF HORSES ON METROPOLITAN TRACKS

THE Gravesend track was fast yesterday morning and a large number were out working over it, says the New York Telegraph.

James McLaughlin was out early with his 3-year-old set, Great Jubilee, Personal and Arondack. The first named worked alone six furlongs in 1:18¾. The fillies worked together seven furlongs in 1:33. Both could run and showed they are not far from racing form. Campaigner went a nice mile in 1:46½. Lally went the same route in 1:50. The 2-year-olds, Fauntleroy, Dress Parade II. and Brookline, had a nice warming-up gallop and worked a half in :52.

The Harris Delisma fillies worked a half hard held all the way in :53.

Rogers had Raquel work five furlongs in 1:04.

Markham, in the Warren string, went seven furlongs in 1:36.

Dan Winslow had The Gardener and Witching Hour work six furlongs in 1:19. Both could run fast if wanted. The fillies Indomitable, San Souci and Mombassa were galloped a mile and then worked six furlongs in 1:18 1-5. Miss Knickerbocker and Our Nugget were sent a half in :53½.

George Cornell had Golconda work seven furlongs in 1:32¾. Obadiah went the six-furlong route in 1:18½.

W. C. Daly had his black 3-year-old, Albertina, worked six furlongs in 1:17 2-5. Grace Cameron went a mile in 1:45½.

Henry Walker had Miss Divorgoda work a half in :51½. Miss Voter went the same distance in :51.

Thomas Welsh, Hynes, Con Leighton, Bauer and Matt Allen had out their full sets doing galloping work.

The Bay track was good and fast, especially the yearling track. James Rowe was early on hand with his old set. Celt was the leader of Ultimus, Henley, Sunbury, Casque and Turncoat. All were galloped in a bunch and then passed out to work. They all worked a half in :50. Maskette, who went alone, turned a half in :57, hard held. The 2-year-olds Gressmere, Herdman, Sweep, Black Gnat, Degree and Flushing were all galloped.

Frank Frisbee had Effendi and Rosimoro work along six furlongs in 1:18 4-5.

Frank Gardner had Statesman work five furlongs in 1:04½. Brother Jonathan and Hoffman went six furlongs in 1:20. Cliff Edge did the same route in 1:19. The stable's 2-year-olds went three furlongs in :39.

Simon Healey had the Cassatt 2-year-olds out with Dreamer, Brilliancy, Layminister, Bardminister and Little Friend all were galloped, as was Choirmaster of Chesterbrook. Dreamer went a half in :56. The old fellow was fighting for his head all the way.

Starrita had Queen Marguerite work a half in :51½.

George Odom sent Trance six furlongs in 1:19. Traveler, Constellation and Bonnie Kelso were worked a half in :53½. Nimbus reeled off five furlongs in 1:05.

Jacob Pincus had Sententious work three furlongs in :42.

The Bradley stable, outside of Sheepshead Bay track, is being put in readiness.

Enoch Wishard arrived yesterday from Oakland, where he was training and racing the Spreckels horses all winter. He sold out all of the string and came home without a horse. He has five to get which are turned out at John Hyne's farm.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM WINS.

Local Players Go To Franklin, Ind., and Score a 3 To 2 Victory Over Hoosiers.

The High School baseball team yesterday repeated its victory of last season over Franklin College, of Franklin, Ind. The locals bearded the collegians on their own diamond and got away with the long end of a 3 to 2 score. The game was just as close as the score indicates, although the High School boys got a little the worst of the umpiring, which beat them out of a run or two. Abbett, the Purple's star freshman twirler, had the college boys at his mercy after the first inning, when they bunched two hits with a base on balls. Capt. Rieser's boys, on the other hand, knocked one twirler off the slab in the fifth inning, but were able to do very little with Capt. Beam, the big pitcher who worked in the remaining four rounds.

High School played a brilliant fielding game, their lone error being decidedly excusable. The infield especially, composed of Rieser, De Hart, Dosker and Foley, played remarkable ball, accepting thirty-two out of thirty-three chances offered. The outfield chances were well taken care of by Coleman, Green, Roth and Wymond, while both Stites and Brzozowski worked behind the bat.

Thus far the Purple has played three games—all against college teams—and won two, which augurs well for the season's work. The boys are confident of taking both games of next Saturday's double bill at High School Park with the College of Dentistry and the University of Louisville. The score of yesterday's game follows:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R.	H.	E.
Franklin College	1	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	2	5	3

Batteries: High School—Abbett, Stites and Brzozowski. Franklin—Moran, Beam and Ritchey.

Barbourville, Ky., April 10.—Morning game—Barbourville Institute 7, Berea College 6. Evening game—Union College 4, Berea College 1.

LOCAL AMATEUR BALL TEAMS GET READY TO OPEN SEASON.

Hirsch Bros. To Play Reserves.

The Hirsch Bros. and Indianapolis Reserves will play this afternoon at the Hirsch Bros. park at Twenty-sixth street and Broadway. This game marks the opening of the season for the Hirsch Bros. team, and Manager Blechner has been busy for the past month getting everything in first-class shape for this contest. Extensive improvements have been made on the old Dusty Rhodes ball park. He has surrounded himself with a team that promises to rank with the best semi-professional clubs in this city.

With Vetter behind the bat and Crutcher and "Rube" Sadler on the slab the Hirsch Bros. have a battery that ought to make good.

The Indianapolis Reserves have played here several times in past seasons and have always put up a fast, clean article of ball.

New Albany and Indians.

The New Albany Stars will play the Evers Indians, an all-professional team, this afternoon at Fairmont Park. The Indians defeated the Hirsch Bros. Several members of the Stars have secured jobs. Manager Ray will be with Battle Creek and Herman Overton, shortstop, Murray, catcher and utility man, and Guy Long, pitcher, will report to Ray's club April 20. Webmer is with the Bedford, Ind.; Gerrad, of the All-Professionals, who played with Manager Ray's pennant-winning Paducah club in 1904, will be with Battle Creek. Brock will pitch for Frankfort. F. Overton will catch for Bowling Green and Stewart Brown will cover first for Pekin, Ill.

Colored Giants and Atkins Meet.

The colored baseball season will open this afternoon between the Louisville Giants and the Atkins, a semi-professional white team of Indianapolis. The game will be played at the Giants' Park, Twenty-eighth street and Broadway, at 3 o'clock. This will be the first game of the season among colored players and interest has been aroused in the contest. The line-up:

Giants.	Positions.	Atkins.
Pugh	Shortstop	Churchill
Woods	Center field	Meyers
Walton	Left field	Murphy
James	Right field	Mitchell
Carter	Third base	Doyle
Brown	Second base	Baerer
Ross	First base	Chase
Sleet or Cileman	Catcher	Cook or Harris
Hill or Williams	Pitcher	Millian, Avery or Croffke

Manual 13, Alumni 7.

Manual went up against a strong Alumni club at Manual Park yesterday, and after a hard battle came out on top by a score of 13 to 7. Manual did not field up to its standard, but generally tightened up in pinches. Johnson pitched a steady game. The fielding of Schmidt, a catch by Stone in center and long hits by E. B. Jenkins, and Schmidt were features. The score:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R.	H.	E.
Alumni	1	0	2	0	1	0	0	3	0	7	11	7
Manual	2	4	3	0	4	0	0	0	*	13	8	4

Batteries—Johnson and Schmidt; Stilz, Hikes and Semple.

Ticket and Car Accountants Play.

The L. and N. Ticket Accountants and Car Accountants, local amateur teams, will cross bats at Eighth and Magazine streets this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Batteries: Ticket Accountants, Hanrahan and Curry; Car Accountants, Sheridan and Magner. The Ticket Accountants challenge any amateur team in the city over 18 years of age. Dates can be arranged by calling Home phone 4500.

University of Louisville Team Wins.

The University of Louisville team took the first game of the interscholastic championship series by defeating the fast New Albany High School team at Glenwood Park by the score of 20 to 5. Despite the numerous runs the game was filled with sensational plays. Blair and Rutledge did some fine fielding for the local boys, while Hamilton and Hendricks did great work for the Hoosiers. Caruth, the collegians' crack southpaw, proved to be a wonder. For seven innings he did not allow a single hit, and only gave three bases on balls during the entire game. Capt. Minton, of the Hoosiers, did some nice hitting, getting a two-bagger and a home run. The collegians meet Manual this week.

The baseball season will be inaugurated in New Albany this afternoon with a game between the Douglas Sign Company team and the J. P. Wills team, of Louisville. The latter team is a member of the City League and is made up of the pick of Louisville's semi-professionals. They expect to cut a figure in the coming race. The Douglas team will also play the opening game at their new park.

A baseball club, composed of the employes of the Pennsylvania local freight office of this city, has been organized and the players are very desirous of meeting clubs composed of employes of other railroads or mercantile firms of this city. Address all communications to E. A. Needham, care Pennsylvania Lines, Thirteenth and Jefferson streets, city.

FINE OUTLOOK FOR THE DERBY

Promising Candidates Hard At Work Here and At Lexington.

WINTERGREEN VERY POPULAR.

Direct, Warfield, T. M. Green, Campeon and Sir Catesby Liked By the Railbirds.

SOME GOOD TWO-YEAR-OLDS.

WITH the date set—May 3—for the running of the thirty-fourth Kentucky Derby; with Wintergreen, the favorite; Direct, Rockcastle, Warfield, T. M. Green and Norbit Hynes all in training at Churchill Downs, and with other eligibles to the classic race working over the course of the Kentucky Racing Association at Lexington, gossip in connection with this event is lively.

The Kentucky Derby is something with which virtually all men and women in the State feel that they are more or less familiar. So, it is not strange that railbirds journey every morning to the Downs to see the horses gallop, note their general condition and then consult the past performances of each, and if a starter is a maiden to look up the record of the sire and the dam. As the time approaches for the day of the race this seriousness will increase. Nowhere in America does a struggle between thoroughbreds arouse the pride and stir enthusiasm as does the Derby duel among the sons and daughters of men and women who were thrilled by it long, long ago.

Out at the Downs all of the oldtime trainers—black and white—with the exception of those whom only death could keep away, are in the midst of their glory. Scores of stable kitchens are in full blast, with black cooks in charge, and in the early morning the odor of bacon and eggs and hot coffee floating through the air. Next to the betting ring, or an advantageous spot affording a good view of a race, there is no more attractive thing on the course than a kitchen.

* * *

The feature of the week was the arrival of the horses which had been training during the winter at Montgomery Park, at Memphis. Eleven stables were brought from the Bluff City on a record-breaking special last Tuesday morning. The run was made in eleven and one-half hours. To accomplish this a part of the distance was covered at the rate of a mile a minute. Eight Burton cars, long in use, carried the racers. Two cars were used for baggage and the sleeper was occupied by Owners J. B. Respess, J. W. (Bud) May, Dan T. Morris, F. B. Respess, F. P. Wilson, James Everman, W. M. Wallace, Jack T. Weaver, A. Lasance, J. R. Wainright, Fred Luzader, J. S. Ward and others. The journey was without incident. Every horse shipped in splendid shape. The following day W. J. Young brought his nineteen racers, including the Derby horses Warfield and Direct.

* * *

Wintergreen, for the reason that he is still quoted as top choice in the future book, attracted the most attention. His owner, J. B. Respess, seems to take a delight in showing the colt and discussing his chances in the big race.

There is no question about the colt being the most typical-looking Derby horse seen at Churchill Downs in a generation at least. The son of Dick Welles—Winter is a blood bay of perfect conformation and so perfectly turned that to guess his height or weight is an impossibility. He is one grand looker.

There is but one question in connection with the colt: Can he travel the Derby route—a mile and a quarter? As a 2-year-old he stepped five-eighths of a mile at Latonia in one minute and one-fifth second, which established a new record on that course. A sprinter last year, he has done nothing since to demonstrate that he can go a distance. He is no work-horse. His best trial at Montgomery Park was a mile in 1:47½. To get his best effort it is necessary to put blinkers on him, and after that he must be urged. He is gentle, playful and the pride of Respess, who feels that in his other Derby eligible, Rockcastle, also a son of Dick Welles—Hettie Green, he has the pacemaker for his Derby winner. This colt is at least three inches taller than Wintergreen, but he lacks the development of his stablemate. He is a free worker and has breezed a mile in 1:46¼.

Young's Derby colts are handsome-looking chestnuts. Warfield is by Nasturtium—Detection, and Direct is by Don de Oro—Froken. Warfield is close to sixteen hands. While the belief is general that Young is partial to the chances of this colt, it is known by those on the inside that Direct is the one upon whom he is pinning his faith.

* * *

Warfield's star trial was a mile in 1:44½ on the Memphis track. He stepped the first quarter in :25¼ and the half in :50. There is nothing spectacular about his movements. One thing noticeable is that he gets faster the farther he goes. It is said of him that he can run four miles in sparkling style. In the opinion of a good judge, who saw the horse work at Montgomery Park, he will develop into perhaps the best four-miler in America.

Direct is the best-looking horse owned by Young, and he has many of this description. A few days ago this colt was worked alongside of John W. Schorr's Gretna Green. Gretna Green was a stake winner, formerly the property of James R. Keene, and at that time was a performer of real merit. With equal weight up, Direct breezed a mile in 1:48¼, defeating Gretna Green by a neck. As Gretna Green is five years old, Direct was giving away from eighteen to twenty pounds.

Young, it is understood, thinks that the horse he has to beat in the Derby is J. N. Camden's Miami, a bay colt, by Count Schomberg—Rochelle II. This colt is in training under the care of Will Lewis at the Kentucky Association track, at Lexington.

Young's 2-year-olds are ready for the races. A black maiden, which is a brother to Darknight, is believed to be the speediest horse among the youngsters in his barn. He has never started. Darknight, by the way, has not been worked more than a quarter for a long time, and it looks as if this one is being reserved for a belated campaign.

A bay colt by Cesarion, said to be the best looker of Cesarion's get, is owned by Young, and he is a real stepper. Worked alongside a chestnut colt by Mesmerist, belonging to Young, the pair went a quarter in :23, urged. Both went the half in :51. This pair is fit to start at any time.

* * *

There is some talk about Jack T. Weaver's Southern Gold, a bay colt by Gold Heels. By himself he worked a quarter in :23 1-5. Southern Gold has some of the rebel spirit in his make-up, and when the time came to load him on the train to be sent to Louisville from Memphis he manifested his displeasure over quitting Montgomery Park. Weaver, it is stated, lost several pounds of flesh before he got the racer on board.

The best stable of platers brought from Memphis belongs to J. S. Ward. From Louisville he shipped direct to Lexington. After racing there he will come to Churchill Downs. Ward owns Zipango, Refined, Debar, Edward L., Thomas Calhoun and Mary W.

"Bub" May brought Tom Dolan, Patriot and four 2-year-olds from Memphis. These will be raced at Lexington and the Downs.

Will Wallace has Rara Avis, Lane Allen and seven 2-year-olds.

* * *

There is some doubt about T. M. Green starting in the Derby, but his owner, "Uncle Davy" Prewitt, who came from his home up in the State to see his colt on his arrival from Memphis, questioned the right of the maker of the future book on the Derby to quote his colt as a long shot. However, it is a fact that T. M. Green was a victim of fever at Montgomery Park, in February, and at this time he does not look the best. He is a colt possessing class. Inasmuch as his trainer, James Everman, had him out frequently at daybreak at Montgomery it looks as if he thinks he will be fit by the time the saddling bell sounds for the Derby.

* * *

Fred Luzader, who trains for J. R. Wainwright, has a fast colt in Steel King, a 2-year-old, by Ben Brush. This youngster is credited with having done the most impressive work at Memphis this spring. Just how good he is no one knows. Carrying 135 pounds he worked a quarter in :23 1-5 and a half in :50, pulled up. He is a real runner, of the Monarch type, and has a lot of daylight under him.

Frank B. Respess, who, with Al Kirby, has the goodlooking Derby horse, Norbit Hynes, has a chestnut filly which worked a quarter in :23, with a light boy up. Rome Respess is training this one. When Rome found that the filly was so speedy he put weight on her back to fool the clockers.

* * *

Dan T. Morris, in addition to his own, has the horses of Pat Millett, and the stable is regarded as a useful one.

* * *

George J. Long's Campeon is training on nicely for the Derby, and while Pete Coyne is not enthusiastic—he never is—he handles no horses for Long not worth while, and as Coyne is something of a success in preparing a horse for the races it is a safe guess that Campeon will go to the post.

* * *

Tom P. Hayes' Sir Dixon Derby colt, which is being trained at Douglas Park, is being breezed miles in 1:43, and his owner assures his friends that he has more than a chance to win the big event.

* * *

Many of the horsemen at Churchill Downs will take their stables to Lexington. Charley Hughes will race several of H. M. Ziegler's youngsters there. Bob Tucker will start Snap and Belarius. Johnny Marklein will send W. A. Leach, Beau Brummel and Prince Imperial. Pat Civill will send his stable and so will W. H. Fizer. In all probability John Hall will keep Stonestreet and Gold Proof at the Downs.

The dates on which the stake events of the Churchill Downs meeting will be run, follow:

Kentucky Derby—Monday, May 3.
Debutante Stakes—Wednesday, May 5.
Clark Handicap—Saturday, May 8.
Bashford Manor Stakes—Wednesday, May 12.
Frank Fehr Selling Stakes—Saturday, May 15.
Gentlemen's Cup—Tuesday, May 18.
Louisville Handicap—Thursday, May 20.
Kentucky Oaks—Saturday, May 22.

* * *

Judge Charles F. Price left for San Antonio, Tex., where he is presiding in the stand at the race meeting. He will leave there on May 1 to act in a similar capacity at Churchill Downs. Judge Price, after forty days' sojourn at Magnolia Springs, Ala., and Hot Springs, Ark., returned here to remain a few hours, looking brown and vigorous. His health is perfect.

PENNSYLVANIA DEFEATS YALE BEFORE AN ENORMOUS THRONG

Quaker Eight Clearly Shows Its Superiority Over the Blue in First Race Between Universities in Twenty Years.

CONTEST CEMENTS A SPLENDID FRIENDSHIP.

PHILADELPHIA, April 10.—In the first boat race between the two universities in twenty years the University of Pennsylvania eight-oared crew defeated Yale to-day two lengths over the one and one-half mile course on the Schuylkill River. The crews rowed against a three-quarters head wind the entire distance, and under these circumstances the time of 8 minutes 5 seconds was very good. Yale reversed matters in the preliminary race for second eights, winning from the Pennsylvania juniors by one and one-quarter lengths in 8:18 2-5. Yale for the first time used an English shell and English oars.

Never in the history of rowing on the Schuylkill has a crowd of such magnitude witnessed a boat race here. Yale and Pennsylvania men from this city and Yale and Pennsylvania graduates from other cities came to see the contest. Rowing authorities from other universities were liberally represented, among them being James Wray, the Harvard coach, and James Rice, of Columbia. Fully 15,000 persons lined the banks of the river or followed the races in automobiles, carriages or on horseback.

The race left no doubt about the superiority of the Pennsylvania eight. Both Julian T. Curtiss, chairman of Yale's advisory rowing committee, and Coach John Kennedy declared emphatically that the better crew won. Capt. Howe, of Yale, said his crew rowed its best and was beaten fairly. The race for the 'varsity regulars was delayed until after 5 o'clock to let the wind calm down.

Both crews got an exceptionally good start, the Yale men getting their oars into the water a fraction of a second ahead of Pennsylvania. Yale started with a stroke of 34 to the minute and Pennsylvania with 32. At the end of the first half mile Pennsylvania was a half length ahead of Yale and the latter ran their stroke up to 36. Pennsylvania raised hers to 34. The Red and Blue continued to gain and at the end of the mile open water began to show between the two shells. In an effort to overtake Pennsylvania Capt. Howe put the Yale stroke up to 38. Pennsylvania still being content with 34. Yale spurted on the next quarter of a mile and for a few strokes managed to hold Pennsylvania. Then the Pennsylvanians without increasing their strokes kept drawing away. A quarter of a mile from the finish Yale made a final effort and ran her stroke up to 40. Pennsylvania responded with a stroke of 38, which her crew held to the finish, while Yale ran hers up to 42. Pennsylvania made a very strong finish and when their eight crossed the finish line there was a length of open water between the two shells. Yale was a strong 3 to 2 favorite before the contest started.

Nothing in the history of sports between the two universities has tended to cement the friendly feelings of Yale and Pennsylvania so much as these races. For the last ten days the Yale eight has been training here as the guests of the Pennsylvanians. While nothing official was said to-night, Julian Curtiss, of Yale, declared that he hoped the trip of the Yale crew and the races with Pennsylvania would be made a permanent feature of the Easter vacation.

An interesting feature of the race was that Yale rowed in an English-rigged shell, with English oars. Both were experiments, resulting from the visit of Coach John Kennedy to England last summer to study the methods of English riggings. Before the race started, however, Mr. Kennedy declared he did not expect the outcome of the race to demonstrate the comparative worth of English or American riggings. The Yale shell is so constructed that it can be changed from the English to the American rigging at will. Mr. Kennedy insisted that if his crew could not win by the English method of rigged boat and oars it would not reverse the result with an American outfit. The summary follows:

'Varsity eight-oared race; one and one-half miles: Won by Pennsylvania, Hoagland, bow; Rogers, 2; Shelling, 3; Breitinger, 4; Walton, 5; Shoemaker, captain, 6; Braddock, 7; Ballard, stroke; Westcott, coxswain.

Second, Yale. Rice, bow; Glenny, 2; Brainerd, 3; Wallis, 4; Modell, 5; Hyde, 6; Mills, 7; Howe, captain, stroke; Case, coxswain. Time, 8:05 and 8:13.

Second, eight-oared race; one and one-half miles: Won by Yale. Thorne, bow; Frost, 2; Van Blarcom, 3; Colwin, 4; Baker, 5; Paterson, 6; Holloway, 7; Brooks, stroke; Fearing, coxswain.

Second, Pennsylvania. Brown, bow; Heisler, 2; Ferguson, 3; Mark, 4; Reeves, 5; Thompson, 6; Bennett, 7; Stiles, stroke; Rosengarten, coxswain. Time, 8:18 2-5 and 8:24.

Huntington, W. Va., April 10.—The injunction asked by the West Virginia Coal Operators against the Norfolk and Western, the Chesapeake and Ohio and Kanawha and Michigan Railroads to prevent the roads from filing with the Interstate Commerce Commission a new freight rate to the lakes, was granted by Judge Keller of the Federal court here to-day. Farmdale Addition Acres

One and Three-quarter Miles From the City on the Preston-Street Road

At Auction Monday, April 26, 1909.

Twenty minutes' ride from Fourth and Jefferson streets, just the time it takes to reach Parkland or Crescent Hill, 46 acres of the best garden land in Jefferson county; Preston-street road, 1¾ miles from city. Has been used by same tenant as a truck farm over 40 years. Will be subdivided into acre tracts, the house with 3 or more acres.

The great number of calls for small places convenient to the city are what prompt this plan of division; practically a small farm in the city.

Laid Out as City Lots Because It Will Soon Be City Property, But We Sell as City Farms in Acres Only.

The property on two sides adjoins the magnificent Audubon Park property of over 800 acres, on which is now going on the greatest improvement ever undertaken in Jefferson county, with all city conveniences, handsome gateways, macadam roads, beautifully terraced lawns; what is said to be one of the finest of golf links, a country clubhouse, which now has 500 members; a number of elegant homes being planned at this time. Land right here, immediately adjoining Farmdale, is now selling in lots at a rate as high as $4,000 an acre.

FARMDALE SUBDIVISION fully equals in fertility the best lands on the Bardstown road, that requires longer time to get to, and that is selling for $2,000 an acre or over. FARMDALE has the Okolona line along its entire frontage of 1,000 feet.

Monday, April 26, at 2:30 p. m., We Will Sell at Public Auction on the Premises.

Why should not this place be attractive? Why won't it increase rapidly and largely in value? It is easy to buy, but what about selling? Consider the points: Farmdale is on one side of a road; Audubon Park on the other. One place is being handsomely improved by a large land company that has the money and knows its business. It is making its property the most beautiful home place in our suburbs, is spending money on improvements on a scale heretofore unheard of in Louisville, and is MAKING VALUES, but it is making values for Farmdale just as certainly as it is for Audubon Park. Look across the road from Farmdale, and the question answers itself—the high elevation, the fertility of the soil, the progress of Louisville southeast. Consider acre value in property southeast from the city; this is where the town is going, and this particular tract is the highest and the richest, the best part of the section. Can this be surpassed for truck farming or country home, with the street cars at your door and the city your next-door neighbor?

FRUITS OF VICTORY

BEING REAPED BY SOUTHERN LUMBER ASSOCIATION.

Members of Organization Receiving Rebates From Railroads For Overcharges.

The victory of the Southern Lumber Association, won in the courts of Georgia against the Southern railroads which raised the freight rates on lumber shipped from points in Alabama, Florida, Louisiana and Georgia, is just now beginning to bear fruit for lumber dealers who are members of the association. The Bell & Cogreshall Company, of this city, has recently received a check for $3,000 as a refund for excessive charges on lumber purchased in Southern markets by that firm.

Hundreds of lumber dealers in the South are to benefit by the victory, and the railroads affected will be compelled to refund nearly $1,000,000 before they are square with lumber dealers. At the time the raise of rates was announced and put into effect by the roads the Southern Lumber Association made a strong protest, but to no avail. The organization then carried the case to the Interstate Commerce Commission. It was before this commission that the first victory was won. The commission held that the rate was excessive—that the old rate of 19 cents per hundred was just and equitable, and did all in its power to force the roads to accept the old rate. This they refused to do, taking the case into the courts. The case was pending in the various courts of Georgia for several years, finally going to the Supreme Court. A year ago the Supreme Court held that the 21-cent rate was excessive, and ordered the roads making the charge to refund to all dealers from whom the additional rate had been collected.

The delay of more than a year in the settlement of the claims of the lumber dealers was caused, it is said, by delay in getting the claims presented to the railroads. The heaviest claims fall upon the Central of Georgia, because of the fact that its lines do a large business in the lumber regions of the South. The Macon and Birmingham road is also affected, and will pay a small per cent. of the rebates, some of the lumber being delivered to its road for original shipment.

The Bell & Cogeshall Company is a large importer of Southern lumber, hence its claim against the Central of Georgia was a large one. C. E. Pomeroy, secretary of the Bell & Cogeshall Company, was an important witness in the litigation throughout the long fight. The case was originally filed and tried out in the Circuit Court at Macon, Ga., in which case Mr. Pomeroy was used as a witness by the Southern Lumber Association.

Pianola Announcement!

We take great pleasure in announcing to the public that we have secured the exclusive rights of sale for the Pianola and Pianola Pianos.

From now on all genuine Pianolas and Pianola Pianos will be found only at the warerooms of the Smith & Nixon Co.

The public's recognition of the merits of the Pianola has brought the usual flattering hosts of imitators to the fore. Some with greater merits than others, having been built on principles of construction that the Pianola makers have experimented with and then discarded, but the principles that have put the Pianola on its present ARTISTIC pinnacle are so well covered by patents that the most casual inspection will prove that the Pianola cannot be successfully imitated.

The Pianola is found only in WEBER, STECK, WHEELOCK and STUYVESANT Pianos, all instruments with a long history of achievement behind them, and especially selected for their tone qualities. In these pianos only are found the Metrostyle, the invention that broke down the last vestige of prejudice in the musical world and securely established the Pianola upon a plane of ARTISTIC excellence never yet attained by any other Piano Player. The Metrostyle furnishes interpretation and provides an exact detailed guide to an artistic rendition.

The Themodist and the Graduated Accompaniment (placed only in the Pianola Piano) are the last accomplishments of the Pianola and remove any possibility of mechanical effects, enabling the tyro to give the same artistic interpretation that the expert can.

The thoughtful care and years of experimenting that have been put on the Pianola Piano have enabled the makers to reduce the effort of operation to the simplest degree. With the Themodist to control the "vein of melody," no matter where it may run on the keyboard, requiring no supervision on the part of the performer, and the Metrostyle to give expression, you have the whole range of music at your command and, though you may never have taken a lesson, you are the superior of others who have devoted years to the study of the piano.

We will make you a liberal allowance on the piano that is now standing mute in your home and place in its stead an instrument that will give you the delight of PERSONALLY PRODUCING the most finished and artistic musical effects. Your inspection is invited.

Caution—If the Word "Pianola" Is Not On Your Pianola Piano It Is Not Genuine.

GOVERNOR LILLEY'S CONDITION IMPROVED.

No Immediate Danger of Death of the Connecticut Executive.

Hartford, Conn., April 10.—Gov. Lilley is passing through a crisis and the outcome of his illness cannot be predicted. At 9:30 this morning he was extremely low and semi-conscious.

During the afternoon Gov. Lilley regained consciousness and took some nourishment. Altogether his condition at noon was more encouraging.

At 8 o'clock to-night Gov. Lilley was still conscious and his mind appeared to be quite clear. His temperature showed a decided improvement over the morning. It was believed that there was no immediate danger of death.

SWINBURNE, POET AND ESSAYIST, DIES OF PNEUMONIA FOLLOWING GRIP

Famous As Man of Letters Who Graced the Later Victorian Era—The Last of the Group of Six Sweet Singers.

ALGERNON CHARLES SWINBURNE.

London, April 10.—Algernon Charles Swinburne, the poet and essayist, died this morning. He had been suffering with influenza, which developed into pneumonia.

Algernon Charles Swinburne was born in London April 5, 1837, his father being Admiral Swinburne and his mother Lady Henrietta, daughter of the third Earl of Ashburnham. He was educated in France and England, and as a poet he was especially well known for his facile metrical invention. He was a bachelor and lived at The Pines, Putney.

Of the six great poets whose works gave to the later Victorian era of English song a splendor almost comparable to that of the Elizabethan and later Georgian periods, not one now remains. Rossetti was the first to die, Arnold the second, Browning the third, Tennyson the fourth and Morris the fifth. Algernon Charles Swinburne alone survived, and his death today removes the last of the group of six. From 1896 until his end he stood as the greatest poet of his day. Born when Victoria ascended the throne, sixty years and more of his life were contemporaneous with the years of the Queen's reign.

The poet lived a retired life, and of his personality, aside from what may be gained from his works, even less is known than of that of Tennyson. The facts, in short, at the command of the biographer are of the most meager description. Swinburne was the son of a distinguished officer of the British navy and on his mother's side was descended from the third Earl of Ashburnham. He was educated at Balliol College, Oxford, but withdrew from the university in 1860, without taking a degree.

* * *

Wrote a Volume a Year.

After the publication of "Poems and Ballads," the poet permitted very little time to elapse before he followed with other publications. Indeed, from that time until the present, productions in prose and verse have flowed from his pen at the rate of about a volume annually.

The mere enumeration of Swinburne's works requires too much space. But a review of them will quickly inform the reader that, as the years advanced, the poet made his verse more and more the ally of great and worthy causes. Such ardent and whole-souled admiration of man for man as finds expression in his many poems to Landor, Hugo and Mazzini, to say nothing of his many tributes to lesser men, is hardly paralleled in literature. He spoke great words for mankind as a whole and he had also a personal message in which he exalted the virtues of heroism and sacrifice of self and steadfast devotion to high impersonal ends—a message that finds splendid embodiment in such poems as "Super Flumina Babylonis," "The Pilgrims" and "Thalassius."

Besides the wealth of poetry he leaves us, Swinburne was active, too, as a critic, and several volumes of fine prose testify to the variety and fluctuation of his literary researches and allegiances. His last published work concerned itself with critical views of the works of English dramatists who preceded Shakespeare. And, to show that his mind was still occupied with the drama, his last poetical work is "The Duke of Gandia."

"When the history of Victorian poetry comes to be written," said a critic recently, "it will be found that Swinburne's personality has been among the most potent of his time; and, as an artistic influence, it will be pronounced both inspiring and beneficent. The topics that he has touched on are often ephemeral; the causes that he celebrated will, many of them, wither and desiccate, but the magnificent freedom and lyrical resource which he introduced into the language will enlarge its borders and extend its sway so long as English poetry survives."

* * *

May Be Buried In "Poets' Corner."

It is understood that Swinburne has expressed the wish to be buried not far from the east. His body probably will be interred in the family vault on the Isle of Wight. It is predicted, however, that the dean of the chapter of Westminster Abbey will offer a place in the "poets' corner."

RIVER, BUSINESS AND WEATHER.

The river was slowly falling last night with a stage of 6 feet 5 inches on the falls, 8 feet 7 inches in the canal and 19 feet 1 inch below the locks. Business on the levee was good and the weather was clear and cold.

BOAT LEAVING THIS DAY.

City of Louisville, Capt. Brennan, for Cincinnati, at 9 a. m.

ARRIVALS AND DEPARTURES YESTERDAY.

City of Cincinnati, Capt. Lindenburn, from and to Cincinnati....Peters Lee, Capt. Flannigan, from Cincinnati to Memphis....Helen M. Gould, Capt. McIntyre, from and to Carrollton....Tell City, Capt. Anderson, from and to Evansville.

DRIFTWOOD.

The City of Louisville is the only packet scheduled to leave the local wharf to-day. She leaves from the Third-avenue wharf-boat at 9 a. m. for Cincinnati and all intermediate points.... The Lee Line steamer Peters Lee arrived from Cincinnati yesterday morning, received a big trip and cleared at noon for Memphis. Before she leaves the Ohio River it is expected that she will be loaded to the water's edge.... The City of Cincinnati cleared yesterday afternoon with a fairly good crowd of excursionists, considering the cool weather. The round trip excursions and the meet-the-boat trips promise to be more popular than ever this year.... The Helen M. Gould brought down a big excursion from the upper river yesterday.... The Tell City was in and all on time yesterday from Evansville.... The Tarascon will leave Monday morning for Madison, Ind., where she will go on the ways. She will be thoroughly overhauled and repainted for the excursion season.

The gasoline boat Shiloh came from the lower bends yesterday with a barge of merchandise.... The steamer City of Louisville will go on the Queen City marine ways the first of next week for general repairs and the crew of the City of Louisville will be transferred to the steamer Indiana, which will run in the City of Louisville's place in the Louisville and Cincinnati trade. The steamer Indiana is the extra steamer and has been laid up at Sedamsville, O., during the winter and is in excellent condition.... The Cincinnati Enquirer of yesterday says: "The Brier Fox No. 2 will start from the Louisville and Nashville railroad bridge at 1 p. m. and her first attempt to break all records will be an effort to make a nonstop run to Louisville, Ky., a distance of 132 miles. She will carry the following four men in addition to her large supply of gasoline: Capt. M. B. Dean, president of the Fox Engine Company; William Stevenson, engineer; Emerson Moore, pilot, and one newspaper correspondent, who will keep an official record of the time. According to the latest Government survey the distance from Cincinnati to New Orleans is 1,554 miles, and this launch is expected to cover this distance in sixty hours' running time. They expect to lay up over night at Louisville. They will find their main difficulty will be in getting gasoline along the route, as they can only carry one day's supply. Capt. Dean will carry a letter from Gov. Harmon, of Ohio, to Gov. Sanders, of Louisiana, noting the fact that the run of the launch Brier Fox No. 2 is an indication of the commercial possibilities of water transportation and asking the co-operation of all those in authority to urge the improvement of our inland waterways. The fastest time ever made between Cincinnati and New Orleans was by the Pittsburg packet steamer Queen City, which covered the distance in 109 hours."

RIVER TELEGRAMS.

Pittsburg, April 10.—[Special.]—The rivers are slowly falling below a coalboat stage, although one vessel was sent out to-day and another may leave to-morrow. Both vessels will go through to the South. The stage at Davis Island dam to-night was 9.3 feet, and at Freeport there was 9.1 feet. Unless a thaw comes the coal shipping stage will have passed by to-morrow night. Warmer weather has been predicted to-morrow, and there is a large amount of snow in this section and in the upper valleys. The Queen City will be in to-night about midnight from Cincinnati with about seventy Pittsburg school teachers. Maj. Henry C. DETECTIVES ON GUARD AT YERKES' MANSION.

Widow's Home Invaded During Her Serious Illness By Agents of Her Creditors.

New York, April 10.—Private detectives remained on guard to-day in the big, lonely-looking Yerkes mansion at Fifth avenue and Sixty-eighth street. They moved about at will through the ground floor of the house, while in one of the upper rooms, according to the attorneys and physicians of Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes, the widow lay seriously ill and unconscious that her home had been invaded by agents of creditors of the estate, apparently bent upon her eviction.

"The situation to-day is unchanged," said H. C. Dickinson, the law partner of James Russell Foley, Mrs. Yerkes' counsel. "Both sides have agreed to file briefs next Wednesday and until then there is little likelihood of any change in the present state of affairs."

Dr. H. H. Whitehouse, who was attending Mrs. Yerkes, declined to-night to discuss her condition, but he would say was that Mrs. Yerkes was seriously ill.
